Army Hampers Recovery Plan, Dulles Charges

Shift of Control To State Dept. Advocated at Senate Hearing

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

John Foster Dulles accused the American military government in Germany yesterday of failing to cooperate with Germany's western neighbors in promoting European recovery.

"So far it seems as if our administration in western Germany hadn't heard of the European Recovery Program," said Dulles, urging that policy control in western Germany be shifted from the Army to the State Department without delay.

Dulles, a leading Republican spokesman on foreign policy, also told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee—and indirectly his party in the Senate and the House—that cutting the ERP "in the name of economy" would cost far more in the long run than it could save.

Meyer Supports Stand

A similar warning came from Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post, who said there might be no recovery at all in Europe if Congress followed "a coffee-and-sandwiches approach." But he said western Europe was working hard and might yet recover surprisingly fast if adequate American help came now.

Late in the afternoon Mrs. Kathryn Stone, first vice president of the League of Women Voters, speaking on behalf of 88,000 women in 550 local leagues, told the committee that the program would be "less of a risk if it is adequate" in the amount appropriated by Congress.

The committee, however, seemed less interested in the cost of American help than in the conditions to be attached to it, and especially in Europe's capacity and willingness to do something for itself.

Goals May Be Indicated

By the end of the day it was evident that the coming legislation would at least indicate some of the goals which the United States expected western Europe to achieve.

In fact, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (R., Mass.) proposed an amendment, without challenge from other committee members, putting such an indication in the preamble of the bill. He suggested that the bill express "the hope of the people of the United States that the participating countries, through a joint organization, will exert sustained common efforts which will speedily achieve that economic integration of Europe without which lasting peace and prosperity are impossible."

Taking his words directly from the Paris report of the 16 European nations and from Secretary Marshall's June 5 speech at Harvard, Lodge also proposed adding this sentence:

"Progress toward the effectuation of this European responsibility shall constitute a measure of the aid to be extended under this act."

Dulles said he would favor such language in the bill, but would make it even stronger

He told the committee that political disunity was causing "enormous havoc" in Europe, and that

Snow, Rain, Sleet Make Cars Creep

Snow, turning to rain and sleet, was leaving Greater Washington glazed and glittering early today.

Only hope for creeping traffic was the Weather Bureau's forecast of rain and 35-degree temperature, which may melt the sheen. An early-morning low of 30 degrees was predicted. Two pedestrians were injured, neither seriously, in traffic accidents which boosted property damage crashes.

King to Retire As Premier Of Canada

Ottawa, Jan. 20 (AP).—Prime Minister William Lyon Mackenzie King announced tonight his retirement as Prime Minister and as the leader of Canada's Liberal Party.

The prime ministerial post automatically goes with the party leadership.

The 73-year-old King asked the National Liberal Federation to summon a convention to select a new political head. He made his long-expected announcement of resignation in a speech at the annual dinner of the federation's advisory council.

His retirement presumably will become effective after the convention, which probably will be held in August, selects a new leader.

"It seems to me," he said, "that in the light of changed and changing conditions, the time has come for the holding of a national convention."

King has been Prime Minister for 19 years, longers than any other government head in Canadian history.

U. N. Creates Body to Settle Indian Dispute

3-Nation Commission Ordered to Leave Soon for Kashmir

Lake Success, Jan. 20 (AP).—The Security Council created a three-nation mediation commission today to seek a settlement of the far-reaching conflicts between the neighbor dominions of Indian and Pakistan.

The vote for the commission was 9 to 0. Russia and the Soviet Ukraine abstained.

In the Palestine problem, meanwhile, the United Nations Partition Commission was reported to have reached a mutual understanding that an international military force was needed to enforce the General Assembly's decision to divide the Holy Land into Jewish and Arabic countries by October 1. No formal decision was taken, however.

Fernand van Langenhove of Belgium, Security Council president for this month, said he regarded creation of the mediation commission as the "first step" toward ending the Indian-Pakistani conflicts. He made the proposal after a week-end of secret talks with the Indian and Pakistani delegates.

The resolution, to which both India and Pakistan agreed, represented a compromise.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet deputy foreign minister, favored a commission but said he must abstain from voting because the resolution permitted selection of the commission from any three nations in the U. N. Gromyko said Russia felt the commission must be composed of three nations now on the council if it would be a council commission in reality.

In less than two hours and with little debate, the council:

1. Approved creation of the three-member commission. One member will be picked by India,

Soviet Calls For End of 2-Zone Setup

Joint Rule Splits Germany, Violates Potsdam, Allied Council Is Told

Berlin, Jan. 20 (AP).—Russia formally demanded dissolution of the joint British-American economic administration of the two western zones in the Allied Control Council today, declaring the arrangement violated Potsdam agreements.

Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky, Soviet military governor, presented the Russian view. He spoke after Gen. Lucius D. Clay of the United States outlined measures taken recently by the American and British military governments to expand and improve economic administration in western Germany, beset anew today by hunger strikes and threats of strikes.

The Russian denunciation meant that eastern and western Germany will continue along their separate ways for some time to come.

Whether the two parts of the country will have different currencies was still uncertain.

Asks 4-Power Mark Issuance

General Clay again asked for four-power agreement on issuance of a new mark to be printed in Berlin under four-power supervision. The Russians' answer was not given, but the Russians have been insisting all along that they have the right to print half the currency in their own zone under their own supervision.

Although the Soviet-influenced papers of Berlin have been hinting for weeks that Britain and the United States should give up their occupation of Berlin because of the formation of Bizonia, Marshal Sokolovsky voiced no such demand today.

Referring to a statement by General Clay 10 days ago when the bizonal economic council was given new responsibilities, Sokolovsky said, "We consider this shows that the United States and Great Britain are taking further steps in the splitting of Germany and the establishing of a separate western state."

He said the bizonal agencies "actually have been rendered all the authority of a federative state," and added:

"The Soviet command insists on the disbandment of this organization which splits Germany and violates the Potsdam agreement and the four-power machinery."

Not Fully Valid, Clay Says

General Clay quickly declared that if Sokolovsky had studied all details of the bizonal setup he would "find that his statement is not fully valid" and said the United States position on economic affairs in Germany was made clear by United States Secretary of State Marshall at the London foreign ministers' meeting.

Gen. Brian Robertson, British military governor, likewise referred Sokolovsky to statements of the British foreign secretary at the London Conference.

Immediately after the meeting General Clay left by plane for discussions in Washington.

[Army Secretary Royall told the House Foreign Affairs Committee yesterday that the Ruhr strikes will be "one of the important things" to be discussed with Clay in Washington.—Editor's Note.]

The control council meeting, the first since the breakdown of the London Foreign Ministers Council last month, came in the midst of a new food crisis in western Germany.

A 24-hour general strike of perhaps 120,000 industrial workers in war-battered Cologne in the British zone was set for 6 a. m. tomorrow and 2000 Essen building workers laid down their tools in the Ruhr in protest against food shortages.

A general strike, or a series of strikes, threatened in Munich in the American zone.

'Alibi' Witness Puts Laughlin Out of City on Abortion Date

Post Reporter

Two defense "alibi" witnesses yesterday battered at the Government's contention that Attorney James J. Laughlin and Dr. Henry L. Peckham, jr., conspired in an abortion last March on Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs, former sweetheart of Laughlin.

Charles Henry Flasphaler, who termed himself a "law associate" of Laughlin, told the jury that on March 22 Laughlin and he were in Romney, W. Va., on a legal matter and did not return to Washington until 11 p. m. the following day.

Mrs. Hobbs had previously testified that an illegal operation had been performed on her March 22 at the home of Mrs. Irma Petrain, a nurse of 2215 H st. nw. Other Government witnesses had testified that Laughlin was in the house at the time and was present also the following day.

Another witness, Edgar P. Carroll, 4240 Reno rd. nw., declared that on last March 18 he was in conference with Laughlin and another attorney, Orille C. Gaudette, in the latter's office at 1010 Vermont ave. nw. from 6 p. m. until "after 11 p. m." regarding a divorce.

(March 18 and 19 had been variously mentioned by Government witnesses as the date Laughlin first escorted Mrs. Hobbs to the

Murphy, in Own Defense, Calls Language at Blaze Justified

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Taking the stand in his own defense, Fire Chief Clement Murphy yesterday acknowledged he used strong language to firemen at a National Airport fire in 1946.

Use of the words in question is the basis of one of the five abusive language counts in the charges that Murphy has "demoralized" his department. Coarse and abusive language is prohibited by fire regulations.

While admitting he used some profanity, Murphy did not agree with prosecution witnesses as to the harshness of all the language, and he indicated his belief that the outburst was justified.

At the airport fire involving the crash of an Army B-25 on August 19, 1946, Murphy said he arrived to find two hoselines laid, but no water was turned on.

He said he told Lieut. Eugene J. Heiss:

"Heiss, you've run wrong (error) in making a proper approach to the blaze)," and Heiss answered, "No, I haven't, Chief."

Murphy said he retorted: "Damn it, don't lie to me," and later told Heiss: "God damn it, you're using the wrong tip (nozzle on the hose)." Murphy said Heiss changed the nozzle.

Lieut. Heiss, in a deposition introduced previously, had given substantially the same testimony, stating it was "common practice" to hear such language on the fire-ground. The remark was stricken from the record.

On the same occasion, Murphy said he later saw one of Heiss' men, Pvt. Frank W. Cummins, on the edge of the fire scene, and believed Cummins was shirking his duty, Murphy said. He testified he told Cummins:

The Gallup Poll

Truman Leads Dewey, Taft, Trails Eisenhower Over Nation

EXCLUSIVE

This is the second of a series of poll reports that will be issued from time to time on the results of "trial heat" presidential races. The first report covered New York State. Subsequent reports will show how the candidates stack up against each other in various sections of the country and among various large voting groups.

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Jan. 20.—Complete returns from the Institute's Nation-wide poll on the political effect of Henry A. Wallace's third-party presidential candidacy show the following main facts:

1. Wallace does not take enough votes away from President Truman to put Gov. Thomas E. Dewey in the lead in national popular votes in a presidential "trial heat" among the three men today. However, Governor Dewey does lead President Truman in poll votes outside the South.

2. In a three-cornered race involving President Truman, Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower and Wallace, the general holds a substantial lead nationally.

3. With Senator Robert A. Taft heading the Republican ticket, President Truman runs sufficiently far ahead in the trial heat so that the Wallace vote makes no difference nationally.

These conclusions are subject to certain qualifications which are presented below. The actual poll returns are these:

"If a presidential election were being held today, and Truman were running for President on the Democratic ticket against Dewey on the Republican ticket and against Wallace on a third-party ticket how do you think you would vote—for Truman, for Dewey or for Wallace?"

Similar questions were asked with the names of General Eisenhower and Senator Taft as possible G. O. P. candidates.

The vote:

Truman-Dewey-Wallace	Pct.
Truman	46
Dewey	41
Wallace	7
No opinion	6
Truman-Eisenhower-Wallace
Truman	40
Eisenhower	47
Wallace	6
No opinion	7
Truman-Wallace-Taft
Truman	51
Taft	31
Wallace	8
No opinion	10

In analyzing the above results those interested in politics should keep the following points in mind:

National vs. Key States—The Wallace percentage nationally does not fully reflect the effect that he could have on the election outcome. The real effect will be felt in certain key States.

Wallace might in the November election poll only a small percentage of the total vote cast by the whole Nation and yet receive enough votes in such individual States as New York, Illinois, California and Michigan to hold the balance of power and determine which major party gets the electoral vote there.

In fact, the institute's report last week on New York State found that Wallace's candidacy would

GOP Approves 4-Million-Dollar Campaign Chest

By D. Harold Oliver
Associated Press Reporter

Senator Wherry of Nebraska assured fellow-Republicans yesterday that a GOP "ground swell" is on, but warned them against overconfidence.

Members of the Republican National Committee, ending a two-day meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, also:

1. Approved a four-million-dollar campaign chest.

2. Heard Senator Taft's manager claim that the Ohio Senator is "very definitely in the lead" for the presidential nomination.

3. Listened to complaints that hotel operators in Philadelphia, site of this year's national convention, have not come forward with all the rooms they promised and have been jacking up prices 50 to 100 per cent.

Speaking at a committee luncheon, Wherry said:

"There are those within our party who feel that because the Democratic Party is divided, all we need to do is stand by, play for the breaks and let the opposition defeat itself.

"But even though the Democratic Party breaks apart at the seams, we—all of us—have to keep battling for Republican victory and good government."

Wherry called the opposition "the old New Deal with a new look" and challenged President

Labor Will Back President, Says Rail Union Head

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

A handclasp, accompanied by expressions that it "should never have happened," yesterday brought the curtain down on the feud between President Truman and A. F. Whitney.

Whitney, white-haired president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, who once called Mr. Truman a "political accident and a one-termer" and threatened to spend millions to defeat him in 1948, left the White House an ardent ally.

The meeting between the two men, who had not seen each other since Mr. Truman broke the railroad strike in May, 1946, was arranged by the Democratic National Committee after Whitney had recanted.

The Chief Executive, it was learned, greeted Whitney in warm fashion and remarked:

"Al, it should never have happened."

"You're right, Mr. President," Whitney agreed, feelingly, "it should never have happened."

Whitney added something about having received bad advice.

Whitney, in a news conference at committee headquarters later, predicted that the Democratic Party this year will "get practically all of the labor support." He disclosed also that he had made a

President Tells Labor Secretary To Do What He Can To Settle Dispute

By Frank Wilder
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday told Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach to do what he could to settle the GSI cafeteria dispute, an informed administration source revealed.

The source, who asked that his name be withheld, stated that Mr. Truman has been concerned about effects of the dispute, which has kept picket lines around 40 Government buildings for 16 days and occasioned some violence.

Schwellenbach has been watching the strike closely for some time, but has taken no formal steps to settle it thus far.

The President and Schwellenbach were understood to have discussed the dispute by telephone last night following a hearing on Capitol Hill into some phases of the strike.

Accused of Taking "CIO Stand"

Schwellenbach provided a broad hint at the hearing that he thinks both parties — Government Services, Inc., and Local 471 of the United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO)—should sit down together and settle their differences.

He said he saw nothing in the Taft-Hartley Act to prevent GSI from bargaining with the union.

After the hearing, Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) accused the Secretary of Labor of taking "a CIO stand" in the strike.

The sixteenth day of the strike also brought arrests of two nonstrikers. A total of 13 pickets and two nonstrikers have been arrested in incidents of violence in the strike thus far.

Hoffman Called Schwellenbach

Hoffman, chairman of a House Education and Labor Subcommittee, had summoned Schwellenbach, officials of GSI, the union, other Government agencies, and police officers. He said he wanted to find out by what authority the Labor Department and Supreme Court cafeterias had been closed for the strike's duration.

As it turned out, the hearing eventually included: (1) Schwellenbach's views of the Taft-Hartley Act, (2) an inquiry into the past political affiliations of Oscar L. Chapman, Undersecretary of the Interior, (3) the loyalty of union officials, and (4) testimony of an AFL official who is trying to organize GSI workers.

Said Schwellenbach: "I dislike the interpretation (of the Taft-Hartley Act) that unions have to file non-Communist affidavits and financial statements before they can sit down and bargain with an employer.

"It puts them in the same position they were in before 1935 and the Wagner Act."

John Cross, GSI counsel, told the committee GSI has refused to bargain because the union has failed to file the non-Communist affidavits and because some question had been raised about the loyalty of union officers. He said a recent National Labor Relations Board ruling had disqualified the union as bargaining agent.

As Cross read from the ruling, a letter from NLRB Regional Director Ross Madden, Schwellenbach interrupted:

"It does not say that."

Then, reading from the letter himself, Schwellenbach pointed out that NLRB simply said the union is "ineligible for certification" to receive benefits of NLRB action.

"I don't think you need take the position this letter says you can take," Schwellenbach told Cross.

"There are thousands of unions," he said, "that never used the NLRB and get along just as well in bargaining."

Questioned about the reason for his request to Federal Works Administrator Philip B. Fleming, to close the Labor Department cafeteria, Schwellenbach said:

"The Labor Department is one

Minneapolis, Jan. 30 (U.P.).—Four months old Arthur Jensen, jr., died on the desk of Mayor Hubert Humphrey today while his parents were waiting to protest to the mayor that the city's only free hospital had denied admission to the ailing child.

Humphrey ordered an investigation by police and said if there were any dereliction of duty "there will be some drastic action."

The parents, who said they could not afford a private hospital, took the child to Minneapolis General Hospital last night suffering from some type of respiratory ailment.

Mrs. Jensen, 24, said a doctor examined the baby, took a chest X-ray and administered an injection of 150,000 units of penicillin. But, she said, the doctor told her the baby was not sick enough to require admission to the hospital.

A child specialist was summoned and told the parents he believed the child's illness was "not too serious" and suggested that they return him to the hospital clinic today, officials said.

The parents started back to the hospital this morning to try again, but decided to setop at Mayor Humphrey's office to tell him about their predicament.

They laid the baby on the mayor's desk and a few minutes later Jensen noticed the baby was dead.

Jensen, 43, a gardener, who is able to find little work during the winter, recently applied for relief.

Arthur, jr., was his only child. His wife has a 4-year-old daughter by a former marriage.

GOP Stands Pat On Tax Slashes Of 5.6 Billions

Pauley Denies He Profited As 'Insider'

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

After sitting on the lid for 17 days, the Senate Appropriations Committee yesterday made public Edwin W. Pauley's formal denial of January 3 that he had ever profited from "inside Government information."

At the same time Chairman Homer Ferguson of the committee's investigating subcommittee, admitted that at least part of the report had been shown previously to Harold E. Stassen, Republican presidential aspirant.

Yesterday was chosen for the release, apparently as a curtain-raiser to the meeting of Pauley and his chief accuser (Stassen) before Ferguson's group Friday.

At that time each witness will be permitted to submit questions to the other in writing, after the queries first have been approved by committee members.

In a letter accompanying a detailed accountant's statement of his dealings in commodities since 1944, Pauley termed charges that he had used "inside information"

Knutson's Bill Blessed; Expert Sees Revenue Above Truman's Figures

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House Republican leadership last night gave its blessing to the 5.6 billion dollar Knutson general tax reduction bill, without a single modifying change.

Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (R., Mass.) announced GOP steering committee approval following a two-hour conference with Ways and Means Committee Republicans.

Representative Harold Knutson (R., Minn.), predicted Ways and Means clearance of the full cut today or tomorrow and House passage late next week.

The decision came in the face of the Administration's flat stand against any net cut in revenues during the present inflationary period and a virtual veto ultimatum on the Knutson bill.

Move to Trim Collapses

A GOP move to reduce the total of the bill to around four billion dollars collapsed after Colin F. Stam, congressional tax expert, submitted revenue estimates at sharp variance with the Administration's own.

Stam reputedly told Ways and Means Republicans tax receipts in the next fiscal year should exceed by more than a billion what the Administration figured, leaving a fatter surplus than expected.

Stam first met with the Ways and Means majority and later went with them to the Steering Committee conference. Both groups decided to stand pat.

Still Pay on Debt

Speaker Martin told reporters his steering group concluded "it would be possible to have this tax reduction and still make a substantial payment on the debt."

He said a minimum billion dollar cut in spending "will leave us in the black, and we are going to cut appropriations more than that."

Martin estimated "more than two billion dollars" will be left over after tax cuts for reduction of the national debt.

While Republican leaders were rolling out the Knutson bill, Ways and Means Committee Democrats, badly split on the President's own tax proposals, held a conference in the office of Representative Robert L. Doughton (D., N. C.).

Washington Welcomes Archbishop

Notables Gather For Installation Of Prelate Today

"I come with a desire to serve and to help all the people."

These were the words of the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle as he arrived in Washington yesterday on the eve of his installation as the first Archbishop of Washington.

The installation of an archbishop for the newly created Archdiocese of Washington will take place at 10 a. m. today in St. Matthew's Cathedral.

A crowd of several hundred—at least half of them members of the clergy—cheered the new archbishop-designate as he alighted from a train at Union Station yesterday.

Bishop Heads Welcomers

The welcoming delegation was headed by the Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop and administrator of the Baltimore and Washington dioceses, and pastor of St. Gabriel's Church here.

Monsignori in the welcoming party included the Right Rev. John K. Cartwright of St. Matthew's Cathedral; the Right Rev. Thomas G. Smyth of Blessed Sacrament Church; the Right Rev. James A. Smyth of Sacred Heart Church; the Right Rev. John W. Dowling of Holy Name Church; the Right Rev. John J. Russell of St. Patrick's Church, and the Right Rev. Edward McAdams of St. Joseph's Church.

Many Catholics had waited for an hour or more in the chilled vastness of the station trainshed for a sight of their new Archbishop. Women and children snatched kisses of the Archbishop's ring as he walked to an awaiting automobile with the welcoming party.

Archbishop O'Boyle went immediately to St. Matthew's Cathedral where he prayed briefly before the altar, the same altar before which he will be installed today. Later he dined in the St. Matthew's rectory.

Accompanied by 3 Bishops

The new archbishop was accompanied to ashington by the Most Rev. J. Francis McIntyre, coadjutor archbishop of New York; the Most Rev. Bryan J. McEntegart, bishop of Ogdensburg, N. Y., and

Negro Law School Case Heads Back To Supreme Court

Oklahoma City., Jan. 20 (AP).—The legal battle of a 23-year-old Negro woman to enroll in the University of Oklahoma law school today was headed back to the United States Supreme Court, which only last week directed the State to establish equal law school facilities for Negroes and whites.

A Negro school of law established here in a surprise move yesterday by the Oklahoma State regents for higher education was branded by Negro leaders as a "Jim Crow law school."

At a mass meeting of 600 Negroes, James E. Stewart, president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said the association's attorneys will go back to the Supreme Court to contend that "some unit of the State government is in contempt" of the court's ruling.

Mrs. Ada Lois Sipuel Fisher, the Negro seeking admission to the university's law school, will not attempt to enroll in the newly created law school but will stand on her application for enrollment at the State university, it was reported.

Archbishop O'Boyle Is Welcomed Here

the Most Rev. Henry T. Klonowski, auxiliary bishop of Scranton, Pa.

Today's installation ceremony at St. Matthew's Cathedral will be attended by a long list of church and lay notables.

The Most Rev. Amleto Giovanni Cicognani, apostolic delegate to the United States, will be the installing prelate and will pontificate at the solemn high mass which will follow the installation ceremony.

The colorful rites will be preceded by a procession of clergy at 9:30 a. m. from St. Matthew's rectory, with some 500 priests and ecclesiastics participating. As the Apostolic Delegate and Archbishop O'Boyle enter the cathedral with their attendants, the Cathedral Choir will sing the Gregorian antiphon (Tradent enim vos).

Blessing of Holy Water

The Apostolic Delegate and Archbishop O'Boyle will be met at the entrance of the Cathedral by Msgr. Cartwright, who will serve as notary in the instalation ceremony, and the preliminary ritual, which includes the blessing of the holy water and the censer, will take place.

Then the Apostolic Delegate and Archbishop O'Boyle will enter the Chapel of St. Francis in the vestibule of the Cathedral for a brief prayer, after which they will rejoin the procession and proceed to the sanctuary.

When the procession arrives in the sanctuary, the Apostolic Delegate and the Archbishop will kneel in prayer at the altar. The Apostolic Delegate will receive the Papal Documents of the Archbishop appointment which Msgr. Cartwright will read to the congregation first in Latin and then in English.

The Apostolic Delegate will then perform the installation ceremony which terminates with the choir singing the glorius Te Deum Laudamus. The addresses of the Apostolic Delegate, Bishop McNamara and Archbishop O'Boyle will follow.

Pontifical Mass To Begin

Then will begin the Pontifical Mass with the Apostolic Delegate, the celebrant, occupying the throne on the gospel side and the new Archbishop his throne on the epistle side of the altar.

After the ceremonies at St. Matthew's ther will be a luncheon for the clergy at the Mayflower Hotel.

Several other welcoming events have been scheduled for the new Archbishop. Tomorrow at 8:15 p. m. he will be the guest at a reception by the laity in the gymnasium of Catholic University.

At this reception addresses of welcome will be made by John A. Reilly, president of the Board of Trade, and Mrs. Joseph Egan, president of the Sodality Union of Washington, on behalf of the men and women of the Archdiocese.

On the afternoon of January 27 there will be another reception at Catholic University by the faculties and student body. As the new Archbishop of Washington, Archbishop O'Boyle automatically becomes Chancellor of the University.

Heads 165,000 Catholics

The 51-year-old Scranton-born prelate will also reign over a newly-created Archdiocese which embraces the District and the five adjoining Maryland counties of Montgomery, Prince Georges, Calvert, Charles and St. Marys. The new Archdiocese of Washington contains a Catholic population of 165,000 in 82 parishes.

Today's installation ceremony will be attended by 19 Archbishops and Bishops from Catholic dioceses and more than 300 Monsignori and priests of the Washington Archdiocese.

The congregation will include numerous representatives of the Federal and District governments, the courts, Congress, the diplomatic corps, the armed forces and national and local lay groups.

President Truman has designated Associate Justice Frank Murphy of the Supreme Court as his representative at today's ceremony. The Supreme Court will also be represented by Associate Justice Stanley F. Reed and Mrs. Reed and Associate Justice Wiley Rutledge and Mrs. Rutledge.

Lane, Farley Among Notables

Other judicial figures in the congregation will be Associate Justice Harold M. Stephens of the Court of Appeals and Associate Justices Edward M. Curran, Henry A. Schweinaut and Matthew F. McGuire of District Court.

The District will be represented by all three of its Commissioners, and Maryland by Gov. and Mrs. William Preston Lane and Senator Herbert R. O'Conor (D.) and Representative George H. Fallon (D.).

Washington's New Archbishop Arrives

The Washington Post

WELCOMED—The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle (left), who will be enthroned today as first resident Archbishop of Washington, is met upon his arrival at Union Station yesterday by The Most Rev. John M. McNamara, auxiliary bishop of Washington. Installation rites will be in St. Matthew's Cathedral at 10 a. m. today. The procession starts at 9:30 a. m.

New Bishop To Serve All

Text of statement issued by the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle terday on the even of his instalas he arrived in Washington yeslation as the first Archbishop of Washington:

THE GATES of the city of Washington have swung open to welcome me with traditional hospitality. Since my appointment was announced, the priests, sisters, brothers and laity of the archdiocese have been very kind in their expressions of fealty and their promises of service. They have reflected my own attitude on the matter. I come with a desire to serve and to help all the people.

I am encouraged by the prospect of close association with the beloved Bishop McNamara. As he assisted at my consecration he will, I hope, stand at my side all my days. The good priests, sisters and brothers will, I know, serve in our vineyard with the same fervor and zeal which have always marked their labors.

Naturally I am not yet entirely familiar with the many good works and noble institutions of the archdiocese. This knowledge will ... my future pleasure. I am, of course, aware that the five ... ties in Maryland mirror the infancy of our Church in this country. The future, moreover, offers the pleasing prospect of absorption into the life of that great center of Catholic culture—the Catholic University.

TO YOU—the people of the archdiocese—I dedicate myself humbly and completely. With your help we shall go on together as one family doing God's work for God's honor and glory. Thus will we all promote the salvation of souls—our common responsibility.

I shall earnestly try to be worthy of the great traditions of love of church and country which have come down from the first American bishop, John Carroll; from the saintly Cardinal Gibbons; from the dynamic leader, Archbishop Curley. They dedicated their full lives to the salvation of souls. Their attainment in this direction is my ambition. If my years among you help to increase the goodness and sancity of your lives, then, and only then, will I have discharged the responsibility which I now beseech you to share.

I am humbly grateful to the Holy Father, Pope Pius XII, for the vastly greater opportunities now offered me as a devoted citizen to advance my constant interest and support of everything that contributes to the common good of the Archdiocese of Washington and of our beloved country.

Blick Libel Case Recesses

Jury trial in a $60,000 libel suit brought by Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the Metropolitan Police vice squad, against a former policeman was recessed yesterday following a defense request for a directed verdict.

The trial will take up again at 10 a. m. today with District Court Justice James W. Morris expected to rule on the request.

Lieutenant Blick seeks damages from one-time policeman, Joseph L. Meeks, whom he accuses of libeling him in a letter to the superintendent of police. The letter purportedly named Blick and three other policemen as having raided Meek's house at 518 H st. nw. on September 8, 1946, and mistreated a woman there.

Blick denied Monday that he or any other member of his squad had entered the house.

LeRoy W. Morrison, head of the Washington field office of the Bureau of Narcotics, testified yesterday that he and two policemen and a fourth man, not an officer, went to the H. st. address on September 8, 1946. He said no vice squad members were present.

Tests Scheduled For Police Privates

In House Bill

Fireman, Police Pay Rise Sought

An $800-a-year boost for Washington police and firemen was proposed to Congress yesterday by Representative J. Glenn Beall (R., Md.).

Representative Beall, chairman of the House District Public Service Subcommittee, introduced the pay boost bill in the House. It was sent to the District Committee.

The increase would be effective last January 1, and would apply also to White House and Park Police.

The $800 would be on top of present salaries, and would not affect the 1945 pay act provisions for extra pay in lieu of overtime. The "overtime" pay would continue to be based on present salaries.

Applications Due February 3 for Both D. C., Park Forces

The Civil Service Commission announced yesterday that it now is accepting applications for examinations to obtain more privates in the Metropolitan Police Department and Park Police here.

The announcement highlighted the personnel problem in the police forces here which also saw the following yesterday:

1. Maj. Robert J. Barrett, police chief, said he would increase by 48 the number of policemen he will seek in the next fiscal year

2. He declared that fewer policemen are walking beats in Washington today than did in 1925 when the force was half as large.

3. A special squad handling unsolved murders also will be assigned to major robberies and other difficult cases, it was disclosed.

4. The results of the last civil service examination for higher rank in the police department will be announced, it was learned, not earlier than February 20.

The examination for privates is open to men between 21 and 35 who can meet rigid physical requirements. For park policemen the maximum age for veterans will be 40 years.

The applications must be returned not later than February 3.

At present there are 101 vacancies on the Metropolitan police force. The District Commissioners have decided to ask Congress for an increase of 205, to make a total force of 2000 men.

Major Barrett's proposal for 48 more is to provide for 35 men who must check licenses of various kinds and for 13 schoolboy patrol coordinators.

As an example of the present personnel shortage, Major Barrett said that there were now 33 footmen on patrol duty in the First Precinct. In 1925 when the total force was 968, there were 57 footmen on duty in that precinct.

It was pointed out, however, that there were no scouters supplementing the footmen in the earlier period. To this Major Barrett replied, it is recognized that the footman is theg reatest known deterrent to crime.

Police Riot Unit to Have Negro Squad

The proposed Police Riot Unit will use motorcycle men for cavalry, will be equipped with modern weapons and will include a Negro squad, it was disclosed yesterday.

The basic unit of 33 men, which will be expanded to a force of 125 to handle civic disturbances, met for the first time yesterday. It is led by Inspector Lloyd E. Kelly.

Inspector Kelly said he expects to have his cadre trained within a month and that then the rest of the unit will be added.

The unit meets for three-hour sessions twice a week. Lectures and drill in riot formations are used in each meeting. Army publications on quelling domestic disturbances are texts, Inspector Kelly told his men that in the race riots of 1919, the bonus marches of 1932 and other demonstrations, D. C. police found themselves unprepared.

He said the department anticipates no riots but must be prepared to restore order in any emergency. He said it was demonstrated in the Lorton riots and the huge marches in the 1930s that a show of force by a disciplined police organization is a deterrent to mob action.

Sergt Sheldon R. McKee is instructing the cadre in munitions and weapons and Sergt. W. Roy Ostrom is demonstrating riot formations for the group.

Chilean River Yields 48 Boat Victims

Santiago, Chile, Jan. 20 (U.P.)—The bodies of 60 shipwreck victims have been recovered from the swift waters of the Imperial River, leaving about 100 persons still unaccounted for in the wreck last night of the riverboat Cautin, the chief of rescue operations reported today.

He said about 350 persons had been rescued from the ship, which was carrying 500 religious pilgrims when it foundered about 3 miles from its destination.

Of the bodies recovered, 25 were found in the hold of the ship and were mostly of children and old people.

Luis Pena, 21-year-old survivor, told the United Press the small vessel was overcrowded and began shipping water shortly after it sailed.

Hospital Auxiliary Elects

LaPlata, Md. (Spl.).—Mrs. Thomas Flesher was formally installed today as the new president of the western section of the Charles County Women's Auxiliary of the Physicians Memorial Hospital. Other new officers are Mrs. John Thomas, vice president; Mrs. Herbert Fleshner, secretary, and Mrs. Edward Koehler, treasurer.

Heater Explodes But 2 Fast Runs Prove All in Vain

Two fact runs—one by a Falls Church athlete and the other by the McLean (Va.) volunteer fire department—had the Chesterbrook Methodist Church "fire" well in hand last night.

Marshall Loy, the athlete, was one of 10 persons nudged out of their seats during a Youth Fellowship meeting in the church when a defective oil burner exploded.

Loy, without waitng to see the fire he was sure would follow, dashed across the road to the nearest telephone, summoned the McLean volunteers. They reported to their station and took two trucks over the half mile of snow-slippery roads in eight minutes.

There was no fire—Gilbert Beall, 4715 N. 38th st., Arlington, treasurer of the church school, could vouch for it. He was tending the oil furnace; reported no damage.

Order Making Lee Army Commander Found in Mobile

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 20 (AP).—Rummaging through an old trunk, William C. Croom of Mobile came across an original document yesterday by which he said Gen. Robert E. Lee was assigned to command the Confederate armies.

The discovery was reported by Croom today as Mobile joined with other cities in the South in observing the anniversary of Lee's birth. Croom said the document was collected by his father, Maj. Stephens Croom.

Signed by S. Cooper, adjutant and inspector general, the order stated:

"Gen. Robert E. Lee is assigned to duty at the seat of government (Richmond, Va.) and under the direction of the President, is charged with the conduct of military operations in the armies of the Confederacy. By order of the Secretary of War."

New Strikes Threaten Italy As 20,000 Battle With Police

Rome, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—New general strikes began in Reggio Emilia and Ancona today in a fresh wave of labor unrest which last night led to a pitched battle between 20,000 workers at an arms factory and police in industrial Brescia.

Workers at the port and shipbuilding center of Ancona, on the Adriatic, launched a 48-hour general strike. A one-day general strike paralyzed industrial Reggio Emilia, in the rich Po valley. Strikes by farm hands continued around Perugia and Naples.

The Brescia arms workers, protesting failure to receive full pay and bonuses for the past two weeks, blocked off the city's main streets and attacked the federal building.

Thousands of police fought the demonstrators with nightsticks and tear gas bombs and fired machine guns in the air. The workers stalled streetcars and buses and turned them sidewise on main thoroughfares.

Other unrest yesterday included walkouts of textile workers in turin and heavy industry workers at the Siai-Marchetti machinery and motor factories in Milan; occupation of a bicycle factory by employes at Montelupo near Florence and occupation of Po farmlands by peasants near Ferrara.

Hindu Seized In Bomb Blast Near Gandhi

New Delhi, Jan. 20 (AP).—Police said they arrested a man identifying himself as a Hindu refugee from the Moslem part of Punjab who interrupted Mohandas K. Gandhi's prayer meeting tonight by exploding a homemade bomb 50 yards away.

Gandhi, addressing the meeting the first time since the end of his fast, was seated cross-legged on the platform before a microphone. He looked up, and exclaimed, "What is it? I do not know. But never mind, listen to me."

He then continued speaking without any trace of excitement.

During his fast for Indian peace, which ended in its sixth day last Sunday, some refugees from the Punjab shouted outside his quarters, "Let Gandhi die."

Police said they arrested the man, who gave his name as Madan Lal, after he had been seized by members of the congregation Officials said they were looking for three other men who accompanied the youth to the premises of Millionaire G. D. Birla, where Gandhi is staying, and let him out of a car.

Servants at the Birla mansion said the youth tried to enter the garage which would have taken him closer to where Gandhi was speaking.

Gandhi, too weak to walk to the meeting, was carried in an armchair.

the second by Pakistan, and those two will choose a third.

2. Instructed the commission to go as soon as possible to the trouble area, now centered in the snowbound Himalayan princely state of Kashmir.

3. Told the commission to exercise "any mediatory influence likely to smooth away difficulties;" to deal first with the fighting in Kashmir state, and finally to consider "other situations" set out by Pakistan "when the Security Council so directs."

The compromise thus met India's demand for "urgent" measures toward stopping armed hostilities in Kashmir. It also left open a way for the Council to consider Pakistan's countercharges that India has committed acts of aggression against Pakistan and charges of mass murder of Moslems in India.

Without a formal vote, the Council urged Indian and Pakistani delegates to continue efforts toward a settlement at further meetings with Van Langenhove.

Dominicans Fear New Invasion Plot

New York, Jan. 20 (AP).—The Dominican information center said today it has received cabled reports from Ciudad Trujillo that revolutionists who plotted unsuccessfully in Cuba last summer to invade the Dominican Republic are mobilizing in Maracay, Venezuela, for a new invasion attempt.

The report, which the center said quoted "unimpeachable diplomatic sources," added that "diplomatic sources further revealed that anti-Trujillo forces are arriving daily in Maracay from the United States, Mexico and Cuba in what appears to be a concentration of 'Communist forces' against the Dominican Republic."

19 Wounded

9 Jews Slain By Arabs in Revenge Raid

Jerusalem, Jan. 20 (AP).—Arabs attacked a Jewish village in northern Palestine near the Lebanese frontier today with mortars and automatic weapons, killing 9 Jews and wounding 19 others.

About 500 Arabs launched the attack on Yehiam, Associated Press Correspondent Edward Curtis reported from the scene. Police and military officers there described the assault as well organized and said it was aimed at driving the Jews from the settlement, which is surrounded by Arab villages.

Four Jewish settlement police were among those killed. They were mowed down when a vehicle in which they were attempting to evacuate Jewish wounded was halted and burned. Two British who went to their aid were wounded.

Yehiam is among 19 Jewish communities outside the boundaries of the Jewish state as outlined in the United Nations partition plan.

The attack apparently was in revenge for a raid yesterday by the Jewish militia, Hagana, on nearby Sarafand el Amr.

Officials said 100 Jews, including 10 women, still were in the settlement and all refused to leave when the British security forces withdrew at dusk.

Curtis reported four settlement members manning a defense post in the ruins of a Crusader castle were wiped out by a direct hit from a 2-inch mortar.

Many in Hagana Saw U. S. Service

Jerusalem, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Many Americans serving in the Jewish underground army Hagana are on jobs for which they were trained by the United States Army, Navy and Marine Corps, a Hagana spokesman said today.

Americans serving with Hagana interviewed by the United Press did not complain about pay, although Hagana does not pay them. Neither did they complain about the meager food and cigarette ration, which most Americans refuse.

Most Americans in Hagana came here to study and consider their military duties extracurricular. Two former GIs, however, have been killed.

The great majority are enrolled at Hebrew University on Jerusalem's Mount Scopus and at Hebrek Institute of Technology on Haifa's Mount Carmel. Except for a few, they did not join Hagana until the United Nations approved partition and fighting broke out.

Customs Union Favored Between France, Italy

Paris, Jan. 20 (NYHT).—Three months of study have convinced a France-Italian team of trade experts that a customs union between the two countries is "most desirable" at the present time.

House Votes To Let Ex-Red, 2 Others Enter

By the United Press

The House yesterday passed three bills which would permit a former Communist, a one time member of the Polish underground and a Romanian woman doctor to remain in the United States.

It voted to grant permanent residence to Viktor A. Kravchenko, member of the wartime Soviet Purchasing Commission who renounced communism and his native land in his book, "I Choose Freedom."

The bill, sponsored by Representative Frederic R. Coudert (R., N. Y.), would make Kravchenko eligible for citizenship despite immigration law provisions barring residence to any person known to have advocated the overthrow of the United States Government by force or violence.

The Pole is Victor C. Kaminski, who "jumped ship" at Charleston, S. C., while serving with the Polish merchant marine and now faces deportation.

Representative J. Caleb Boggs (R., Del.) told the House that Kaminski fought the Germans as a member of the Polish underground and was seized and held in custody for a month by Soviet secret police following the Russian occupation.

The woman doctor is Dr. Gisela Perl, whose parents, husband and son were killed by the Germans.

The House approved a bill granting her permanent residence after its author, Representative Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.), outlined her efforts on behalf of "simple humanity" as an enforced member of the medical staff of the German Auschwitz Concentration Camp.

"It was her duty to report to the German authorities every morning the number of pregnant women in the camp," he said. "These women were systematically put to death.

"As soon as Dr. Perl learned of what happened to these women, she went through the camp every night and performed abortions on all the pregnant women so there would be none . . . It is estimated that, in this way, she saved the lives of more than 3000 women."

19 U.S. Officers Off to Greek Battlefronts

Athens, Jan. 20 (U.P.).—Nineteen U. S. Army officers left by air for Greece's northern battlefronts today and will advise units of the Greek army in their campaign against the guerillas of Gen. Markos Vafiades.

The officers are the vanguard of about 80 Americans who will join Greek units as advisers Twenty-three others arrived in Athens today.

A renewed outbreak of fighting in southern and central Greece was reported as the 19 officers departed to begin their field duties.

The south Greek fighting reportedly centered near Platanos, where more than 500 were said to have been killed yesterday, and at Lidoriki, west of Amphissa, where a force of 1000 guerillas reportedly was driven off after a three-hour battle with the town's defenders.

In central Greece, the Ministry of Public Order said 300 guerillas attacked Goura and three other villages near Corinth.

Meanwhile, the gold market slumped after yesterday's announcement by United States Aid Administrator Dwight P. Griswold that $10,800,000 in gold frozen in the United States would be released to the Greek government.

Reports from the northeastern port of Salonika said that troops which have been operating for four days in the Mount Pieria area, southwest of Salonika, had trapped a sizable guerilla band. Thirty-two guerillas were reported killed and 18 wounded or captured in the battle at a cost of two soldiers and one gendarme killed and 10 soldiers wounded.

8 Die, 140 Hurt as 6000 Riot In Iraq Over British Alliance

Baghdad, Iraq, Jan. 20 (AP).—Eight persons were killed and 140 injured today in six hours of rioting set off by 6000 students protesting the revised British-Iraq alliance. Police fired on the rioters and arrested hundreds before order was restored.

The United States information offices were stoned, but no attempt was made to break into the building. Efforts of rioters to reach the British Embassy were halted by police. The rioters set fire to a portion of the offices occupied by the English newspaper Times. The Arab news agency office also was stoned.

The rioters returned the police fire, and the dead included two policemen, two inspectors and four civilians. Injured were 40 police and 100 civilians.

The students have been on strike since publication of the signing of the treaty in England last week. Demonstrations flared yesterday, but no one was killed. All schools remained closed. The treaty provides for mutual aid in event either country is involved in war and for British training and arming of Iraqi forces.

UMW Emphatically Opposes Controls

Miners' Official Cites War Experience Against New Price, Wage Regulations

John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers went on record yesterday as being "emphatically" opposed to a return of wage and price controls.

Union Vice President Thomas Kennedy told the Senate Banking Committee, which is studying proposals for inflation control, that wartime experience with such regulations accounted for the UMW's opposition.

Most other labor unions, though against wage controls, are actively in favor of restored price ceilings and rationing.

On Anti-Inflation Front

In a relatively quiet congressional day on the anti-inflation front, there were these developments:

1. Senator Tobey (R., N. H.), chairman of the Banking Committee, added his support to the Flanders-Javits bill to prepare for meat rationing. The measure would permit the Government to print ration books and invoke rationing when the President decided it was necessary.

2. Chairman Wolcott (R., Mich.) of the House Banking Committee said he was opposed to the bill and to all other inflation control powers requested by Mr. Truman "until we see what use he makes of the powers we have already given him."

3. Col. Philip Smith, an Army purchasing officer, testified to the Senate Banking Committee that a 30 per cent price increase during the last nine months had cost the Army about 250 million dollars.

Price Control Backed

He indorsed measures to impose price control at wholesale levels as "of most benefit to the armed services." He emphasized that this was his own opinion and that he was not speaking for the Army Department.

4. Senator Buck (R., Del.), member of a Senate Banking Subcommittee considering extension of rent controls, said he may ask special income tax relief for landlords in hardship situations.

He conceded that Congress would extend controls for another year. Present authority expires February 29.

He said he thought some means should be found to help landlords who are encountering financial troubles because of the controls. Possible relief, he suggested, might be provided by exempting them from taxes on all or part of their income from rents.

Warn Against Cutting ERP

Testifying yesterday before Senate Foreign Relations Committee

mitments they undertook in the Paris conference report."

Meyer suggested asking the Europeans to submit their own plan for reaching their announced goals, rather than having the United States formulate one and impose it.

"The more there can be a joint 'follow-through,' with joint American and European checks on how the money is being used," he said, "the better will be the chance for achieving what must be a dual goal of your legislation: safe guarding the purposes of the aid program, and still allowing the latitude appropriate to a world in which conditions can at times change rapidly and unexpectedly."

American aid must be enough to lay the groundwork for real recovery, not merely relief, he went one.

Likened to Atomic Pile

"The proposition which you are considering is something like an atomic pile," he said. "As our scientists discovered, that pile—the amount of uranium put in one place—had to be of a sufficient size or else it would not operate; there would be no reaction at all."

"So also there is a critical size to our foreign aid. I would not presume to say what the size is, but would only point out that the Paris Conference Report, the Harriman Report and the Administration—good people working independently—reached figures not too far apart, in their appraisal of what it will take to make the operation truly chain-reacting, capable of sustaining itself in a process of economic rehabilitation, capable of getting Europe off our backs and on its feet."

Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.) asked whether he felt the recovery program cohld accomplish its objectives by the end of 1951.

Noncommittal on Time

"I don't think anyone would have judgment enough to answer," Meyer answered. But he reminded the committee that few could have predicted the speedy surrender of Japan, and nobody he British coal miners would work met in England last fall thought as hard and acromplish as much as in recent weeks.

"You can get some pleasant surprises as well as some unpleasant ones," Meyer said.

Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kan.), intervening for almost the first time since the hearings began, said Meyer had "really helped us to arrive at the right conclusion as to what we should do." And Senator H. Alexander Smith (R., N. J.) said he shared Meyer's optimism about the spirit and determination of the people in western Europe.

On the other side of the Capitol, the House Foreign Affairs Committee heard former Undersecretary of State Will Clayton predict "a substantial blackout for our goods" if the United States abandoned western Europe.

It also heard Army Secretary Royall partly attribute the recent strikes in the Ruhr to Communists. This led Representative James P. Richards (D., S. C.) to suggest that the German people "be required to work at bayonet point" if necessary. Royall replied that he would not do this to the Germans "under any circumstances."

Leaders of veterans' organizations will be heard by the Senate committee this morning, while Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder testifies before the House committee.

Committees Hear Views On ERP Value

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday heard these witnesses and these views:

John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to Secretary Marshall at recent conferences: The European Recovery Program must be "a creative act" encouraging western European unity.

Eugene Meyer, chairman of the board of The Washington Post: The western Europeans are working hard and following sounder policies, but still face the danger of totalitarian rule.

Charles R. Hook, president of the American Rolling Mills Co., Middletown, Ohio: The European Recovery Program will be a good risk for America.

George R. Zook, president of the American Council on Education. Vocational and technical schools to train European skilled labor should be rebuilt with the help of ERP funds.

Guy E. Burch of Arlington, Va., a student of population problems: Europe's population is growing so fast that the new mouths to feed will affect the cost of ERP.

Mrs. Kathryn Stone, first vice president of the National League of Women Voters: United Nations agencies should be used wherever possible to help make ERP a success.

The House Foreign Affairs Committee heard these witnesses and these views:

Will Clayton, former Undersecretary of State; American interests depend upon the restoration of a free and prosperous world economy.

Lewis W. Douglas, Ambassador to Great Britain: European cooperation can be obtained best by voluntary agreement rather than by imposing rigid conditions.

Kenneth Royall, Secretary of the Army: If ERP is not approved, western Germany will fall into Communist control.

Fight Begun for Universal Training Vote

Chairman Walter G. Andrews (R., N. Y.) of the House Armed Services Committee, served notice yesterday that he will fight to bring the pigeonholed universay military training bill to the floor for a vote.

The measure was approved 20 to 0 by his committee, but now is locked up in the House Rules Committee with a majority of the group opposed. House GOP leaders also have been reported to be against it.

Andrews objected yesterday when Majority Leader Halleck asked for unanimous consent to dispense with "calendar Wednesday." Under House rules, bills approved by the legislative committees can be called upon Wednesdays. Major legislation, however, normally is brought up for debate under a special rule voted by the Rules Committee.

Put Up Halleck

The New York Republican asked Halleck if he could give assurance that the Rules Committee would permit the controversial UMT bill to be voted on by the House. Halleck said he must take this up with Chairman Allen of the Rules group.

Andrews declared the training bill is a "must" for national security and challenged Allen's group to act, or publicly explain why it does not.

A similar UMT bill—based on the recommendations of President Truman's commission—still is before the Senate Armed Services Committee. Members are waiting on some cost data now being prepared by the defense departments and final decision of important issues as to how the plan would be put into effect.

Needed, Says General

Meanwhile Lt. Gen. Leonard T. Gerow, new commander of the Second Army, with headquarters at Ft. Meade, Md. said that UMT is urgently needed to give the Nation the reserve forces it needs.

"Military fundamentals have not been changed by atom bombs and guided missiles" he declared at a press conference at Ft. Meade.

Dulles Says U. S. Military Hampers Recovery Program

there was a vital need for some form of customs and monetary union, as well as for a regional defense pact like the recent Rio treaty.

"The importance of unity is clearly brought out," he said, "by the fact that western European unity is the feature of the Marshall idea which has particularly aroused Soviet leaders to attack."

But Dulles added that in his recent discussions with European leaders, one phrase "almost invariably came to their lips—'you must push us'."

"Of course they do not want us to coerce them," he explained. "They do mean that unless we keep constantly lifted high before their eyes the great goals to which they themselves aspire, these goals will be hidden behind a mass of relatively non-essential matters."

Seven Suggestions Offered

He then made seven suggestions to the committee, some of which he thought should be embodied in the coming legislation. They were:

(1) Set forth the purpose of the recovery program more clearly in the actual bill;

(2) Say explicitly in the bill that continuing aid depends on continuing European cooperation;

(3) Appropriate the amount "which qualified experts think prudent;"

(4) Indicate some of the targets which the Europeans themselves think attainable;

(5) Give assurance that western Germany will be integrated with the western European economy, with the necessary safeguards against German resurgence;

(6) See that the new recovery administrator measures European progress and report periodically to the President and Congress; and

(7) Put the administrator under the direction of the President and Secretary of State on matters of foreign policy; give him an advisory board; do not necessarily put his representatives abroad under the control of the respective ambassadors.

Under questioning, Dulles developed and explained his charges against the American military authorities in Germany. He said the French, Belgian and Dutch government were "absolutely stymied" in their recovery efforts without knowing what the United States planned to do about, for example, the German transit trade through Dutch ports.

State Control Urged.

So far, he said, the military government had not bothered to consult the neighboring governments, and Secretary Marshall could not do it because he lacked authority over western Germany.

Disclaiming any disrespect toward Gen. Lucius D. Clay, the American commander in Germany, Dulles said the State Department should take over the War Department's present control by the time the ERP gets under way.

Secretary Marshall has already said his department hoped to take over by June 30, but the Administration time-table calls for ERP to start by April 1.

Much of Meyer's testimony was aimed at what he called the three principal contentions of those who oppose "the full measure" of American aid to Europe. First, he said, the Europeans are "said to be slackers on their jobs and to rely on Uncle Sam to bail them out"; second, their governmental forms and policies are said to be so unsound that any American help, however generous, would be useless; and third, "the political danger to western Europe is said to have passed."

As to the first, he testified on the basis of first-hand inspection that he was surprised to find how hard the Europeans were working, despite their low rations.

"Considering what the Europeans get to eat—an intake in calories from two thirds to one half our usual diet," he said, "one could expect their physical labor would be keyed accordingly. The astonishing thing is that this is not the case.

"In almost all cases where the work week is shorter than we would like to see it," he said, "the limiting factor is not the unwillingness or indifference of the men, but rather the scarcity of raw materials and power."

War Devastation Cited

As for the alleged unsoundness of European governments and their policies, Meyer said "it is idle to expect that war-smashed countries, their production ruined and their commerce disrupted, could balance their budgets when the last bomb fell."

"The most important thing," he said, "is to look at the direction in which the governments are moving. The implication of the criticism is that western European countries are moving in a direction away from these goals of financial stability and order. The fact is, however, that they are taking substantial and promising strides in the direction we recommend.

"There are those who would have us attach conditions to our aid to Europe which would amount in effect to orders for fundamental changes in their government. I believe those ideas are misguided. Te governments of the 16 nations give promise of improvement and one of the reasons for this is that they are independent. Indeed, the whole aim of our program is to preserve that independence.

Paris Commitments Approved

"On the other hand, I believe it is perfectly proper and essential to demand as a condition for our continuing help that the European governments live up to the representations they made and the commitments they undertook in the Paris conference report."

Soviet Dangerous, Says Mrs. Roosevelt

Hyde Park, N. Y., Jan. 20 (AP).—Calling the Russians "dangerous," Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt says that unless the United States "finds ways to be strong enough, so Russia will work with us, we will have to build for another war."

Mrs. Roosevelt

"We need tact as well as strength" in dealing with the Soviet, she said last night in her first public address since returning from last month's Geneva meeting of the United Nations Commission on Human Rights, of which she is chairman.

If the United States withdrew from Europe, "Russia would go in everywhere we went out," the President's widow told a meeting of the Hyde Park Historical Association.

"We are the most powerful Nation in the world," she said. "Russia is next. She is newer, therefore not so secure. . . . They infiltrate where they can, and they are going to expand if they can. They really believe their way is the only way to govern the world. We have to believe just as strongly in our way."

The "Communist economy is not one of plenty, but one which people turn to when there is nothing else to turn to," she said, adding:

"Europe is in that position. It's Russia or the United States. Either we work together in the United Nations, or face each other as enemies. That woudl be very painful for all of us."

Conant Sees Higher Education Threatened by Loyalty Purges

Harvard University President James B. Conant yesterday stated his alarm at the threat to educational freedom from overemphasis on "loyalty."

The educator devoted several pages of his annual university report to his concern over what he called the "Problems of an Armed Truce." The report was made public at Harvard.

In the present period of "armed truce," he warned, interference with universities' freedom, "as a result of panic," could have "most disastrous" effects.

He granted the danger of potential enemy sabotage, secret intelligence and even "planned disruption of the basic philosophy of a nation." But at the same time, he declared, we must be "courageous in our support of the basis of our own creed, the maximum of individual freedom."

He added, "We should be certain that any steps we take to counteract the work of foreign agents within our borders do not damage irreparably the very fabric we seek to save."

Conant conceded that the Government, in hiring its employes, would be obliged to make sure they were of "unswerving loyalty" and discretion. But, he insisted, different considerations applied in staffing colleges and universities.

Conant was apparently referring to the high degree of pressure to which many educational institutions have recently been subjected, to "purge" faculty members and comb them for possible "subversive tendencies."

"Certain men and women who temperamentally are unsuited for employment by a Federal agency," he said, "nonetheless can serve the Nation in other ways. They may be entitled to our full respect as citizens (though we may disagree with their opinions).

"Universities . . . are neither Government bureaus nor private corporations; the professors are not hired employes. The criteria for joining a community of scholars are in some ways unique. They are not to be confused with the requirements of a Federal bureau. . . .

"The bedrock on which the scholarly activities of a university are founded is a charter of free inquiry; without this you may have an institution of advanced education, a technical school or a military college, but you do not have a university. . . .

"The Nation has a right to demand of its educational institutions that the teachers dealing with controversial subjects shall be fearless seekers of the truth and careful scholars rather than propagandists. But granted honesty, sincerity and ability there must be tolerance of a wide diversity of opinion.

Way to Stop 'Leaks' Sought By Forrestal

Defense Secretary James Forrestal plans to call a conference of top press, radio and movie executives to consider means of stopping "leaks" of military secrets.

The subject has been undder study for sometime by top defense officials, and informal consultations already have been held with leaders of the major "public information media," an official said.

Capt. Robert Berry, USN, Forrestal's press relations aide, said that some suggestions for solving the security problem would be put before the conference and that the matter will be left up to them.

"If they want a voluntary peacetime security program, we can go ahead with it," he said, "otherwise we'll throw the whole thing in the wastebasket."

Berry said these suggestions would be to set up an advisory board made up of leaders in the magazine, radio, television and newsreel fields. This group would be told facts about military security and would decide what subjects should be kept secret.

Then a working group of full-time, paid news, radio and movie people under a topflight civilian, would be created in Forrestal's office to give advice 24 hours a day to newspaper, radio stations, etc. as to whether a story being considered for publication would be harmful to the United States. The final decision would be up to the paper or station.

Berry said that the tentative plan differed from the wartime voluntary censorship setup under Byron Price. The advisory board, not the Government, under the proposal, would decide what types of material should not be published, and that Forrestal's office would give "advice" as to whether a story violated rules set up by the board. Price's office "requested" that such a story not be published, Berry said.

He stated that many newspaper, radio and magazine editors had urged that some competent agency be provided to give such advice.

Perennial Fight Over Anti-Lynch Law Given Lively Start by Morse and Eastland

By the United Press

The perennial fight over anti-lynch legislation got off to a lively start yesterday, with Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) and James O. Eastland (D., Miss.) throwing the first verbal punches of the 1948 session.

Morse testified before a Senate Judiciary subcommittee in favor of his proposed Federal antilynch law. It would make members of a lynching mob liable to fines of $10,000 and 20 years in jail. It also would punish negligent law enforcement officials by fines of $5000 and five years' imprisonment.

Eastland, a member of the subcommittee, interrupted when the Oregonian started explaining that his bill would authorize the Attorney General to investigate police negligence in lynchings.

Constitution Debated

"Do you mean that the Federal Government can punish State officials for what the Federal Government conceives to be negligence?" Eastland demanded.

"That is my contention," Morse replied. "I think we are entering a field of constitutional law that requires giving to the Constitution applications not previously given. But I submit that is how the Constitution has grown."

"You're trying to simply change the Constitution," Eastland rejoined.

Japanese-American Testifies

Morse's plea was backed up on less legalistic grounds by Mike Masoaka, a Japanese-American war veteran, who testified as spokesman for the antidiscrimination committee of the Japanese-American Citizens League.

He said Americans of Japanese ancestry who were allowed to return to their prewar homes in 1944 were greeted by "arson, intimidation and shooting."

Representative Kenneth B. Keating (R., N. Y.) also testified in favor of an antilynch law. He said the House would take prompt "favorable action" on any bill passed by the Senate.

Miss. Governor Sees Democratic Bolt Possible

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 20 (AP).—Gov. Fielding L. Wright today asked an end to Mississippi's unique secret police force and urged a Southern bolt from the Democratic Party if the "anti-Southern" trend continues.

The secret police force, whose members are known only to the Governor, was set up last November at a special session of the Legislature after violence developed during a protracted strike involving Southern Bus Lines, Inc. The force is scheduled to go out of existence in July, and today Wright called for a uniformed State police body to replace it.

In his inaugural address as Mississippi's fiftieth Governor, Wright accused Democratic leaders of aiming to "wreck the South and our institutions." He declared the South "will no longer tolerate being the target" for legislation "which would not only destroy our way of life, but which, if enacted would eventually destroy the United States."

House Hearing Set in VA Row With School

A congressional hearing into the difficulties between Veterans' Administration and Columbia Technical School, resulting in the ouster of some 300 GI night students, will be held by the House Veterans Committee at 10 a. m. Friday in the old House Office Building.

Paul J. Leverone, operator and principal of the school, who resides in Miami, Fla., yesterday was wired an invitation to appear before the hearing with all necessary records. Leverone will be subpenaed if he fails to appear voluntarily, the committee said.

The hearing will be conducted by the Subcommittee on Education and Training, headed by Representative Homer A. Ramey (R., Ohio). Besides Leverone, representatives of Veterans Administration and the GI student body have been invited to testify.

The probe is the outgrowth of a long contractual tussle between the VA regional office and the school, located at Vermont ave. and N st. nw. The VA asserts it cannot permit GI students to attend night classes unless it obtains a financial statement of operations from the school.

Leverone has refused to give VA the statement on the ground he was not required to do so under the law. Through the school he issued a statement yesterday that he and his staff are "anxious to cooperate" with any congressional investigation.

U. S. Fire Losses Greatest in 1947

New York, Jan. 20 (AP).—Fire losses of $692,635,000 in 1947 were the greatest in United States history, the National Board of Fire Underwriters said today. The former high was in 1926 when losses were $561,980,000.

The board said the monetary volume of the losses was increased by inflation, shortages of materials and manpower, and the building shortage.

Republicans Start 3-Way Fight on PHA

Housing Agency Accused of Releasing Publicity Favoring National Association

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Republican members of the joint congressional housing committee yesterday launched a three-way attack on the Public Housing Administration, charged by law with responsibility for low-rent housing and slum clearance.

The committee is holding hearings on proposals for a long-range national housing program as well as emergency housing measures. One of the bills before it is the Taft-Wagner-Ellender bill. At the beginning of the session, Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), coauthor of the measure and chairman of the Senate GOP policy committee, said he would press for enactment of the bill but added that he would have to make some concessions to secure its passage.

Both House and Senate Republicans have long been cold toward proposals for low-rent Government subsidized housing.

Charges against PHA yesterday were:

1. Representative Forest A. Harness (R., Ind.), chairman of a House Subcommittee Investigating Government Propaganda, said his committee has reports that PHA is releasing publicity and propaganda through an organization known as the "National Association of Housing Officials."

2. Chairman Edward H. Rees (R., Kans.) of the House Civil Service Committee has reports that a West Coast official of PHA is a member of the Communist Party, that the agency has known of the reports for two years and has done nothing.

3. A Government Accounting Office report that FPHA (predecessor agency) had kept its books in such a chaotic condition that no audit was possible in 1945.

PHA, which now comes under the Housing and Home Finance Agency under the Reorganization Plan of 1947, gave the following answers to the charges:

1. Ray O. Edwards of the National Association of Housing Officials said his organization is purely a professional organization of housing officials, which cooperates with the United States Conference of Mayors and similar bodies. Its constitution and by-laws, Edwards said, forbid participation in politics or propaganda of any kind. If Harness' charges are true, Edwards said, the housing official or officials involved will be subject to expulsion from NAHO.

2. John T. Egan, Acting Public Housing Commissioner, offered to lay the whole loyalty investigation file of the West Coast official before the committee in executive session. He told the committee that the file includes a letter from the mayor of the city in which the official lives flatly denying he was ever associated with the Communist Party. From other sources it was learned the file also includes similar denials from police and other officials.

3. Senator John Sparkman (D., Ala.) led the defense for the PHA on the bookkeeping charges which had been investigated by the Senate Committee on Executive Expenditures. He pointed out that the GAO report said the bookkeeping confusion did not point to any dishonesty on the part of PHA officials and said that PHA, during the war, was forced to take over some 16 other agencies, many of whose books were in a muddled state. Senator Herbert O'Conor (D., Md.), who testified for the Senate group, said that those responsible for the bookkeeping confusion had been discharged and that the agency was correcting every error that had been discovered.

John Thomas Taylor, legislative director of the American Legion, urged Congress to give top housing priority to the disabled veteran and next to the veteran. He offered to work with the committee on a definition of veterans. Taylor also urged that Congress provide that a veterans' disability pension or retirement pay be left out of consideration for the purpose of fixing incomes at which a person is eligible for low-cost housing.

GOP Approves Election Fund

Truman to say whether he will ask for repeal of the Taft-Hartley labor law as a plank in the Democratic platform.

Representative Clarence Brown of Ohio, chairman of the National Committee's executive committee and Taft's preconvention manager, told a reporter he is convinced his man is in the lead for the presidential nomination.

Delegates to Total 1094

"Today Taft is ahead on delegates," Brown said, adding that he had checked this by talking to most of the National Committee members.

Supporters of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, latest to become an avowed candidate, have been contending for weeks that Dewey will enter the Philadelphia convention with far more delegates than anyone else.

A total of 548 convention votes will be necessary for a nomination under an official convention call approved today apportioning a total of 1094 delegates among the States and Territories.

Hotel Rates Protested

The storm over convention city housing broke in the morning session just after approval of the convention call providing for starting the official proceedings June 21 at 10 a. m.

Walter S. Hallanan, arrangements committee chairman, and J. Kenneth Bradley, head of a housing subcommittee, complained that accommodations were not up to expectations.

Bradley said the city had promised 6000 first-class and 2000 medium-class rooms, but that so far only 4533 had been made available.

He said other "disturbing factors" are that hotel rooms will be from 50 to 100 per cent higher than regular rates, or $12 a day and up for double rooms, with suites up to $60 a day; and certain persons with influence are obtaining reservations by circumventing the arrangements committee.

Atlantic City Utilized

To care for the overflow—those not convention officers and delegates, press, radio, etc.—Bradley said, 1000 hotel rooms have been obtained in Atlantic City, N. J., to be reached by special trains.

Bradley drew a laugh when he remarked that the demand for rooms was so great that there will be "a minimum need of 300 rooms for presidential candidates" alone.

At an afternoon session the committee approved a report setting three million dollars as the goal for the 1948 presidential campaign fund raising, and another one million dollars for the senatorial and congressional campaign committees.

strike a serious blow to Democratic chances of carrying that particular State in an election held today.

The New York State figures are given below, with the no opinion vote included in the first row and excluded in the second:

New York State	Pct.	Pct.
Truman	38½	41
Dewey	41½	44
Wallace	14	15
No opinion	6
Truman	29	31
Eisenhower	52	56
Wallace	12	13
No opinion	7
Truman	42	47
Taft	32	35
Wallace	16	18
No opinion	10

Future polling will show the situation in a number of other large States.

Outside the South—A good deal of Mr. Truman's strength in the trial heats against Governor Dewey and Taft is due to the votes cast by the Southern States, where loyalty to the Democratic Party is a long-standing tradition.

Outside the South, the Dewey, Taft, Eisenhower and Wallace forces do much better.

Here are the results in the trial heats with the South excluded:

Truman	41%
Dewey	44
Wallace	8
No opinion	7
Truman	36%
Eisenhower	50
Wallace	6
No opinion	8
Truman	48%
Taft	33
Wallace	9
No opinion	10

Eisenhower's Aloofness—General Eisenhower's lead over President Truman in the trial heat may not continue if the General allows his hat to be thrown in the ring. Part of his popularity is due to the fact that he has refused to identify himself with controversial political issues; this non-partisan position has brought him goodwill among people of all parties and in all walks of life.

But if he becomes a candidate in the race for the GOP nomination, he will inevitably have to come down from his political Mount Olympus. In doing so he may forfeit support of some of his present-day following.

The Time Factor—The poll reflects the situation only as of this time and is not to be considered a forecast of what will happen in November. Will Wallace be able to hold his followers for the 10 months that remain until election day? Will President Truman be able to put the blame for the high cost of living on the Republicans, or will they successfully pin the tag on him? The answers to these and many other questions will affect the November voting.

AT this early date it can be stated with certainty, however, that such votes as Wallace draws at the election will come mainly from people who voted Democratic last time.

In today's poll it was found that approximately 55 per cent of the Wallace supporters voted for Roosevelt in 1944. About one in 10 voted Republican, while the rest are new young voters and people who did not vote in the last election.

vain effort to dissuade Henry Wallace from running on a third-party ticket.

Senator J. Howard McGrath of Rhode Island, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, sat alongside Whitney at the news conference, and said at the end that he was "very happy." He looked it.

Whitney changed his mind about Mr. Truman, and called for his election to a full, four-year term, as far back as July 20. He said at that time that Mr. Truman was more acceptable than any Republican candidate on the horizon, and he praised him for vetoing the Taft-Hartley bill.

Asked yesterday what Republican presidential possibility would be easiest to beat, Whitney said he thought any of them "can be licked." He added that Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio would be the "softest."

He wouldn't comment on Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, but said that he would like to see the Republicans put up a Taft-Ball ticket, referring to Senator Joseph H. Ball of Minnesota for the No. 2 place.

Whitney, whose railroad brotherhood has 220,000 members, said he had "a very wonderful meeting" with President Truman.

"I have never been out of the Democratic Party," he said. "I hope to die a Democrat, and will if the Democratic Party will continue to conduct itself as the people's party."

Whitney was reminded that Henry Wallace and his third-party cohorts were still damning President Truman because of the harsh legislative proposals he made at the time of the 1946 railroad strike.

"We're living for the present and the future," Whitney said, "I don't think the country is interested in what happened two years ago or 10 years ago. They're interested in what happens in '48."

Whitney, in response to a question, said he hoped that Wallace would recant and make up with President Truman as he had done. However, he appeared to doubt that any such thing would happen. He recalled that he had tried to get Wallace to stay out of the race, but that two days later the Iowan threw his hat in the ring.

'Insider' Profits Denied by Pauley

in his operations "plain nonsense."

He demanded that the committee make a "definitive finding" of the following question:

"Did or did not Edwin W. Pauley use his Government position—or information obtained by virtue of that position—to profit on the commodity market?"

Pauley then added:

"If your committee finds that I have used 'inside information' it will clearly have the duty of seeing to it that I am exposed.

"Since no such finding is possible—because no such impropriety ever occurred—I trust that the committee will likewise feel the obligation to see that I am vindicated."

As if in anticipation of Stassen's charges on January 9 that his dealings "followed the pattern" of Government commodity purchases, Pauley pointed out that his trading indicated he had not profited by such operations.

He asserted that in January, February and March, 1947, when Government purchases sent wheat futures soaring from $2.16 on February 1 to $3.05 on March 18 he "had no wheat whatsoever." He quoted Stassen as saying earlier that "insiders" had profited heavily at that time.

He pointed out that his accounts would show that on May 13, 1946, when OPA suddenly raised wheat ceilings 15 cents a bushel, he had just unloaded 350,000 bushels of grain. "What was I doing when OPA was about to raise ceilings?" he asked. "Selling."

He said that he had sold 1000 bales of cotton on November 5, 1947, just five days before a Government crop estimate sent cotton prices soaring.

"There is one of my transactions," he said, "in which a series of dates has been synthesized by one of my critics to make it appear that I used inside information to make a profit on lard." This synthesis, he said, was like this:

"Secretary Anderson, who makes the export allocations for lard, was Pauley's guest in Hawaii in August.

"On September 4, Pauley bought 500,000 pounds of lard. Six days later, on September 10, the Department of Agriculture announced a materially increased allocation for fats and oils for export for the final quarter. The next day, lard jumped considerably."

"Obviously," he said, "this is one of those cases where a man simply cannot introduce tangible evidence to show the integrity of his position. All that he can do is tell the truth and ask all others to tell the truth."

He told the committee that if his statement and the records left any doubt: "I think it would be fair for you to call for the testimony of officers and employes of the Departments of the Army, Agriculture or any other Government agency in which there might be information affecting listed commodities."

Pauley reviewed his appointment to his present job as special assistant to Secretary of the Army Kenneth Royall. He said he raised the question with Royall "of my availability."

"I recalled the controversy over my advocacy of States' rights in the tidelands matter. I reminded him I was in the oil business. I told him I owned certain commodities that I would want to liquidate if I decided to take the job.

"We agreed that it would be understood that I was not to act in behalf of the Army, directly or indirectly, in any transactions involving things or commodities in which I had a financial interest.

"I made clear that I wanted no access to any Army information relating to commodity purchases. You see, I had been subjected to unfair attack before. I had no desire to be a candidate for more."

Pauley evidently was referring here to the battle that raged over his appointment as Undersecretary of the Navy more than a year ago. After a long Senate fight over confirmation, in which the then Secretary of the Interior Ickes joined, President Truman, at Pauley's request, withdrew his name. Ickes left the Cabinet.

Pauley quoted the New York Times concerning Stassen's charges:

"One doesn't have to be an insider," he quoted from a Times editorial, "to know what the statistical position of wheat is, to know the requirements of the Government (the largest buyer) are, or how far these requirements have been filled at any given time."

In giving out Pauley's letter and broker's account, Ferguson refused to comment, other than to say that "Pauley will be given an opportunity to explain the record and his previous statements."

He said the committee had been particularly interested in "the amount of sales and purchases after September 3"—The date Pauley was named to his Army job.

Pauley's statement showed that a number of sales and purchases had taken place between August 31, when he was long 305,000 bushels of grain and quantities of hides, cottonseed oil, lard and cotton, and December 26.

By November 30, a week before his name was brought into the commodity speculation investigation, these had been reduced to 55,000 bushels of grain; with a long position of 20 contracts of hides offset by a short position of like amount, and a small amount of cottonseed oil.

On December 26, the last date shown in the report, he was long 50,000 bushels of grain and short 11 contracts of hides. (A "contract" of hides is 40,000 pounds.)

Pauley appealed to the Senators to "see that I am vindicated." He said that although his was a story of "successful operation," it was a story "of profit honestly and honorably made, legally, ethically, and in the American tradition."

He deplored what he called suggestions that "success is a misdemeanor." It reminded him, he said, of a conversation in which "Elder Statesman Bernard M. Baruch" once told him of being investigated by Congress.

That was back in 1917, and concerned a profit of $500,000 Baruch made in one day by selling securities short on the strength of peace rumors.

Brewers' Grain Talks Futile

A Government effort to arrange a voluntary agreement among the Nation's brewers to use less grain in making beer and ale, ended in a stalemate yesterday.

Two groups of brewers, the United States Brewers Foundation, made up of large operators, and the Small Brewers Committee, failed to agree on any program suggested.

Last night, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson announced that he was asking the industry to continue for another month the present curtailment program it adopted last November after conference with Charles Luckman of the Citizens Food Committee.

Will Poll Breweries

In the meantime, Anderson said, he would poll all breweries on a program to be worked out by the Government. Anderson warned the brewers that unless a voluntary agreement is reached, he will ask Congress for power to cut their use of grain by 20 per cent.

Most of the brewers favored a plan to cut the use of all grains except malt barley to 80 per cent of last year's use. The difference would be made up by increasing the amount of malt barley to 110 per cent of the amount normally used. Malt barley, the brewers contended, is not of value for any other use.

Meantime, the Schenley Distillers Corp. told a three-man court that the Government's order cutting down the use of grain for making liquor is the "opening wedge for the return of prohibition."

Robert S. Marx of Cincinnati, attorney for Schenley, asked the court to declare the order invalid and the law under which it was issued unconstitutional.

HERE'S WHY
YOU SHOULD USE 15% LESS HEATING OIL THIS WINTER
The heating oil supply situation is critical. Unless you and all other users of heating oil burn 15% less than normal during January, February and March, your home may be cold! Today the industry's production is the greatest in history—BUT—still not enough to meet the record demand. To save your 15%, take these steps now: Set thermostat at 68°... turn down to 60° at night or when away... keep radiators off in all unused rooms... use fireplace whenever possible — keep flues closed when not in use.

2 Congressmen and Atomic Energy Aide On 'Outstanding' List of U. S. Junior C. of C.

Two congressmen and the counselor to the Atomic Energy Commission are among 10 young men chosen as "outstanding" in the United States during 1947.

Names of the 10 were announced yesterday at Chattanooga, Tenn., by the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The members of Congress are Representative Richard M. Nixon, 35, (R., Calif.), whose local address is the Broadmoor Apartments, 3601 Connecticut ave. nw., and Representative Glenn Robert Davis, 33, (R., Wisc.), who lives at 57 Galveston st. sw.

Also named was Adrian Stanford Fisher, 33, Atomic Energy Commission counselor, who lives at 2823 N st. nw.

Elected in 1946

Nixon was elected in November, 1946, upsetting his Democratic opponent, former Representative Jerry Voorhis.

Davis was elected in a special election April 22, 1947, to succeed the late Representative Robert K. Henry who had died two weeks after the 1946 fall election.

Fisher was an attorney for the Tennessee Valley Authority and other Government agencies before the war. At the time of his appointment as counselor to the Atomic Energy Commission last month Fisher was serving as solicitor of the Department of Commerce.

Others Selected

Also selected as an "outstanding" young man of 1947 by the judging panel was LaVon P. Peterson, 28, of Omaha, Nebr., who, blind since birth, taught Army and Marine radiomen how to repair sets in total darkness during the war. He founded and now directs a radio engineering school for the blind at Omaha.

Others named were:

Cord Meyer, jr., 27, president of United World Federalists, New York City.

Dr. Robert A. Hingson, 34, among the first to use the new invention, hypospray, and a developer of caudal anesthesia to eliminate childbirth pain, Memphis, Tenn.

DeLesseps S. Morrison, 35, mayor of New Orleans, La.

Dr. Glenn Theodore Seaborg, 35, nuclear chemist whose work aided in the discovery of plutonium, americium and curium, Berkeley, Calif.

Thomas R. Reid, 33, human relations expert, Baltimore, Md.

Knutson Bill Unchanged

sition-alike to the President's plan and the Knutson bill in its present form, said no decisions were reached.

Never Become Law, Rayburn Says

In other quarters it was learned that the Democrats talked over various proposals for "sweetening" Mr. Truman's plan, in preparation for a floor move to recommit the Knutson bill.

In lieu of the President's call for $40 individual tax credits, for "cost of living" relief in the lower brackets, some Democrats want to substitute $200 individual exemptions and split income tax privileges for married couples in all States. The cost would be offset, as the President asked, by excess profits taxes on corporations.

Informed of the GOP decision to go ahead with the Knutson Bill, former Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) told newsmen: "That bill, as it is now, never will become law and I think the Republicans know it."

Mr. Truman last session vetoed two separate Republican attempts to cut taxes four billion dollars, and in each case Congress failed to muster the two thirds majority needed to override.

Asked if Republicans could override a third "No," Knutson said blandly: "We don't anticipate a veto."

The Knutson bill in its latest form removes about seven million persons in the lower brackets from the tax rolls by raising individual exemptions from $500 to $600. In addition, it cuts income tax rates from 30 per cent in the lowest brackets to 10 per cent in the highest. Split income (community property) tax privileges would be extended to husbands and wives in all States.

Treasury Secretary John Snyder last week told the Ways and Means Committee it would cost 6.2 billion dollars instead of 5.6 billons. He said it would unbalance the budget, cause a two-billion deficit, give inflation a shot in the arm and hurt the Government's "financial integrity."

Stam Sticks to Figures

Stam, top Capitol advisor on tax matters, declined comment to reporters. Knutson, however, said Stam stuck by his 5.6-billion price tag on the Knutson bill and upped by more than a billion the Administration's 44.5 estimate of revenues in the next fiscal year. He said Stam figured national income is fiscal 1949 at nearer 209 billion dollars than the Administration's estimate of 200 billion.

The Minnesota Republicans said House GOP leaders count on cutting the President's budget "at least" three billion dollars to leave room for a payment on the debt. Senate Republicans have been urging a similar budget cut. A joint meeting of the House-Senate budget groups to start work on spending ceilings has been called for tomorrow.

If the House, as expected, sidetracks the President's plan and approves the full 5.6-billion Knutson cut, Senate Republicans will make some pleats in the total. GOP sentiment on that side of the Capitol generally favors sticking to the four-billion tax cut in the last two vetoed bills.

Rural Carrier Seniority Bill Passed by House

Legislation providing for advancement of rural mail carriers on a seniority basis was passed yesterday by the House and sent to the Senate.

It would permit carriers to select more desirable routes when they are available. The privilege of selection would be based on seniority in the office from which the route originates.

Churchill Back From Holiday

London, Jan. 20 (NYHT).—Winston Churchill arrived back in Britain by plane today after passing a brief holiday at Marrakech in Morocco. Churchill, who appeared to be in good health, is expected to take up his duties as leader of the opposition when the House of Commons reassembles tomorrow.

Churchill would not talk with reporters after his chartered plane landed at Northolt airport. He merely said: "I am here. You can see me. That's evidence—better than words."

Gromyko Asks Accord On Atomic 'Principles'

Lake Success, Jan. 20 (AP).—Andrei A. Gromyko told United Nations atomic energy delegates today they were "wasting time" studying the organization of a world atomic control machine before agreeing on the "important question of principles."

The Soviet delegate spoke at the first meeting this year of the political committee of the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission, which began a study of the administration and financing details of an international control authority. He said the delegates were taking up details while they have not yet agreed on the basic questions. The majority continued the discussion, however.

Laughlin Offer Alibi Witness

Petrain house to arrange an abortion deal.)

Sharpshooting at the credibility of Flasphaler's testimony, Prosecutor Arthur McLaughlin held out to the witness a copy of a page tabloid newspaper called The Trap. Flasphaler identified it as a paper he published in the early 1930s in New York State.

"Are you the same Charles Flasphaler who was convicted in 1933 for criminal libel?" demanded Laughlin.

"I am," shouted the witness flushing.

License Application Introduced

McLaughlin next placed in evidence an application for a nonresident attorney's license for Tennessee dated September 10, 1946, and containing Flasphaler's signature.

"Why didn't you answer the question on the application as to whether you had ever been convicted of any offense?" the prosecutor inquired.

The witness replied that he believed the question on the application was aimed at offenses involving "moral turpitude" and that in New York State criminal libel is not thus interpreted.

Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws, presiding at the trial, interrupted to ask of the witness "don't you believe a reckless disregard of facts . . . reflects on morals?"

Second Application Cited

McLaughlin then cited another application—this one for admission to the United States Court in the Panama Canal Zone.

He cited that here, too, a question of the same nature had not been answered in the affirmative.

Flasphaler answered that he had never read the application before signing it.

"Don't you recall you signed an oath at the time (as to the truth of statements in the application)?" asked McLaughlin. "Did you have as much respect for an oath then as you do today?"

This comment was ruled out after defense counsel objected.

Testifies to Visit

Earlier Flasphaler testified that on March 20, the day Mrs. Hobbs had asserted she had been with Laughlin before being driven to the doctor's for an abortion attempt, the young woman visited Laughlin's office.

Laughlin was not in, Flasphaler said, and identified a note as being typewritten by Mrs. Hobbs while waiting. The note, read to the jury said in part: "My Dearest Jim. Sorry I missed you. I waited until 6:30 thinking you would return. I am going home . . . please forgive me for what happened Sunday night. I am sorry. Love, Esther.

Mrs. Hobbs previous had identified her signature but had vigorously denied writing the note.

Mrs. Hobbs' Cross Examined

Flasphaler went on way to say that about 5 or 10 minutes after the young women left the office, Betty and Mary Laughlin, daughters of the attorney, entered. Laughlin joined the group about 15 minutes later, the witness declared.

Earlier, Mrs. Hobbs under cross-examination by Laughlin vehemently denied that she had once told a landlady that she had "been with" a "great number" of men—"about 100" as Laughlin put it.

She also denied asking the landlady not to say anything "about taking men under the steps."

3 Unions Block Labor Peace—Refuse Wage Boost Already Accepted by 19 Other Railroad Unions!

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the Switchmen's Union of North America, representing 125,000 railroad employes, have refused to accept the offer of the Railroads of a wage increase of 15½ cents an hour.

This is the same increase awarded 1,000,000 non-operating employes by an arbitration board early in September, 1947.

This is the same increase accepted by 175,000 conductors, trainmen and switchmen by agreement on November 14, 1947.

Agreements have been made with 1,175,000 employes, represented by nineteen unions. But these three unions, representing only 125,000 men, are trying to get more. They are demanding also many new working rules not embraced in the settlement with the conductors and trainmen.

Incidentally, the Switchmen's Union of North America represents only about 7 per cent of all railroad switchmen, the other 93 per cent being represented by the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and covered by the settlement with that union.

Strike Threat

The leaders of these three unions spread a strike ballot while negotiations were still in progress. This is not a secret vote but is taken by union leaders and votes are signed by the employes in the presence of union representatives.

When direct negotiations failed, the leaders of these three unions refused to join the railroads in asking the National Mediation Board to attempt to settle the dispute, but the Board took jurisdiction at the request of the carriers and has been earnestly attempting since November 24, 1947, to bring about a settlement. The Board on January 15, 1948, announced its inability to reach a mediation settlement. The leaders of the unions rejected the request of the Mediation Board to arbitrate. The railroads accepted.

What Now?

The Unions having refused to arbitrate, the Railway Labor Act provides for the appointment of a fact-finding board by the President.

The railroads feel it is due shippers, passengers, employes, stockholders, and the general public to know that throughout these negotiations and in mediation, they have not only exerted every effort to reach a fair and reasonable settlement, but they have also met every requirement of the Railway Labor Act respecting the negotiation, mediation, and arbitration of labor disputes.

It seems unthinkable that these three unions, representing less than 10 per cent of railroad employes, and those among the highest paid, can successfully maintain the threat of a paralyzing strike against the interest of the entire country—and against 90 per cent of their fellow employes.

The threat of a strike cannot justify granting more favorable conditions to 125,000 employes than have already been put in effect for 1,175,000, nor will it alter the opposition of the railroads to unwarranted wage increases or to changes in working rules which are not justified.

A glance at the box shows what employes represented by the Engineers and Firemen make. They are among the highest paid in the ranks of labor in the United States, if not the highest.

Compare these wages with what you make!

Here is a comparison of average annual earnings of engineers and firemen for 1939 (prewar) and 1947. Also shown is what 1947 earnings would have been if the 15½ cents per hour increase, offered by the railroads and rejected by the union leaders, had been in effect throughout the entire year 1947.

Branch Quits CAB; Kuter Ruled Out

Senators' Refusal to Approve General As Chairman Held Blow to Civil Aviation

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Another CAB resignation and a firm stand in Congress against further detail of military men to Government civilian posts left America's ailing civil aviation in a bad hole yesterday.

A majority of top Federal air officials have quit in recent weeks and President Truman says he can't get qualified men to replace them.

Leaders on Capitol Hill and the aviation agencies say the answer is inadequate pay and the "abuse" which officials have to take nowadays from all sides. What amounts to a "strike" seems under way among competent civil airmen. They won't take the $10,000-a-year posts under present conditions.

Near Emergency Caused

Two events brought the situation to a head yesterday, creating a near emergency. Harllee Branch, 68-year-old Civil Aeronautics Board member, resigned, giving as reasons "the high cost of living in Washington" and the fact he is "quite tired."

Later, the Senate Armed Services Committee turned down the last of a series of presidential appeals that they approve special legislation permitting Maj. Gen. Laurence S. Kuter to be named CAB chairman and keep his Air Force status and pay of $15,144 a year.

Members of the group have said they feel that active military men should be kept in military posts and that the proposal would further aggravate the pay situation in the CAB. Many are opposed to appointing generals and admirals to civilian Government posts on principle.

Kuter a "Dead Duck"

Chairman Andrews (R., N. Y.) of the House Armed Services Committee, who visited the White House shortly after the Senate group's action, reported that Kuter's appointment was a "dead duck" and that Mr. Truman will have to find another man for the job.

Branch averted an emergency at the CAB by agreeing to stay on until May. His immediate departure would have left the policy-making air body without a quorum.

Clarence M. Young, a Republican, resigned last November to take a $17,500-a-year job in charge of the Los Angeles municipal airports. The President has offered the job to several men but has been unable to fill the post.

Then he failed to reappoint James M. Landis as chairman of the board. Landis' New Deal background, opposition from the airlines and reported inability to get along with other members are said to have been responsible.

Two other top civil air posts soon will be vacant. Theodore P. Wright, Civil Aeronautics Administrator, is leaving to become vice president of Cornell University in charge of research at a reported $20,000 a year.

His chief deputy, the veteran Charles I. Stanton, leaves the end of this month to head Brazil's civil air schools at about the same pay. Both officials now get $10,000 a year.

Only Two Remain on Board

Wright's post and the CAB jobs originally carried a $12,000 salary. Riders on appropriations now limit the latter to $10,000. Branch's resignation will leave only two members left on the five-man board—Acting Chairman Oswald Ryan and former Democratic Senator Josh Lee.

High-placed Government air officials attributed the situation to two main factors—the salary and the "beating" they say they take from the industry, the press and Congress.

"You have to take $100,000 worth of abuse for $10,000 a year," said one top Federal man who asked that his name not be used. "There's no more prestige to a high Government job. You get treated like a panhandler or chiseler on Capitol Hill and like a clerk by industry chiefs."

Many congressional leaders agreed with the pay complaint, and urged that the solution was to boost the salaries of CAB members and CAA chief to $15,000 a year.

"The pay is ridiculously small for the requirements of the job," said Senator Flanders (R., Vt.). "We can't expect to equal what such men would get in industry but we shouldn't make it impossible for them to accept such posts."

United Kingdom Doing 54% Of Known World Shipbuilding

London, Jan. 20 (NYHT).—The United Kingdom is now building 54.57 per cent of world shipping, according to statistics published today by Lloyd's Register of Shipping.

The statistics exclude figures on whatever ship construction is under way in Russia, Germany or Japan.

Merchant shipping being built in Britain and Northern Ireland at the end of the year totaled 2,183,361 tons gross, the highest figure since 1922.

The Lloyd's announcement pointed out, however, that the production rate in British shipyards is slower than prewar because of shortages of material and the like.

At the close of the year shipyard construction in leading producers throughout the forld was: France 295,389 tons; Sweden 261,605; Holland, 253,199; Italy, 219,922; British dominions, 200,055; United States, 135,852; Denmark, 134,638; and Spain 108,431.

Lloyd's said that the total under construction in the world apart from Russia, Germany or Japan, is 3,982,357 tons gross, of which 54.57 per cent is being built in Britain and Ireland.

Royal Couple Voted Stipend Of $200,000

London, Jan. 20 (AP).—The House of Commons approved by an overwhelming majority today annual allowances totaling 50,000 pounds ($200,000) for Britain's royal newlyweds, Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip.

A two-hour debate was enlivened by a suggestion from Laborite Emrys Hughes that Prince Philip would have gained more popularity with the English people if he had been assigned to the Ministry of Fuel and Power rather than to a desk in the Admiralty.

"I know of nothing that would have increased his popularity more than for him to have gone down in a mine," Hughes observed.

The measure calls for an increase from 15,000 ($60,000) to 40,000 pounds ($160,000) in Elizabeth's annual allowance and sets up a 10,000-pound ($40,000) annuity for her husband.

EASTERN'S New-Type CONSTELLATIONS

Here's what EASTERN Air Lines' Captains Say About

THE WORLD'S MOST MODERN AIRLINER

Captain Dick Merrill: There's nothing like The New-Type Constellation for speed. It's a real record breaker and can cruise easily at better than 300 miles an hour.

Captain Leo L. Willey: I've never flown anything that can touch The New Constellation for easy handling and control. Improved wing design and greater power make this possible.

Captain John R. Armstrong: That 10,000 horsepower makes a big difference in dependability. The New-Type Constellation tops them all. There's nothing to equal it!

Captain Leo C. Clancy: It's the smoothest riding plane ever. The air-conditioning, roomy interiors and vibration-proof cabin add up to solid comfort. It's my idea of the best.

Captain E. W. Chandler: Its terrific power beats them all for climbing quickly to high altitudes. That means a more comfortable flight—smooth flying all the way!

Captain Robert O. Chew: The addition of an extra crew member, a Flight Engineer, adds greatly to passenger comfort on these fast high-altitude planes.

Nine months ago Eastern took delivery of the first of our deluxe fleet of New-Type Constellations.

This wonderful new airliner exceeded our highest expectations with its great power and speed. But only time would tell how The New-Type Constellation would perform in actual scheduled flight.

Today after 300,000,000 passenger miles of continuous service, we are convinced and our passengers agree that The New-Type Constellation is the most dependable airliner in the world!

Recently, I asked our Eastern Air Lines' Captains for their frank opinion of The New-Type Constellations. Based on long experience in flying all types of transport aircraft, these men are well qualified to judge the performance of The New-Type Constellations.

Their comments prove conclusively that this great airplane is years ahead of competition in performance and luxury...by far the world's most powerful, most dependable and most modern airliner.

Building Enforcement

The decision of District officials to begin rigorous enforcement of the building code is an encouraging sign of their concern with an ugly situation. For example, although the law provides specific penalties for construction without a permit, the prevailing practice when such violations have been discovered has been merely to require the builder to cease work until a permit has been obtained. That, of course, was thoroughly dangerous. It invited contempt for the law—obvious in estimates of illegal construction which run as high as 25 per cent of the total. The disclosures of the Empire Building investigation, and the charges made by Assistant Corporation Counsel King about the way in which the law has been disregarded, made all the more important a revision of lackadaisical inspection procedure.

To be sure, there will have to be more than the cooperation of police and the corporation counsel's office if the change is to be fully effective. Some of the trouble has been in the red tape surrounding the issue of permits, with applicants complaining of a run-around in the District Building. The basic shortage is personnel. The new District budget makes provision for 20 new employes in the building inspection department. This should aid in simplifying permit procedure and at the same time should help remedy such deficiencies as the all too obviously perfunctory inspection of building alterations. The most important change that can be effected, however, is psychological. As in all cases in which law violations are tacitly condoned, nonenforcement has brought disrespect. If builders and contractors know that District agencies will insist on prosecution for failure to adhere to regulations, that knowledge in itself will make them chary of evading permit requirements. There is no reason why a person who trifles with public safety in building construction should be treated any differently from a person who endangers safety with an automobile or in criminal offenses.

Dual Schools

Another body of distinguished citizens has pondered the problem of racial segregation in educational institutions and has come, like the President's Committee on Civil Rights before it, to the conclusion that the separate-but-equal doctrine is a fraud and a failure. The latest group to give testimony on this score is the President's Commission on Higher Education. In the second volume of its report, the commission declares: "The separate and equal principle has nowhere been fully honored. Educational facilities for Negroes in segregated areas are inferior to those provided for whites. Whether one considers enrollment, over-all costs per student, teachers' salaries, transportation facilities, availability of secondary schools, or opportunities for undergraduate and graduate study, the consequences of segregation are always the same, and always adverse to the Negro citizen." The Federation of Citizens Associations might usefully note that the District of Columbia is specifically included in this generalization.

The commission brings to bear on this problem an argument which may prove impressive to those who consider reference to the Declaration of Independence and other statements of American principle sheer idealism. The dual school system imposed by insistence upon segregation "increases the total cost and difficulty in making equivalent education accessible to all. A double system thus means an almost certain lessening of educational opportunity and a lowering for all of the quality of education. The more advanced the field of endeavor, the more wasteful and futile become attempts to justify a double system." Here is a lesson for the people of Oklahoma who propose to establish a whole new law school for Negroes in order to satisfy the Supreme Court's demand that they provide a legal education for Ada Lois Sipuel.

White students suffer in the quality of schools available to them because the prejudices of their parents make necessary wasteful duality. But, of course, the white students suffer in another more dangerous and damaging way. They suffer because the fact of segregation belies the doctrines they are taught in the white schools they attend. How are they to reconcile the observable fact of segregation with, say, the doctrine that all men are created equal? How are they to reconcile segregation with the knowledge that whites and Negroes died together without distinction in the service of their country? The cost of this discrepancy between principle and practice is certain to be a loss of faith in the essential values of the American society.

The report of the Secretary of Agriculture for the year 1947 is the chronicle of a truly impressive performance by America's farmers. Our total agricultural production, though down 5 per cent from 1946, was equal to the average of the five best years in our history. Americans continued to eat at a record level of consumption; yet during the 12 months ended last June 30 we exported more than 19 million long tons of grain and other food—more than any other nation had ever shipped abroad in a single year. We have become, for example, the world's largest wheat exporter as well as the world's largest wheat producer. Farm income in 1947 was nearly 30 billion dollars, and the increase in income more than offset the increase in farm costs. High commodity prices of course had an important bearing on agricultural output, but it would be ungenerous to credit them with the sole influence. The fact is that in the aggregate farmers have shown a keen sense of awareness of their vital part in meeting the world food crisis, and they have risen magnificently to the task.

The report sensibly does not concern itself with any specter of immediate surpluses. It notes that the food situation in many parts of the world is more serious now than during either of the last two seasons. Even such a problem child as cotton is in a relatively strong position today because of war depletion elsewhere. It is inconceivable that there can be any such thing as an absolute surplus of most agricultural commodities, in terms of human need, within the foreseeable future. Nonetheless, the report cautions, the war-borne bonanza to American agriculture is bound to slacken as foreign production is restored. To maintain our own production at one third higher than prewar, we shall require "sustained domestic employment plus a soundly financed world trade." In other words, we shall need not only a long-range plan for increasing domestic consumption, including research in new uses for agricultural commodities, but also increased emphasis on practical means of reconciling world production with unfulfilled world demand through such agencies as the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations.

Significantly, in this connection, the report estimates that after world recovery is accomplished we shall want export markets for 8 per cent of our total food supply as compared with 3 per cent before the war. This means, basically, that we shall have to contrive a way of getting dollar purchasing power into the countries that need it other than through loans and gifts. The report recognizes frankly that we shall have to absorb more imports. Mr. Baruch, in his plea for a global strategy, suggested the need for a vast program of stockpiling as a program separate from but integrated with the Marshall Plan, and this is likewise in the mind of Secretary Anderson, who also refers to the dollars that will be made available to foreigners from such services as American tourist expenditures.

On one subject, the need for soil conservation, the report might have placed even more emphasis than it does. Our civilization depends upon our soil no less than upon our institutions. Despite increasing conservation practices, the destruction through erosion of our most priceless material resource, arable land, is continuing at an alarming rate. The danger is aggravated by the current great demand for food and the consequent use of marginal land which ought not to be under cultivation. Essentially what is needed is a more immediate way of enforcing conservation measures to supplement the laudable long-range and now largely inapplicable suggestion contained in the report of making price support payments contingent on soil conservation practices.

This problem of soil conservation makes even greater the need to husband our food resources during the coming year. For we shall need all the grain we can produce for export to create a favorable climate for the other recovery measures in the Marshall Plan. With wheat prospects some 200 million bushels under last year, and an indication that the cycle of bumper crops may be coming to an end, the key to our grain exports will be the 1948 corn crop, for this will determine how much wheat can be sent abroad. Prompt congressional action to extend grain-allocation powers to cover all industrial users can go a long way toward insuring that what gain we do have will go where it will do the most good.

St. Lawrence Seaway

When the Senate begins debating the Vandenberg resolution approving the agreement between the United States and Canada for development of the St. Lawrence Seaway, it will reopen a controversy which has had passionate adherents on both sides for many years. The fight has usually evoked more emotion than deliberation. But that is doubtless inevitable in the case of any project affecting so many varied interests as does this one. We can only hope that the Senate will cut through the special pleading and the barrages of propaganda that are coming from both sides and render a decision in keeping with the national interest.

Mayor O'Dwyer claims that the proposed seaway would take away from New York one third of its overseas traffic. Whether or not this estimate is well founded, the fact that some traffic between the Middle West and Europe will be shifted away from the bottleneck of New York is one major reason why the project has found favor in the eyes of a vast number of citizens. Far too much of the Nation's transatlantic traffic is dependent upon the facilities of one great port. Economically as well as from the viewpoint of national security we think it is desirable to improve and develop other channels of commerce. The argument for extending this waterway into the heart of the North American Continent to serve the great agricultural and industrial areas bordering on the Great Lakes is especially strong because of the advantages given to the seaboard areas several decades ago by the construction of the Panama Canal.

In addition, of course, the St. Lawrence project would make possible the generation of a vast amount of hydroelectric power. The plan calls for generators with a capacity of 2,200,000 horsepower at Barnhart Island in the International Rapids section of the river. No doubt the Senate will give careful attention to complaints that this power would not be available in winter because of ice conditions and low run-off from the Great Lakes. There are many technical aspects of the project that call for scrutiny. We have little doubt, however, that the project will be approved on grounds of high policy. The St. Lawrence treaty previously negotiated with Canada failed to obtain the necessary two-thirds vote for ratification in 1934, but it won 46 favorable votes to 42 negative ones. The resolution now awaiting action will require only a majority vote, for it was negotiated under the terms of a treaty already in effect. Moreover, Senator Vandenberg and other sponsors have added a proviso to the effect that the deep-water navigation works should be made self-liquidating by charging reasonable tolls. Allocation of materials for construction of the seaway will have to be carefully weighed against other demands and our commitments under the European Recovery Plan. But the arguments for ratifying the agreement at this time are unquestionably strong.

Europa

The secretary general of the European Parliamentary Union, Count Richard Coudehove-Kalergi, who has been the spearhead of peaceful pan-Europeanism for a full quarter century, is back in this country with the assertion that if the Marshall Plan is to succeed Europe must federate. He cannot be gainsaid. Integration, which is the forerunner of federation, is the object of the Marshall Plan, being looked upon as the only insurance against Operation Rathole. It was pledged in the report of the 16 nations that came out of the Paris conference. But the aim was getting lost to sight till Bernard M. Baruch and John Foster Dulles pinned it over the charts of the Marshall hearings. In Europe, the hope is in countless hearts. Once a voice in the wilderness, Count Coudenhove-Kalergi now finds his movement voiced in many languages. It is burgeoning so lustily that the initiative cannot long be delayed by one or other of the government heads. They seem to be waiting for an occasion. Perhaps Mr. Bevin will sound a tocsin in the Commons debate beginning this weekend.

If this should be the event, the European Parliamentary Union exists as a model and a framework for a European federal government. Its members are members of western European parliaments; they represent, however, not governments but peoples. The Washington Post commented some time ago on the astonishing measure of support for the idea of European union to be found in the several parliaments of the Continent, polled in November, 1946. In September, 1947, a European Parliamentary Conference was held at Gstaad, Switzerland. That conference appealed to all members of European parliaments to use their influence with governments and with peoples (1) to set up a European Regional Group in conformity with Article 52 of the U. N. Charter; (2) to "constitute a commonwealth under the name of United States of Europe, embracing all states that are ready to join and aiming at the inclusion of all of Europe," and (3) to call a constituent assembly charged with the drafting of a federal constitution.

Let no one dismiss these ideas as merely visionary. As far back as 150 years ago George Washington himself looked to their realization. Writing to General Lafayette, he said, "We have sowed the seeds of liberty and union that will spring up everywhere upon earth. One day, taking its pattern from the United States, there will be founded the United States of Europe." But neither the predisposition nor the spur was felt till after Europe had undergone its second blood bath and then found itself in the shadow of the Slav heel. In these circumstances a lead would turn the idea of federation into a great force—a force bearing within it a truly millennial change which may supply the balance of power the lack of which is keeping the world in the zone of war.

THE JEWEL

Out of the core of this deep-seething fire,
From molten elements a gem is born;
Earth's treasures all are barren and forlorn
Beside this jewel of my great desire,
Thus do I know fulfillment, rich attire
Is mine; now gladly, gladly am I shorn
Of lesser gems wherewith I might adorn
Myself, and thus toward beauty might conspire.

Now am I lighted with a radiant flame,
Yielding a matchless glory all its own;
More than the star-girt sapphire could impart
More than the earth-bound diamond could claim,
For all their gleaming splendor is but stone—
My jewel is your love within my heart!

Veterans' Subsistence

Perhaps I have misinterpreted the intention of Congress in its present stand in the veterans' subsistence affair, but the language spoken leads me to believe it to be a direct insult to the veteran. To say that the appearance of several veteran students before the Congress, or the requests from others for an increase in the subsistence allotment, are Communist-led or even Communist-inspired, is hardly fair.

Through the past two years, the veteran attending school under Public Laws 346 or 16 has witnessed the dwindling purchasing value of his subsistence allotment. Prices rose, and apparently from all reports and forecasts, will continue to rise in the coming year. Under these conditions, the veteran has found the road to education increasingly difficult; some have been forced to forgo their plans and leave school; others must work, but it is not feasible to attempt to serve two masters at any one instant and do justice to either.

I feel that the accusation that this is a Communist led or inspired movement is an attempt to discredit the veterans' appeal in the eyes of the public. This is no organized movement; it should not be shouted down and smeared with the label of Communist, but be given the attention it merits.

JOHN A. WILLISON.

In your paper of January 15, there was an article stating that Representative Vail's House Subcommittee on Un-American Activities found four students from "Operation Subsistence" were "housed by persons with left-wing ideas." This is, to put it mildly, an unfortunate turn of events. Whether or not the group was backed by "left-wingers," a good cause has been tainted and as a result millions of democratic students will suffer.

To say that inflation is with us is obvious. To expect a man to support a wife and possibly one or two children on $90 a month is ridiculous. To claim that $65 a month is adequate for the room and board and expenses of a single man is unreasonable.

This country has made an investment—a very sound investment in its own future. In order that it pay off, subsistences must be raised. If the original ideas behind the Bill of Rights are to be carried out the bill must be passed without delay.

Clegg Case

I was shocked to learn of the attitude of Major Barrett, the chief of police, in regard to the Clegg case. If there ever was a clear cut case of lawlessness on the part of the police, this is it.

There is no dispute that Clegg was arrested and held incommunicado for at least 34 hours without charge; that no misdemeanor had been committed in the presence of the arresting officer and that there was no reasonable ground to believe that he had committed a felony at the time Clegg was taken to the precinct.

In the face of the foregoing, the police held Clegg for 34 hours and the chief of police congratulated them for so doing on the theory that it is the duty of policemen to prevent crime. Perhaps Major Barrett would fill the jails with everybody to make certain that nobody is on the streets to commit crime. Any law enforcement officer who has the wanton disregard for and disdain of the constitutional rights of citizens can never enjoy their respect and confidence.

The Washington Post's part in the Clegg case gives off a foul odor. Everything about it discredits The Post.

The policemen, professionals in the anything but dainty work of running down lawbreakers and protecting the public from queer, twisted and sometimes desperate characters, grabbed Clegg with absolutely sound grounds for doing so. They probably jerked him around a little. What should they have done? Should they have hung back on the technicality of no warrant, or sacrosanct personal rights, while he breathed down the neck of a frightened waitress on her way to work? Should they have honored Clegg's right to loiter in dark doorways in preference to eating his lunch and turned their backs? Or should they have tapped him politely on the shoulder and rolled out a carpet for him to enter the precinct station? A. J. KORMAN.

Daylight Saving

Here is the one good reason for daylight-saving time in the District, for Senator George W. Malone's information: A majority of the residents happen to want it because we like it. Let Senator Malone help run the affairs of Nevada, and let us run our own here.

Compulsory Religion

Hats off to the Catholic GIs who quit Baldwin Wallace College rather than attend compulsory Methodist services. No college which is tax-exempt and which gets GI business should be permitted to force students at the expense of their credits to attend any religious service except on an absolutely voluntary basis. The mere fact that a college administration has tucked away in small print a chapel requirement in its sales catalogues should not enter the case.

The Veterans' Administration should investigate the situation throughout the country, and especially here in Washington, to make sure that religion courses are not compulsory. The GI Bill of Rights was written to aid veterans, not to endow colleges, public, private or sectarian. No college where religious exercises are compulsory for GI students should be on VA's list or be on any State tax-exempt list.

D. C. Sales Tax

Will dissenters be liable to arrest for resisting the impending sales tax? I, for one, will pay a soak-the-poor nuisance tax in Washington when I can vote in Washington.

If more tax money is needed, I suggest that the tax be levied on rents collected from substandard housing, payable by the owner, or on restrictive covenants payable by the signers. Slum landlords and other housing profiteers are already sufficiently represented.

Progress In Reverse

It is both encouraging and a sense amusing to detect in your columns from time to time faint indications of lack of faith in the inevitable forward march of modern scientific progress and all that. Now in general I believe it to be true that the average "civilized" and "educated" American is well bound in the superstition that by virtue of new scientific discoveries and the rapid development and spread of new machines of production, distribution, entertainment, etc., and related scientific techniques, modern man is moving steadily toward higher and higher states of civilization and betterment. But occasionally during all the self-congratulatory blather about modern progress, a few iconoclasts lift their voices and refer embarrassingly to such evidences of decline and degeneration as a declining birth rate, the disappearance of the free farmer possessing his own land, the disappearance of the family and the appearance of deserted homesteads and of homesteads populated by aged people only, the rise of a rural proletariat, the growth of monopoly, and the appearance of that pitiful spectacle, the apartment house city.

One could go on and talk about the rise of the collectivist or servile state, but that should be obvious. Now although I do not consider The Washington Post to be an iconoclastic or revolutionary institution, it is pleasing to see a note of skepticism regarding the modern industrial triumphs and an occasional hint of what is wrong. Thus for instance we see in The Washington Post of April 20, 1947, an editorial, entitled "Population Again," setting forth the view of Dr. O. E. Baker, of the University of Maryland and well-known as a population expert, regarding the impending population decline and family disintegration.

In The Washington Post of October 19, 1947, you treated the public to a peek at a much-ignored theory of society known as distributism or decentralism expounded in England by people like Gilbert K. Chesterton, Hilaire Belloc, and Lord Northbourne and in America by Dr. Ralph Borsodi, Dr. Willis Nutting, and numerous others. In general this theory eschews collectivism or socialism as the way out of the mess that industrial capitalism is making of the life of man and advocates a return to the land by large numbers of people and the restoration of property to the many.

On January 15 an editorial, entitled "Farm Heritage," mentions the finding of Ohio State University psychologists regarding the superiorities of rural versus urban childhood. And it is not inappropriate to mention a recent news story telling of the report of the National Research Council's food and nutrition board that the process used in bleaching the bulk of our white flour may be causing nervous disorders. In this last connection I suggest that your readers examine the finding of Dr. Weston Price in his book, Nutrition and Physical Degeneration, the reports and books of the Lee Foundation for Nutritional Research, Milwaukee, and the publications of Dr. Borsodi for a few uncomfortable facts about modern methods of food processing.

The reason that slight signs of unfaith in inevitable modern progress and in superiority of our culture over simpler cultures amuse me is that such disillusionment seems to move by such a circuitous route. A simple illustration may help my point. You do not need a laboratory experiment to know that modern methods of milling flour are absurd. All you have to do is to go to the mill and see what happens to the wheat. Or compare methods of agriculture used by the Amish people with the expensive and unproductive practices of so-called scientific farming subsidized by the Department of Agriculture.

Eric Gill once wrote an essay entitled "It All Goes Together." The disappearance of soil fertility, the decline of population, the disappearance of the farmer, the disappearance of the small community, the disappearance of folk art and culture, the disappearance of natural foods, accompanied by the appearance of deserts, the increase in disrupted families, the appearance of the factory farm, the appearance of the apartment house city (e. g. Fairlington), the appearance of the juke box and television, and the development of malnutrition on a full stomach—they all go together.

Rationing And Politics

By Malvina Lindsay

Meat Mystery

MOST MEMBERS of Congress would like a court magician or even a psychiatrist to tell them this: How, come summer, will an average housewife react to the stimuli of a skimpy butcher's counter and price tags that drive her to buying bologna?

One great political conundrum of the future is how people will behave when meat becomes so scarce and expensive that only the top dowager trade can afford it. Senator Ralph E. Flanders of Vermont, exponent of ration preparedness, believes a cry will be raised for rationing, and he would have the machinery ready. President Truman has asked for standby rationing and price controls.

However, many opponents of rationing declaim that free Americans will never submit to such a "regimented, communistic, totalitarian, police state" measure. Other legislators, not so certain are worried. They fear an angry public, its mouth watering for the steak to which it became accustomed in wartime prosperity, will look for a scapegoat. There is no OPA now to fill the role. Congress and the President are the most available candidates. Since by summer the election campaign will be getting lively, there is a good chance the scapegoat may get a party label.

SINCE political and stomach emotions seem destined to mix in the coming election, it would help candidates to know if the public will become as vociferous to have controls instituted as it was in the late summer of 1946 to have them removed. There are several schools of thought as to what will happen.

One, on the cynical side, argues thus: Certainly, people will set up a big howl for action as meat gets scarcer and more expensive. They will want somebody to do something no matter what. Most of those who yelled the loudest for controls to be taken off will be crying equally loud for them to be put on.

Another viewpoint is that the fight on rationing and controls in 1946 was so effective that no loud outcry will be raised for their return. Also, according to this viewpoint food controls have been so well linked up with the Communist scare that many Americans will be willing to eat hamburgers rather than risk letting Stalin get a bureaucratic foothold here.

Still another view is that there will be no mass cry, but plenty of effective pressure from consumers groups and labor and women's organizations. This view also holds that those who wanted controls off believed prices would adjust quickly — as they had been promised. Many of these, it is believed, are disillusioned housewives who now, poorer and wiser, will demand a fair share—at a fair price—of whatever meat there is.

THE STRIKING shift of opinion on controls that occurred in the summer of 1946 makes predictions on next summer risky. Public approval of OPA, according to Gallup polls, was strong virtually throughout the war. In May, 1946, from two thirds to four fifths of voters wanted controls continued. By late summer as meat got scarcer through producers' holdbacks and the enfeeblement of the OPA, a wave of criticism developed. By October, 53 per cent of voters wanted meat decontrolled. Feeling against controls was also intensified by the political campaign. And the let-down that followed VJ-Day, together with the general longing to get back to prewar living, contributed to this rebellion.

What mood meat eaters will be in this spring and summer depends on the general economic situation and on the type of political warfare that develops. Most low income people have already been rationed out of meat by high prices. If inflation is still ripping, the squeeze on pocketbooks up the line is likely to cause vigorous calls for action where inflation pinches most—food. But such response might be politically sidetracked if opponents of European rehabilitation could succeed in diverting the blame to the "feeding of foreigners" and in making the Marshall Plan take the old whipping boy role.

History Against UMT

Our patriots who are always referring to the example of the fathers ignore the latter's opposition to compulsory military service or training. It might have been a good thing in the Revolutionary War, which was so poorly supported that Washington exclaimed in dismay: "If I could have foreseen this, no consideration on earth could have induced me to accept this command." But despite the fact that only 1 in 200 of the population volunteered, the fathers refused to resort to conscription.

When the War of 1812 was lapsing into a disgraceful fiasco the Twelfth Congress attempted to enlist minors of 18 years without the consent of their parents. Josiah Quincy led the opposition, saying: "The difficulty is that men cannot be enlisted. The remedy proposed is more money and legalistic authority to corrupt our youth. . . . It is the moral motive in which you are deficient. . . . Take a slave from his master and there would be an earthquake from the Potomac to the St. Marys. . . . But pass this law, and if the Legislatures of the injured States do not come down upon your recruiting office with the old laws against kidnaping and man stealing, they are false to themselves."

The Senate struck out the clause to enlist minors. The fathers whom we ignorantly supplicate risked annihilation in 1776 and in 1812 rather than conscript a single soldier.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Billions For Defense

AMERICAN strategic planning is still hag-ridden by the debate between the air and sea power advocates. In a nutshell, the air power spokesmen insist that the air arm is the real guarantee of American security, and the admirals reply that this is all very true, provided the air arm is partly controlled by the Navy. And this squabble over air and naval roles and missions is still preventing the Joint Chiefs of Staff from discharging their primary function, which is to prepare an agreed, over-all strategic plan for the United States.

There is nothing new in this failure of the Joint Chiefs, which has endured since the end of the war. There is novelty, however, in the proposals and arguments of the admirals. And these are also singularly interesting in the context of the present congressional and world situations.

Very briefly, the sea power spokesmen admit that the atomic bomb and other airborne weapons of total destruction are the heart of the modern offensive. But they argue that these weapons of total destruction cannot be delivered by land-based aircraft over the great ranges of intercontinental warfare, against modern air defenses. War planning must obviously chiefly involve a possible future conflict with the Soviet Union. The admirals correctly point out that there are very few bases around the Soviet periphery which will be available for use by swifter, less vulnerable bombers of shorter range.

The admirals argue, therefore, that a great battleship Navy is necessary, in order to seize and hold such bases. And they also argue that the Navy must also use its vessels as supplemental mobile air bases, capable of taking on part of the job of strategic bombing in any future war. For this purpose the admirals wish to build gigantic new carriers, capable of launching very high-speed bombers big enough to deliver atomic bombs. It is reported that the tentative proposal is for flush-deck carriers of about 80,000 tons, which would cost in the neighborhood of 200 million dollars apiece.

THE AIR POWER advocates reply to the admirals that the available land bases may be few and insecure, but that the insecurity of the Navy is still greater. Obviously the big new carriers would be terribly vulnerable to air attack. Then, too, by the end of the war the Germans had completed and tested a new, high-speed submarine of great range, with virtually complete defense against radar detection. Under the guise of reparations, the Soviet secured virtually all the installations used by the Germans in building this submarine. They also secured over 150 of the submarines in disassembled form.

It is known that the disassembled submarines have now been assembled. It is known that new submarines are being built. And it is known that almost all the leading German scientists and engineers who worked on this revolutionary underwater craft are now under contract to the Soviets.

In short, these submarines are the unseen, but extremely dangerous weapon of Soviet sea power. Furthermore, the naval tacticians frankly admit that great naval forces will be defenseless against this form of attack, unless and until some system of detection can be devised to overcome the new submarines' radar-proofing. But while the admirals agree to this mote in the Navy's eye, they reply in kind to the air-power men. It is also known the Soviets got the men and equipment for building the German high-speed, high-altitude jet fighter, which is a grim threat to attacking aircraft. In fact, the display of superior fighter strength at the most recent Red Army Day celebration amazed and horrified American expert observers. Thus the debate goes on.

THIS DEBATE has very practical meaning for the Senators haggling over the European recovery program. In the first place, the debate discloses that we shall be much less secure than most Americans suppose, if and when we let the rest of the world go smash. Even in this present brief interlude, when the weapons of total destruction are still probably an American monopoly, it is infantile to assume that "we'll be all right whatever happens, because we've got the bomb."

In the second place, the debate in the Joint Chiefs gives a pleasant notion of the cost of genuine security in a world arrayed against the United States by the Soviets. Obviously, in this situation, air, ground and naval forces will all have to be built up to maximum strength; and the inclusion of a few new carriers at 200 million dollars apiece will then be only a trifling item in the new defense budget. A qualified expert among the American planners has placed the minimum American defense budget in a world gone to smash at between 40 and 50 billion dollars annually.

That makes the appropriations of the European recovery program look pretty trivial. But the great men of the Congress now seem to have revised the famous old brag. Nowadays, the watchword is no longer, "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute." It is, rather, "Billions for defense, but not one cent to save ourselves."

Murphy Opens Own Defense

here with your company and up the hell where you belong. I'm tired of you faking around here."

Denial by Fireman

When he testified for the prosecution last week, Cummins said Murphy's language was far stronger than this. Cummins also denied he was attempting to shirk his duty.

Earlier, the fire chief flatly denied using violent language to Battalion Chief Gilbert A. Cole in the presence of Cole's men about July 15, 1946, when he allegedly said Cole left a firehouse in a "pigpen" condition.

Speaking in a loud, positive voice which boomed across the Municipal Center trial board room, Murphy more than held his own in several sharp exchanges with Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, the prosecutor, which sometimes brought laughter from spectators.

Once, while Murphy moved a blackboard on which he was sketching a fire scene, Civilian Trial Board Chairman Austin F. Canfield called out:

"That's what I want to do," answered Murphy.

Charges against Murphy yesterday were reduced from 10 to 9 when the board unanimously granted a motion by Defense Counsel Martin F. O'Donoghue to dismiss a charge that Murphy was disorderly at the Joy Inn, 609 H st. nw., on September 14, 1946.

Canfield said Maher had "utterly destroyed" the testimony of the key witness, George Moy, proprietor of the restaurant, by making a plea of "surprise" when Moy's courtroom testimony failed to agree with a previous affidavit.

At that time, Canfield told Maher, he could have used the alternative of "refreshing the witnesses' memory" by confronting him with the affidavit. Maher argued unsuccessfully that he had salvaged some of the testimony by having the witness later modify his statements on the witness stand.

But this, the board ruled, was nullified because it was done during the course of "impeaching" questions.

In the incident involving Battalion Chief Cole, Murphy denied he even visited Cole's company at the time specified, and produced the company books to show no record of such a visit which, he said, is normally entered.

When Murphy took the stand for the first time yesterday, he testified that he served in the Fire Department for nearly 29 years, was second in the examination for sergeant, and at the top of Civil Service lists for promotion to lieutenant and captain.

During the war he was chief air raid warden here, and among his other accomplishments was compilation of the department's first drill manual. Even Murphy's most severe critics have not challenged his personal firefighting ability.

In addition to the five "abusive language" counts against him, others include two charges of intoxication, a charge of irregular use of an ambulance and the broad charge of demoralizing the department through a personnel rotation system.

Defense Counsel O'Donoghue said Murphy will take the stand when testimony begins on each count. O'Donoghue said he will later invite the civilian trial board to make a "Cook's Tour" of the Fire Department.

The trial will be resumed today at 10 a. m.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Baruch's Second Warning

IN THE MIDST of the political contest over tax reduction, Bernard M. Baruch has uttered some sobering common sense. It should make even the political fishermen baiting their hooks for the election next November stop and reconsider.

Childs

To begin with, Baruch is opposed to any tax reduction for two years. But he would go further than that and restore half of the wartime excess-profits tax. To compensate somewhat for this move, he would allow industry to write off the cost of new plant, for tax purposes, at the accelerated wartime rate.

The Republicans are trying to persuade enough Democrats to go along with the Knutson tax cut so that it can be passed over President Truman's veto. Therefore, instead of the $5,600,000,000 cut proposed by the Knutson bill in the House, the final reduction when the Senate gets through with it will be perhaps a billion dollars less. The theory behind this seems to be that a little more inflation, although not quite as much as Chairman Knutson wants, won't do us any harm. For no one can be so self-deluded as to believe that a tax cut will not certainly send the spiral of prices and wages shooting up even higher.

The success of any European recovery plan is directly related to the strength of the American economy. That was the point which Baruch stressed again in his statement, and it cannot be repeated often enough. Another boom-and-bust cycle would render the Nation powerless to extend help beyond our shores. It would create such confusion and uncertainty that the country would be impotent.

THAT IS WHY it is so important to consider steps that can be taken while there is still time. Baruch proposed as a first step that farmers agree to a "major cut" in present agricultural prices in return for a guarantee that they can sell all their crops at the price set for the next three years.

This would mean a roll-back in food prices. Labor would then be asked to hold the wage line. At the same time, production would be increased, business would take smaller profits, more commodities would be imported, and the fight against inflation would move forward on a uniform point.

Does this sound like Utopia? In the midst of the present grab-bag to see who can get the most, it does. On both sides of the political fence, however, there are enough responsible men sincerely interested in checking the inflationary spiral, if only there were not others with louder voices determined to make political capital out of the desperate race between wages and prices.

Baruch asked the members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to make plain to the world what we were proposing to do. It is not just a relief plan. It is a measure to reconstruct western Europe, and it follows therefore that the United States must guarantee western Europe against aggression. There is little point in shoring up a part of the world vital to our security and then seeing it go down before aggressors bent on world domination.

THE IMPORTANT thing is to make this clear right now. Other nations, Russia in particular, should understand American intentions beyond a shadow of a doubt.

That was the chief tragedy of the '30s. Hitler and his henchmen were convinced that America was so divided and so inherently isolationist that there need be no limits on the ultimate expansion of fascism. And a footnote to history is worth recording.

In 1938, Baruch returned from Europe convinced that Nazi Germany meant world conquest. In an interview on the White House steps he said something like that, urging the United States to take the necessary steps toward preparedness and to make American intentions unmistakably clear.

Promptly Baruch was called a warmonger. All the resources of the Nazi propaganda machine in every part of the world were turned on to drown out his words and to persuade the timid that any preparedness would antagonize the dictators and therefore lead to war. The warning was lost in the continuing quarrel over what our intentions really were.

Within the framework of the United Nations the countries of western Europe can form a regional pact of assistance. The United States should state beyond any possibility of misunderstanding that this country would come to the aid of those nations in the event of aggression against them. That is perfectly legitimate U. N. procedure.

In that way no one will be able to mistake American intentions. It will have been made crystal clear that this country has a permanent and vital interest in the independence of western Europe.

Indian Veterans Get 20% Pension Increase

President Truman yesterday signed a bill increasing by 20 per cent the pensions of Indian war veterans and their dependents, effective March 1.

Waxey Gordon Denies Part In Steel Deal

New York, Jan. 20 (AP).—"Waxey" Gordon, prohibition era baron, said today, "I don't know nothing" about a purported $9,590,000 deal to purchase control of the Follansbee Steel Corp.

Gordon, subpenaed for questioning under the name of Irving Wexler, was questioned today by the State attorney general's office.

Attorney General Nathaniel L. Goldstein's investigation stemmed from a purported deal to purchase 183,000 shares of Follansbee stock at $50 a share. The market price of the issue at that time was more than $10 below that figure. The offer was withdrawn shortly afterward.

The New York Stock Exchange reported today that the short interest in Follansbee Steel was 6575 shares on January 15, an increase of 3215 shares over December 15.

A. Terry Fahye has been arrested on a charge of violating the business law of New York—a misdemeanor—and has been released in $5000 bail.

Goldstein described Fahye as a man of multiple identity, and at the root of the deal. Goldstein said that as a Bennett-Fey, Fahye was enjoined in 1939 from any brokerage activities in New York State.

Bay State May Lift Ban On Rhode Islanders

Boston, Jan. 20 (AP).—It is now up to the Massachusetts Senate to decide whether Rhode Islanders may legally cross the State line into Massachusetts.

After 310 years of technically keeping Rhode Islanders out of the State, the House today approved a resolve to annul the action of the general court in 1638 which forbade any "inhabitant of Providence plantations" to come into Massachusetts on pain of arrest or conviction.

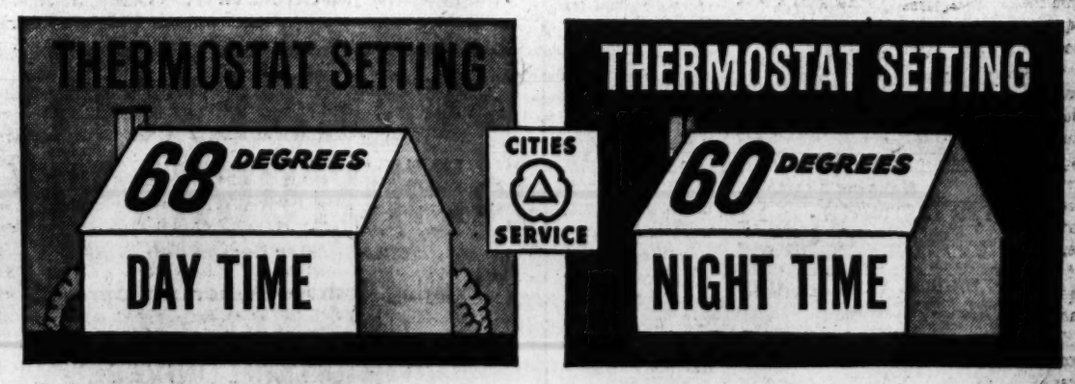
FUEL OIL USERS

The time to Conserve fuel oil is right now



Despite record production critical demand requires 15% saving immediately

NEVER BEFORE in the history of the oil industry have the oil companies produced as much fuel oil as now. Yet never before has the demand been as great. The situation is so critical that you and your neighbors may have cold homes unless everyone cooperates now to reduce fuel oil consumption by 15%.

5 Ways to Save 15%

1. Keep thermostat at 68—never more than 70 degrees during daytime and not more than 60 degrees during sleeping hours at night.
2. Close off all unused rooms.
3. Keep shades drawn and Venetian blinds closed wherever possible, as these act as effective insulators.
4. Clean and adjust your heating plant to assure maximum efficiency.
5. Install storm windows and insulate.

Also, if you anticipate a delivery of fuel oil, please be sure that your driveway is open and that the fill pipe to your fuel tank is ready to receive a new supply. This saves valuable time and speeds up delivery to all customers.

Schwellenbach Called Biased place where you can't have picketts . . . I can see the Communist papers of France and Italy printing pictures showing pickets in front of the Labor Department . . . saying 'this is the way workers are treated by the Labor Department of the United States.'"

Closing Termed "Lockout"

After the hearing, Hoffman told reporters he was convinced there was no authority for closing the Labor Department cafeteria. It was then he said that Schwellenbach had taken "a CIO position."

Hoffman termed the closing of the cafeteria a "lockout"—a violation of the Taft-Hartley Act—despite Schwellenbach's testimony that the cafeteria had been closed after the strike began.

Interior Undersecretary Chapman testified briefly concerning futile requests to Fleming that the Interior cafeteria be closed. He said both he and Interior Secretary Julius A. Krug felt such closing would have prevented "present difficulties" on the picket lines.

Then, for more than 15 minutes, he was questioned about connections with several organizations alleged to be Letfist.

Chapman's Past Questioned

Representative Wint Smith (R., Kans.) asked if Chapman had ever been affiliated with the Southern Conference for Human Welfare, the American League for Peace and Democracy, the American League Against War and Fascism, National Council for American-Soviet Friendship and the Society of Soviet Russia Today.

No Intimations Intended

Chapman admitted he had been a sponsor of an organization for American-Soviet friendship and arranged a testimonial dinner for Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson for the Southern Conference for Human Welfare. He denied knowledge, however, of any connection with the others.

Hoffman assured Chapman no intimations were intended by the questioning, remarking: "That ought to clear the record."

Representative O. C. Fisher (D., Tex.), the third committee member, had no such assurance for officials of Local 471 and its parent union, the United Public Workers of America. He said there was "quite a bit of evidence" of the Communist leanings of its officials.

Both Cross and Robert R. Ayers, GSI general manager, referred to the content of a report prepared for GSI and inserted in the Congressional Record by Representative Fred E. Busby (R., Ill.) which labeled UPW and Local 471 officers as pro-Communist.

Charles E. Sands, international representative for AFL bartenders, restaurant and hotel workers, testified at his own request. He said the AFL had recruited a "substantial" number of GSI workers and was ready to take over representation from CIO officials who, he said, had misled the workers into a strike over a "political issue." He said he could not tell exactly how many workers had signed up with his union.

Two Building Not Covered By GSI

The commitee ignored the closing of the Supreme Court cafeteria after hearing from Alan Jo'nstone, FWA general counsel, that Fleming has no authority over that building. The Supreme Court and the National Gallery of Art are not included in the 40 cafeterias covered by the contract between Public Buildings Administration and GSI for operation of the eating places.

The two nonstrikers arrested yesterday were Oliver L. Cromwell, 25, 4438 E st. se., and Harrison B. Sigmond, 25, 72 I st. se. They were arrested on a complaint of a striker, John Pendleton, 2612 Woodley pl. nw., at the FBI Building.

Pendleton told Judge George D. Neilson that Cromwell threatened him with a knife and Sigmond used a revolver in a threatening manner. After hearing Assistant United States Attorney Evan P. Davis declare that "no picket has a right to lay hands on anyone trying to go to work," Neilson released Cromwell and held Sigmond for trial February 12 on a concealed weapon charge.

Other Trials Scheduled

Neilson also set jury trials February 12 for eight other strikers arrested in picket line violence since the strike began January 5.

Hoffman said after the hearing yesterday that the committee would consider further evidence in its investigation before it makes a report. He expressed interest in the contract between GSI and the Government and its clause that requires a six-month notice before either party may terminate it. The contract stemmed from an agreement made about 10 years ago by Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, then in charge of public buildings and parks and now president of GSI as well as chairman of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

Issues Summarized In GSI Dispute

Local 471, which sought a 15-cents-an-hour raise, continues to claim it has about 90 per cent of GSI's 1450 original employes on the picket lines. GSI, which refused to negotiate a new contract until the non-Communist affidavits were filed, says it is maintaining, nearly normal service with the 1250 new workers it has hired. Shortly after the strike began, it handed out a 6½-cent raise to all who stayed on the job.

HENNY YOUNGMAN, whose drolleries have been copied by nitery funsters all over the world, is Club Cairo's new star. You should catch his new line of gags before they're nipped by all the emcees at large . . . That ingratiating eyeful and earful, Sarah Ann McCabe, also is at the Cairo. As are Steppers Sis and Sonny Arthur and the Lindsey Dancers . . . For your own dancing there's the fine Jerry Rodis band and the exceptionally artistic Art Calevas Trio . . . The Cairo is now serving $2 dinners — with the praise-worthy idea of making it possible for a fellow and his girl to enjoy dinner, dancing and a show for $10 or less.

Pierson Thal
In the Mayflower Lounge

Dona Mason fans will be rejoiced to hear that she'll be returning to the King Cole Room about February 1. Mildred Kirke has been doing a lovely chore of pinch-hitting in Dona's absence.

ROME AND NEW YORK MEET in the dance act of Artini and Consuelo now in the Mayflower Lounge. Artini was born in Rome, has danced in all the capitals of Europe and South America. On his first trip to New York he met Consuelo, native Manhattaner and ballet dancer. They blended their acts. The result is smoth and brilliant . . . Pierson Thal, new bandleader in the Mayflower Lounge, is acclaimed handsomely by local musicians who were much impressed by his radio work during his 44 months in the Army.

THE MOSTEST FUN around town in a musical way is being dished up by Deke Moffitt and his Little Red Caboosers in the Rainbow Room. Dressed like railroad men in striped overalls, the Caboosers wrassle their instruments and songs all over the place. They produce tunes from a case of Coca-Cola bottles, do a "Whisper Song" based on "Mrs. Hush," pep up numbers with old auto horns and a strange instrument that looks a little like an old-time parlor organ, but isn't. Between these pleasant spells of madness the boys sound off with excellent dance music.

Lois Soare, the pretty and pop publicity gal of the Wardman Park and Carlton, has resigned, is off to New York to carve out a new career for herself. She's wavering between magazine work and directing style shows.

PAGE CARDINI! Wally Dean, of the Casino Royal revue, has developed what looks like the last shuffle in card tricks. His marionette does those card and ciggie tricks first brought out by Cardini and now the stock in trade of every magico . . . Another astonishing interlude is provided by Jack "Jive" Schafer, who gets himself up in green tights to shout his own version of "Christopher Columbo."

THE ELEGANT DUFFYS. "My pet dance team," said Booker Jean Davis as Bill and Barbara Duffy came on at Lotus' "Twentieth Anniversary Party." The answer to Jean's partiality was self-evident. The Duffys—young, handsome, superbly costumed, tremendously able, of appealing personalities—they're as fine a dance team as you'll see cavorting in 1948. They're both dark, Bill a 6 feet plus and Barbara of more than magazine cover chic.

Pepco Awards Bond Issue; Priced 100.99

By S. Oliver Goodman

A group headed by White, Weld & Co. of New York and Salomon Bros. & Hutzler of New York was high bidder yesterday for 15 million dollars of Potomac Electric Power Co. bonds, offering 100.45097 with a 3 per cent coupon.

Cleared by the Securities and Exchange Commission late yesterday afternoon and approved by the local Public Utilities Commission, the bonds were to be reoffered publicly today at 100.99 to yield 2.9792 per cent.

The new Pepco first mortgage bonds, due in 1983, are the fifth of the series. The others all bear a 3¼ per cent coupon and mature from 1966 to 1977.

Seven other bids were opened yesterday by Pepco President Alfred G. Neal at the company's offices on the eighth floor of the E st. building. The bid spreads were narrow, attesting to the company's financial standing and the desirability of the issue.

A group headed by Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Inc., was second high with an offer of 100.30 for a 3 per cent coupon. Other bids were: Harriman Ripley & Co. 100.0899 for 3 per cent; Lehman Brothers 100.0813 for 3 per cent; Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., 100.0399 for 3 per cent; Kidder, Peabody & Co. jointly with Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane 102.651 for 3½ per cent; Glore Forgan & Co. 102.437 for 3½ per cent; First Boston Corp. 102.286 for 3½ per cent.

No local investment houses are associated with the successful bidding syndicate, it was learned.

Pepco common stock was the fifth most active issue yesterday in New York Stock Exchange trading, with 730,000 shares changing hands at 13⅛, off ⅛ point.

SALES RECORD: The Washington agency of Franklin Life Insurance Co. exceeded the four-million-dollar mark in new paid business last year, according to President Charles E. Becker. Local agency representatives have been invited to attend a celebration starting February 18, when an 11-story addition to the Franklin Life home office at Franklin, Ill., is dedicated.

MUNSEY ELECTS: Christopher H. Pope was reelected president of the Munsey Trust Co. and all other officers and directors were reelected at the annual meeting yesterday. In addition to Pope, officers are C. D. Ratcliffe, vice president and treasurer; A. J. Byrne, secretary and assistant treasurer; P. J. McMahon, vice president and assistant treasurer; R. D. Watkins, assistant treasurer; F. W. Stoever, real estate officer, and A. Harding Paul, general counsel. Directors: George H. Bollwinkel, Thomas W. Dewart, Walter G. Distler, Gilbert T. Hodges, Wallace W. Kirby, Arthur G. Lambert, Horace L. Lohnes, P. J. McMahon, A. Harding Paul, C. H. Pope, C. D. Ratcliffe, F. W. Stoever and Arthur L. Thompson.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Hulbert T. Bissell, senior vice president of the Riggs National Bank, has been named chairman in charge of arrangements for the next convention of the District Bankers Association at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. As such he is "in line" to become president of the association three years hence . . . Stanley J. O'Connor has been named manager of the newly reopened Washington office of Minnesota and Ontario Paper Co. . . . Linn H. Enslow of Chicago has been named president of the American Water Works Association.

ODD LOTS: Washington Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants, will meet tonight in Hotel Lafayette to hear Representative William T. Byrne . . . Association of American Railroads estimated that rail operating revenues increased 24.1 per cent in December, compared with like 1946 month. Rise reflected the 10 per cent temporary freight rate increase and a temporary 25 per cent boost in mail pay rates . . . Fire losses of $692,635,000 in 1947 were 23 per cent higher than the previous year and were the greatest in United States history, according to the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

CORRECTION: Washington deliveries on new passenger cars and trucks totaled 2494 in December, not 4494 as erroneously reported in a news story on January 17. The total for 1947 was 26,439.

ROUNDTABLE: Washington Chapter, Society for the Advancement of Management, will sponsor roundtable discussions tonight and tomorrow night. Good human relations will be discussed tonight and field communications in the Federal Government will be scrutinized tomorrow night. Both sessions, starting at 7:30 p. m., will be held at the Federal Personnel Council, 1626 K st. nw.

Redskins Trade Rights to Conerly for Livingston

FUN, AND LOTS OF IT—When the Mount St. Mary's basketball team of Emmittsburg, Md., comes to town there always is a lot of fun. They lost a game to Catholic University, 50-46, but the Mount St. Mary's boys carried off the honors in all-around entertainment. Left, Mary Lou Dougherty, a C. U. sophomore and only girl in the picture, receives the "Dugout" sign, returned to C. U. after being borrowed some time ago. The sign once hung over the refreshment counter at C. U. Roger Jackson is taking care of Pat, Mount St. Mary's mascot. Center, Frank Gantly, Mount St. Mary's junior, demonstrates the New Look as he drags a dummy (guess who) around the floor between halves. Right, the Mount St. Mary's boys whoop it up for dear old team. Later in the evening Mount fans threw a herring at the referee

Unidentified Player Also Thrown In By Giants

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

In a deal designed to strengthen their woeful pass defense, the Washington Redskins yesterday traded draft rights to Charley Conerly, All-America triple-threat at the University of Mississippi, to the New York Giants for Halfback Howie Livingston and draft rights to another player.

The additional player was not identified because he has another year of college eligibility.

No Regrets

There was no regret in the Redskin camp about giving up Conerly, called by some the greatest football player in the country and drafted by the local pros after the '46 season.

Monday the 'Skins signed Harry Gilmer, passing star from Alabama, and expressed belief the blond Alabaman will be all the replacement needed for the aging Sammy Baugh.

But Redskin officials were elated with the acquisition of Livingston.

In his four years with New York since leaving Fullerton Junior College, the 190-pound, 25-year-old performer has been a rock on pass defense.

In 1944 he led the National Football League in pass interceptions, and in seven games against the Redskins he's intercepted four of Baugh's passes.

Conerly Has Eligibility

In making the trade Giant President John Mara was apparently more confident than the Redskins of getting Conerly's name on a contract.

Conerly cannot be signed immediately, having a season's baseball eligibility left at Ole Miss, but already on the Giant roster are George (Barney) Poole, one of Conerly's favorite pass receivers as Mississippi took the '47 Southeastern Conference title, and Columbia's All-America Bill Swiacki.

Original discussion of today's transaction between Mara and Redskin President George Marshall came at the N. F. L. owners' meeting in New York last week.

Livingston, married with two children, will join his new teammates in Augusta from his home in Monte Bello, Calif.

WHAT THEATENED to be a hollow victory for the United States Olympic teams—over the hollow stomachs of underfed British and European athletes next summer—is now being put on a more wholesome basis. Americans are going to feed the 6000 athletes from all countries during the 17 days of the games in England.

POVICH

Without any fanfare, a meeting was held in New York two days ago, and plans for providing the 300 tons of staple foods required for the project were drawn up. The prime mover is Brig. Gen. John Kilpatrick, the old Yale, who is now president of Madison Square Garden and is working with the blessings of the United States Olympic Committee and the gratitude of Lord David Burghley, head of the British Olympic group.

Kilpatrick is appealing to American producers to make the meats and other foods available to the Olympic athletes who will be quartered in Britain, at the lowest prices, and estimates the cost of the entire feeding project will be less than $300,000. He has asked the nation's sports writers to sponsor events that will aid in raising the funds and has appointed Bob Considine as chairman of that group.

FOR KILPATRICK, it is a completely unselfish gesture at a time when he is somewhat enbroiled with the United States Olympic Committee. As head of the Garden, he is associated with the Amateur Hockey Association which the Olympic people charge is tinged with commercialism. The A.H.A. has been selected to represent the United States in Olympic hockey over the protests of the United States Olympic committee which threatens to withdraw all its teams from the winter games.

From Lord Burghley, who is remembered in the United States as the hurdle champion of a couple of decades ago, Kilpatrick has received complete endorsement of his offer to help Britain feed the athletes. "In a world which is so fraught with dissension, suspicion and lack of confidence, the great common denominator of true sportsmanship stands out like a beacon. Here at any rate is something in which all countries trust each other and have the same conception of what is meant not only by the letter of the rules but by their spirit, too.

"Such a gesture is truly Olympic," cabled Burghley when advised of the helping hand that America was extending to hungry Europe.

THE GAMES were threatening to be no contest, with the steak-fed American athletes competing against Europeans who were struggling against an emaciation diet. The weekly British meat ration added up to what was tantamount to two hamburgers per week. The two ounces of bacon the Briton gets per week wouldn't satisfy a husky American as a side order with his eggs on any given morning.

It puts America in a better light at a time when this country with its Marshall Plan is trying, at high cost, to sell American good will to Europe. Until the plan to feed Europe's Olympic opponents was finally adopted, the Olympics would have been a sad spectacle of smug and well-fed American athletes bringing their own meats to England and overpowering the hungry performers of other nations who lacked the sinew-building foods.

Transportation of food for 6,000 athletes is no problem, Considine points out. "Shipping people amaze us with the ease with which they can take 300 tons of food to Europe," he says. "The entire shipment would require only about one fourth of one hold on any cargo ship."

THERE'S GOING to be nothing fancy about the food the Olympic athletes, including the Americans, will get. The diet will be patterned after the United States Army rations in the European theater during the war. The British will dispense the food from a central commissary with all teams sharing alike, with the exception of certain foods to their national tastes. The Scandianavians will transport their own dried fish, the athletes from India will bring their own curry.

England has undertaken to provide wet fish for all the nations, plus fruit, milk and salad items. The great need from America is, of course, the muscle-building beef, mutton, pork, veal, ham, bacon and chicken, eggs and cereals.

In whatever victories the Americans do achieve in the Olympic games, they will be able to take more pride as a consequence of the new plan of equal rations for all. Americans know that not always do the best-fed athletes always win, but they also know that the under-fed never do.

Castiglia's Pay Doubles Or He Quits

Fullback Jim Castiglia, who plunged int othe affection of Washington Redskin fans last season, yesterday said he would insist on receiving "at least twice as much money" for playing in 1948 or devote his full time to the transfer business.

"I'd love to play," said the big former Georgetown back, "but from now on it's strictly a matter of economics. The Redskins must make it worth while for me to leave my father-in-law's business for 4½ months. Otherwise I'm through."

Castiglia came to the Redskins midway of last season from the Baltimore Colts, where his contract was for $10,500 a year. He let the Washington team set his salary—$400 a game—and was pleased with the deal. He's stil lon excellent terms with the Skins.

$10,000 Likely

It was indicated Castiglia will settle for no less than $10,000 this season.

"The Redskins did me a favor taking me on when I was released by the Colts," Castiglia said. "In return I did them a favor.

"I'd have played for $5 a game, instead of what they gave me, just to prove to myself and Washington I wasn't washed up. Now the Redskins and I are even."

"If they want to pay the Eastern division's third high ground-gainer what it's worth for him to play, then I'll be out there. If not, I'll attend to my 60 pieces of transfer finally healed and sporting a grin equipment and be just as happy."

Big Jim, the bridge of his nose to celebrate the birth of his fourth daughter Sunday, thinks 1948 will be about his last year of action.

"I'll be 30 in September and that's pretty aged for my kind of football," he said. "After some games last season I could feel every bone and muscle in my body. But I'd like one more year and I'm cocky enough to think the the fans would like to see me another season."

Indications were good that Castiglia, the only gridder to play with one NFL team (Philadelphia), enter the All-America Conference, and come back to his iriginal league, will get together on salary with the Redskins.

A spokesman for the team recently said Jim "figured strongly" in plans for '48.

Baltimore Park Squabble Resumes

Baltimore, Jan. 20 (AP).—The Baltimore Orioles went to bat today in the second inning of a court skirmish which may decide whether the International League baseball club will continue to play its home games in Municipal Stadium.

Residents of the stadium neighborhood contend in an injunction suit that occupancy of the 65,000-seat bowl by the Orioles constitutes an "intolerable nuisance" and attracts to the games persons who have reckless disregard for private property and privacy.

Riggs Triumphs To Take Net Lead

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 20 (AP).—Bobby Riggs, the pro champion, turne din a 7—5, 6—2 victory over Jack Kramer in the seventeenth match of their current series before a near-capacity crowd of 4500 here tonight.

The victory put Riggs back in the lead with a margin of 9 to 8 in their barnstorming series.

Tatum Receives New 5-Year Agreement as Terps' Coach

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Maryland's big Jim Tatum, pessimistic football coach who has developed a perennial habit of coming up with a winner, is going to remain on the local scene for at least five more years.

Dr. H. C. (Curly) Byrd, president of Maryland, announced yesterday that he has a new five-year agreement with Tatum, dating from this year.

According to Maryland law, State employes can't hold a contract for more than a year, but Tatum has an additional four-year personal agreement with Byrd. It amounts to the same thing as a five-year pact.

Significantly, it appeared to remove Tatum's name from the growing list of candidates for the coaching post at Navy.

Tatum, a lieutenant commander during the war and coach of the 1945 Jacksonville (Fla.) Naval Air Station football team that won 9 of 11, was one of the first mentioned for the Navy vacancy.

Yesterday, though, Byrd stated the "move was not made because of any alarm over the possibility of a Navy offer to Tatum."

Terms weren't revealed but it was reported that Tatum received a salary boost in recognition of his fine job; Tatum took the post at $12,500.

Tatum's desire to stay at Maryland is said to be influenced by Byrd's interest in seeing the Terrapins raised to "big time" status.

The educator, who formerly coached Maryland himself, never has lost his interest in the value of athletic participation.

He's led a drive for Maryland to have its own stadium and work soon will begin on the structure that's supposed to be ready next season. It will seat permanently 32,243.

Olympic Ice Dispute Headed For Showdown

St. Moritz, Switzerland, Jan. 20 (AP).—The dispute over which of two United States ice hockey teams shall play in the winter Olympic games, starting January 30, is heading for a showdown with all principals sticking to their guns.

The 17-man United States Olympic squad, which carries the indorsement of the United States Olympic committee, was expected to arrive tonight.

Its rival, the Amateur Hockey association team, whose entry has been accepted by the Swiss Olympic organizing committee, is touring in Czechoslovakia.

Quick rebuttal came from the Swiss in reply to a Chicago dispatch saying the United States Olympic committee had voted 66 to 6 to withdraw all American entries from the games if the A.H.A. team was allowed to compete.

Marcel Henninger, president of the Swiss committee, said in Geneva "for us the position remains unchanged. All the American teams, including the hockey team of the A.H.A., have been properly inscribed and can participate."

3000 Kids Attend 2d Cap Clinic

Despite the snow, attendance was up a third at the Washington Post-Washington Capitols basketball clinic held in 10 District school yesterday.

Coach Red Auerbach and his nine-man squad gave more than 3000 enthusiastic schoolboys tips on foul-shooting.

The session was the second of the four scheduled.

In addition to John Mahnken's lesson at Wilson, more than 200 lads were shown a Nat Holman movie short, "How to Play Better Basketball."

Next Tuesday, it will be shown at Jefferson in the afternoon and at Langley at night.

Increased attendance was credited to the fact that the boys who attended the opening classes told their buddies that a Cap star in uniform would be on hand to teach them the rudiments of basketball.

The fact that another 50 lucky boys were selected to attend tonight's game with St. Louis and 50 more to view the Providence game on Saturday didn't hurt, either.

One of Mahnken's pupils chirped, "Looks like we're bringing you luck. Since the clinic started and we've been getting to go to the games, the Caps have been winning."

NYU Rallies To Edge Colgate

New York, Jan. 20 (AP).—New York University scored three baskets in the final minute to come from behind and defeat Colgate, 64-59, tonight and remain undefeated. A Madison Square Garden crowd of more than 18,000 saw the Red Raiders almost pull one of the upsets of the year as they led all the way until the last minute.

Reds' Miller Blasts Neun, Says Mates Aren't So Hot

Cincinnati, Jan. 20 (AP).—Eddie Miller, Cincinnati Reds veteran shortstop, today blasted the method of play used by Manager Johnny Neun, said he did not think some of his teammates were so hot, and figured that the club "will be lucky to battle for a tie for last place" in the National League this season.

Of a proposal to put him at third base, the outspoken Miller said "if, after talking with Manager Neun and club President Warren G. Giles, things were not made clear as to keeping him there, he would be "in favor of moving to another town."

Miller made the statements in a telephone conversation with a reporter.

His criticisms brought from Giles this statement:

"So far as we're concerned, Eddie is entitled to express his opinion on any matter. He could be incorrect, however."

Miller said he believed the defensive style of play used by the Reds for many years under management of Bill McKechnie was superior to the hit-and-run strategy employed by Neun.

Reiterating and adding to the statements he made in what he said he thought was an "off the record" talk at Hamilton, Ohio, Miller said of Virgil Stallcup, who was a sensational shortstop last season for Jersey City in the International League, and who is scheduled to play that position for Cincinnati:

"I doubt if he will hit anywhere near the mark (.339) he attained in the International League last year."

Speaking of Frankie Baumholtz, one of the star rookies of the National League last season, the shortstop said:

"I don't think he's a good outfielder. He's only been in major league baseball a year and misses the experience he would have gotten in AAA ball."

Caps Take on St. Louis Here Tonight

Trailing the league leading Chicago Stags by only two games, the Washington Caps will attempt to draw still closer when they meet the St. Louis Bombers at 8:45 tonight at Uline Arena.

The surprising St. Louis team has downed the Caps three times in five games between the teams this season, including one damaging defeat right here on the Caps' home court.

Bonea Says "We'll Win"

"Washington has captured its last two games against the Stags and the New York Knicks in decisive fashion, and no less an authority than Bonea McKinney predicts a Cap victory tonight.

"We're really rolling now," Bones said last night, "and if we can beat the Bombers we'll be right in the middle of the Western Division race."

Mahnken Has a Job

On the shoulders of big John Mahnken will rest the responsibility of stopping Red Rocha, St. Louis center. Rocha has run wild against the Caps in the three St. Louis triumphs over the locals.

Other Bomber stars include Johnny Logan, Belus Smawley, Don Putman, Bob Doll, Giff Roux and Grady Lewis. Washington will counter with its starting five of Bob Feerick, McKinney, Johnny Norlander, Mahnken and Freddie Scolari. Sonny Hertzberg will probably see plenty of action, too.

In the preliminary game starting at 7:30 p. m., the Federal Communications girls' team faces the Merrick Girls Club.

Spirit Too High So Schools Break Off Old Rivalry

Salisbury, Md., Jan. 20 (AP).—The intense rivalry between the institutions brought about today a two-year suspension of athletic relations between Wicomico High of Salisbury and Delmar, Del., High.

Principals C. H. Cordrey of Wicomico and David M. Green of Delmar pointed out that the "cooling off period" resulted from the "malicious defacing of property and other acts that have involved the physical safety of the pupils of these schools."

For years the rivalry between the schools, located only 7 miles apart, has been intense and in recent weeks it flared to a high point.

Last week after a basketball game in Delmar, Salisbury officials contended that the steering equipment of a school bus carrying players had been tampered with.

The Delmar school was daubed with paint on the eve of the Thanksgiving Day football game between the schools.

Boxing Bill Asks Verdict Each Round

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 20 (AP).—State Senator Fred A. Young introduced in the Legislature today a bill requiring that the winner of each round in boxing bouts be announced.

The bill requires the votes of the two judges and referee to be announced at the end of each round.

Armory Bills Confuse House District Group

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

Talk about the District Armory reached the point yesterday where Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.) protested, "I've never been so confused in my life."

Abernethy said that during a hearing on assorted plans for Armory control being considered by a House District Subcommittee headed by Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.).

"The further we go the more confused I get" said Abernethy. "Here the outstanding men of the city have failed to agree on a bill.

"These gentlemen (sponsors of the different plans) ought to have a little evening together and work this thing out. I'm not in a position to work it out."

O'Hara Holds Executive Session

Then turning to O'Hara, Representative Abernethy quipped, "I don't believe you can do it either, as smart a fellow as you are."

"We won't argue about that," said O'Hara with a grin.

Later O'Hara announced that he would arrange an executive session between his subcommittee and the groups interested in the Armory problem. He said he believed a practical and flexible plan can be worked out.

"I'm not as gloomy as Congressman Abernethy," he said.

At stake in O'Hara's study is a settlement of the long developing dispute over how non-military uses of the Armory should be controlled, and what agency should get the funds.

Commissioner at Hearing

Washington's three Commissioners are sponsoring a bill to give them the final say on non-military use of the Armory, and to put any revenue coming in that way into the District's account at the Treasury.

The three Commissioners, John Russell Young, Guy Mason, and Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, attended the hearing. Their plan was outlined by Chester H. Gray, principal assistant corporation counsel.

Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the District National Guard, urged passage of his bill to place control of non-military activities at the Armory in the hands of a four-member board.

Its members would be the District guard commander, the president of the District Board of Commissioners, and the presidents of the Washington Board of Trade and the Merchants and Manufacturers Association. In this plan, the guard commander would have power to veto any use of the Armory that would endanger the security of the guard and its equipment.

Board of Trade Has Bill

Joseph C. McCarraghy, former Board of Trade president, and now chairman of the board's Greater National Capital Committee, urged adoption of a third bill which his group has drafted. It calls for a 5-member Armory board, whose members would be the guard commander, president of the Commissioners, and three citizens named by the Commissioners.

Cox said he was unalterably opposed to any measure that would seek to transfer from the guard its responsibility for deciding what use should be made of the Armory to fit the training and security needs of the guard.

In the windup, General Young told the subcommittee the only issue between the Commissioners and the National Guard was "who gets the money from rental of the Armory."

"The last thing the Commissioners want is to interfere in any way with General Cox in running the National Guard and training it. All we ask is that when the Armory is not needed for training, and can be rented, we'd like the District to get the money. General Cox also would like to get it."

George Preston Marshall, president of the Washington Redskins, told the committee he didn't like any of the three bills. He suggested that if an agreement could not be reached, the Armory should be placed clearly under control of the guard, with a prohibition against letting the Armory be used for any commercial activities. "If Russ Young gets his bill through, he'll have the worst headache he's ever had in his life," said Marshall. "I have no financial interest in the Armory. I have enough headaches. I can't win enough football games," Marshall added.

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the District Recreation Board, suggested that his board be given control over the non-military uses of the Armory.

Murphy Lashes At Baseball's Reserve Clause

Boston, Jan. 20 (AP).—Robert Murphy of the moribund American Baseball Guild pitched a new challenge at professional athletes' contracts today an dit was caught and hurled right back at him by Johnny Murphy, American (Baseball) League players' representative.

Robert Murphy's bill, which would make unlawful the "reserve clause" in contracts between players and clubs, comes up for a hearing before a Massachusetts legislative committee Thursday.

Tonight it appeared that Murphy (Robert) might be the only propent of his measure designed to "prohibit employment contracts in which the employers reserve the right to sell or exchange the personal services of an employe, or to renew contracts of employment without the employe's consent."

Essential," Says John

To this Johnny Murphy, veteran pitcher now scouting for the Boston Red Sox, said flatly, . . . the reserve clause is essential for the players' protection as well as the owners' and should be included as an integral part of the contract."

Fred (Dixie) Walker of the Pittsburgh Pirates National League players' representative, is due in Boston in time to testify at the hearing "and feels the same way," Murphy (John) added.

Under Robert Murphy's proposal, any professional athlete in baseball, hockey, football, basketball or whatever, would be free to sell his services to any club upon expiration of his present contract.

Free to Sign

Under Murphy's proposal, outstanding baseball players like Ted Williams of the Red Sox, Joe DiMaggio of the Yankees, Bob Feller of Cleveland or any other would be free to sign with any club he chose upon expiration of his present contract.

Sports promoters, while alarmed about the potentialities of Murphy's bill, have been quietly marshaling their forces for the initial showdown before the Legislature's labor and industries committee.

The whole structure of organized baseball, particularly, would be upset under such a law.

Club owners point out that there would be no point in major league teams supporting minor league clubs without assurances of claiming young players they develop.

Dog Racing Gets Setback

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 20 (AP).—Dog racing was set back at least temporarily in Anne Arundel County today.

Without dissent, the county commissioners adopted a motion by Charles M. Russell to defer until "a later date" a proposal to legalize the sport with pari-mutuel or certificate betting.

Russell said a public announcement would be made when the matter is taken up again.

Many of the 27 men and women who protested dog racing at a hearing earlier in the day had reproached commissioners for acting hastily. The fact a resolution to authorize and regulate the sport actually was on the board's agenda was disclosed after a closed session last Thursday.

A majority of the spokesmen to denounce the proposal were clergymen, who centered their attack on gambling. But the most pointed objection came from Noah A. Hillman, Annapolis attorney, who charged the resolution "looks like it had been written for one concern alone."

"This resolution is very clever," Hillman declared, "but it is not a fair one." He described the $50,000 guarantee which would be required of licensed track operators as "silly" in comparison with the large sums of money to be handled.

The county's take under the resolution would depend upon the betting pool. The operators could slice 15 per cent from the total wagered and pay the county 2 per cent of the first $100,000, 2½ per cent on the next $25,000, 3 per cent from $125,000 to $150,000 and 4 per cent on all above that.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

Many a man says he has an open mind when it's merely vacant.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

GOP Senators Study Blocking of Truman's 'Time' Appointments

TROUBLE? The GOP-controlled Senate is slated to give the President more trouble in filling Federal jobs.

It's supposed to be a secret, but several Senate Republican leaders have discussed the possibility of blocking all nominations by the President for "time" appointments.

If the threat is carried out, only those appointees who serve at the pleasure of the President would be confirmed. In this group would be Cabinet and subcabinet nominees—people who could be replaced at any time without legal complications.

But the appointments of people who would serve for specific terms would be pigeonholed under the plan. In this class would be Federal judges, postmasters, members of boards, commissions, and so forth where the terms are fixed by law.

It's clear, of course, what the Republicans have in mind. They will have the jobs to hand out if they win the November elections. Meantime, they could use the jobs as political bait too gain support. As one GOP Senator said::

"The present situation is just the opposite of that of 1932 when Herbert Hoover was President and the Democrats were in control of the Senate. At that time the Democrats blocked Hoover's nominees. Now we have the chance to turn the tables and I believe we'll make the most of it."

RETIREMENT: Work was started yesterday on a compromise bill to liberalize the Civil Service retirement system.

Among the Senators who attended the unannounced meeting were Langer (R., N. D.), Taft (R., Ohio), Byrd (D., Va.), and Williams (R., Del.). Byrd is said to have been concerned over the cost of retirement.

Both Langer and Taft were reported to be favorable to the provision to provide benefits to children under 18 of Federal workers who die. The House-approved Stevenson bill would give benefits to widows.

LOYALTY: Congress will be asked to provide funds to help Federal workers who are accused of disloyalty to defend themselves.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark told a grocers' convention yesterday in Atlantic City that he would make the recommendation. He suggested that the Government pay the expenses of employe witnesses. Clark told the convention:

"You may rest assured that the accused employe will be given every opportunity to refute charges of disloyalty. There is no more danger of harming an innocent person in this procedure than there is in any court of law, because the accused employe's civil liberties are safeguarded in every respect."

AEC: And on the loyalty subject, the Atomic Energy Commission has set up a five-man board to advise it on the trustworthiness of its employes. Former Supreme Court Justice Owen J. Roberts is chairman.

Creation of the AEC board means loyalty cases against its employes won't be reviewed by the 23-man Civil Service board whose chairman is Seth W. Richardson. Like the armed services and the State Department, AEC has full authority by law to fire any employe it regards as dangerous to security.

The Roberts board, the AEC announced, was created to give its employes protection from unfounded accusations. It will help to develop security policies and standards and to advise the commission on individual cases of AEC employes or the employes of AEC contractors.

Other members are: Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Joseph C. Grew, former Ambassador to Japan; George M. Humphrey, president of the M. A. Hanna Co. of Cleveland, and H. W. Prentis, jr., president of the Armstrong Cork Co.

The Senate Civil Service Committee will resume tomorrow its investigation of RURAL ELECTRIFICATION ADMINISTRATION. Pay-raise hearings will be continued in early February . . . The President yesterday signed into law the bill to give veterans' preference to GOLD STAR MOTHERS . . . The ARMY plans no immediate change in its efficiency-rating time table. Ratings will be given March 31 as usual . . . It was four MISSISSIPPI members of Congress who visited Arlington Farms last week. I reported Alabama by mistake.

COMMERCE will hire several experts from the steel industry to work on the voluntary allocation plans . . . That $10,000 ceiling on Federal salaries drove another good man out of the Government yesterday. As tipped off here,

Cafe Quiet, Patron Tells ABC, While Fights Rage on Street

A. J. Driscoll — Citizens president
David Perlmutter — Seeks license renewal
Nick Papanicolas — Files objections

A self-termed "six-days-a-week" patron of the New Western Lunch, Inc., has never seen a fight in the place, he told an Alcoholic Beverage Control Board hearing yesterday.

"But," rotund Joe Pattis replied to another question, "on 9th st., all up and down the street, they're knockin' the hell out of each other all the time."

Pattis, of 1606 17th st., who owns property in the vicinity of the New Western at 943-45 9th st. nw., appeared at the day-long hearing on the lunchroom's application for renewal of its liquor license.

He said he patronizes the lunchroom "six days a week—(I go to church on Sunday)" and had never seen a disturbance in there.

The application for a retail, Class C permit, was protested by a churchman, a citizens association representative, a signed petition and by Nick Papanicolas, owner of the Empire Apartment Building at 9th st. and New York ave., which collapsed December 16.

Papanicolas protested on grounds that presence of the lunchroom with a liquor permit detracted from the value of surrounding properties.

Paul H. McMurray, chairman of the board of the Mount Vernon Methodist Church at 9th st. and New York ave. nw., and A. J. Driscoll, chairman of the Mid-City Citizens Association, were among the remonstrators.

Aligned against these forces were four city detective sergeants, a Health Department employe and a petition signed by the lunchroom's customers.

Arthur T. Stork, the Health Department employe and a former resident of the Empire Apartment Building before its collapse, testified he had been asked by Papanicolas to sign the petition protesting the license, but that he had refused.

He said he saw only one fight in the restaurant in the six years he had lived at the Empire.

Young Avers D. C. Setup Isn't Perfect

'Finest' Government Could Stand Some Streamlining, Says Commission Head

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

For a moment yesterday, Commissioner John Russell Young and Commissioner Gordon R. Young appeared to be disagreeing about the virtues of the District government.

The hint of disagreement turned up during a hearing at the Capitol on control of the District Armory.

"Crazy Quilt," Says General Young

General Young leaned back in his chair and looked up at the mammoth chart of the District government organization, prepared for use of the House District Subcommittee on Reorganization and Home Rule, and displayed on a wall of the hearing room.

General Young said it reminded him of a medical chart showing the course of disease through the human body.

"I've seen some pretty bad organizations in my life," he continued, "but never anything to compare with the crazy quilt which we call the organization of the District government.

"The result is largely chaos."

General Young raised the issue to protest a proposal for setting up a new board to control non-military uses of the armory. He said the Commissioners oppose creation of a new autonomous board. He said the present crazy-quilt set-up came about because Congress had usually been persuaded to place each new District activity in the hands of a new separate agency.

J. R. Young Keeps Silent

To set up another one, he said, would be a step in the wrong direction, another step in "fractionalizing the authority, powers, and responsibilities of the District government."

John Russell Young said nothing.

Where was the disagreement?

Well, last fall Commissioner John Russell Young told the Federation of Businessmen's Associations that Washington has "the finest form of government in the world," with no graft and no politics.

The Commissioner was reminded of this after the hearing.

"It is a good government that we have here," he declared, "But a little streamlining wouldn't hurt. A little streamlining never hurts."

General Young, overhearing, said there is one respect in which the District does have the finest government—"It's clean."

Traffic Accidents Reach 25 in First 4½ Hours; Mercury Due to Rise Today

New weather treatment did Washington up slick last night as snow, sleet and freezing rain glazed highways and produced an upswing in traffic mishaps.

The 35-degree temperature predicted by the Weather Bureau for today may help clear off the highway sheen that caused 25 property damage auto accidents between 6 p. m. and 10:30 p. m.

The forecast called for rain with more o fit freezing, an early 30-degree reading this morning, a high of 35 degrees today and somewhat colder tonight.

Moving from the south, the combination precipitation blanketed most of Virginia, hit Washington with snow shortly after 6 p. m., and spread on into Maryland.

Va. Highways Hazardous

Virginia highways were described as "hazardous but passable," and road crews were sanding during the night.

In Washington, traffic accidents at the height of the snowstorm sent two pedestrians to hospitals. They were Harry T. Woodfield, 71, of 734 19th st. ne., struck as he crossed 19th st. ne. at Benning rd. Driver of the car, who took Woodfield to Casualty Hospital, was Eddie L. Smith, 25, of 2121 Maryland ave. ne. Woodfield suffered a possible fracture of the right leg.

Mike Scheckerson, 47, of 4007 Illinois ave. nw., was struck at Georgia ave. and Upshur st. nw., by acar driven by Henry W. Blalack, 47, of 9211 Kingsbury dr., Silver Spring, Md. Scheckerson went to Emergency Hospital with a possible brain concussion.

Oakland Report 20 Below

Biting cold of the weekend gave Maryland its lowest temperature in a decade—20 below at Oakland. Chesapeake Bay had ice from 1 to 3 feet thick from Grove Point to Turkey Point at the mouth of the Elk River.

Icebreakers went into service on the Chesapeake and Delaware canal to prevent spreading of the thickening ice.

A child, born to Mrs. Carl D. Bays of Oldtown, Md. as she was being taken to a hospital in Cumberland, died en route. Death was due, a doctor said, to near-zero temperatures.

Tuck Wants Power To Seize Oil Stocks

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—Governor Tuck declared today he will seek authority to seize all stocks of fuel oil in Virginia as the Commonwealth floundered in the throes of an icy winter and oil furnaces faced fuel starvation.

Fuel Coordinator C. F. Joyner, jr., said there should be "small quantities" of fuel oil, available for "certified hardship cases" by Thursday, as he left an all-afternoon conference with his advisory committee on the fuel situation.

Gallinger Graduation

Tuberculosis Centers Seek Federal Funds

Gallinger, Glenn Dale Ask Congress Aid in Buying Streptomycin

Battle plans in Washington's intensified war o ntuberculosis came yesterday from the city's two chief tuberculosis centers.

Gallinger Hospital and Glenn Dale Sanatorium officials disclosed they are seeking Congressional appropriations for the purchase of streptomycin, science's new "wonder drug" in tuberculosis treatment.

Details of the treatment needs were made known as sponsors of the Washington Chest X-Ray Survey met to straighten out kinks of early operations. The survey campaign, which opened here January 12, seeks to X-ray the chests of some 600,000 Washington residents and workers for signs of tuberculosis.

Requests $25,000 Fund

Dr. Daniel L. Finucane, superintendent of Glenn Dale Sanatorium, disclosed yesterday that he has requested a special appropriation of $25,000 for purchases of streptomycin. The sanatorium currently provides the drug only to those patients who can afford to pay for it, he said.

Dr. Alvin Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, said he would ask the District budget officer to provide $18,000 for the special drug for tuberculosis patients. The sum is slightly over half the $35,000 requested originally by Dr. Sol Katz, chief of Gallinger's tuberculosis service, for the drug.

Dr. Katz said yesterday that present needs for streptomycin are being met at Gallinger through two members of the unpaid staff, the beneficiaries of grants of streptomycin from private drug firms for research purposes.

He identified the two as Drs. Monroe J. Romansky of George Washington University Medical School, and Harold Hirsch of Georgetown. They currently supply sufficient streptomycin to treat from 100 to 150 patients a year, or all the hospital presently needs, Dr. Katz said.

Will Need Fund Later

But when those sources of supply close, he said, Gallinger Hospital will need the special fund for continuing treatment.

The use of streptomycin in tuberculosis is still in experimental stages, Dr. Katz emphasized. Its benefits, particularly during lung-collapsing operations and for the acute forms of tuberculosis, have demonstrated its value already, he declared.

Dr. Katz said the drug costs $2.40 a gram; that it can be beneficial in dosages down to a half-grom, and that tuberculosis patients' needs very from one injection a day to one dose every four hours, for periods ranging from one to four months.

In the more public phases of the war on tuberculosis, Willis mE. Leahy, X-ray drive chairman, yesterday promised a speedup in services to the public.

Clerical details in the prodigious task of keeping track of the thousands of X-rays taken daily are being smoothed out, he said, and results of the early chest examinations will soon be mailed to the persons X-rayed.

The health service, providing free, confidential checkups for tuberculosis symptoms is sponsored jointly by the D. C. Health Department, the U. S. Public Health Service and the D. C. Tuberculosis Association.

In Georgetown

Low Funds Hampering Child Agency

The Georgetown House is faced with closing up shop at the end of 9½ months of operation this year because of the failure of the Community Chest campaign.

This was learned yesterday as the board of directors of the house, which offers recreational and character building functions for Georgetown children, met to consider what it could do to get along on a badly slashed 1948 budget.

Even with lopping off two full-time workers—a nursery school teacher and a worker who deals with boys, the House is faced with the certainty it does not have enough funds to go around this year.

Services Curtailed

This cut in personnel, however, will mean that as of today, the House won't be able to accommodate any boys over 8 years of age, and its nursery hours will be shortened by two each day, making the nursery school of little use to working mothers unless they work between the hours of 8:30 and 4:30.

There are more than 3000 children between the ages of 5 and 17 in the two census tracts in the Georegtown House area. And although the boys now denied use of Georgetown House may be absorbed at the Georegtown Boys Club, Mrs. Gerhard Geselle, the chairman of the board of directors of the Georgetown House, pointed out that the House always has tried to do a "quality rather than a quantity" job with the children who visit it.

About 150 Offected

About 150 boys will be affected by the economy move, she said. Since aim of the Georgetown House is not just to keep children off the street, but to make them into worthwhile citizens, those interested in the House are now more than ever concerned with the growing juvenile problem in Georgetown.

But directors admitted yesterday they could only pose their problem —the answer lies in other hands.

Late President's Portrait Going To Warehouse

For lack of a purchaser, a portrait of the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt will soon be stored in a Washington warehouse.

Col. McGuire

This was revealed yesterday by O. R. McGuire, attorney for the artist, who said he could no longer keep the painting in his Southern bldg. offices. It has been stored there for the past 18 months.

Nicholas R. Brewer, the artist, is now 92 and ill in a St. Paul, Minn., hospital, McGuire said. He painted the portrait from life in 1935. It shows Mr. Roosevelt in profile, standing at a window.

Say on Food By Gallinger Wards Urged

Ruhland Indorses Report Suggesting Patients Be Heard

Patients in Gallinger Hospital's tuberculosis wards should be allowed to elect representatives to a food-checking committee, Health Officer George C. Ruhland said last night.

The recommendation was contained in Assistant Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger's report on the Gallinger food situation, which Dr. Ruhland forwarded to Commissioner Guy Mason.

The plan calls for each tuberculosis ward to elect one representative. They would meet each week with hospital officials to consider "complaints and suggestions from the patients."

Doctor's Charges

Dr. Seckinger made his investigation after Dr. Sol Katz, chief medical officer of the tuberculosis department, charged last week that recovery of patients was retarded because of improper food.

Mason said it was a "very good report, which doesn't whitewash aynbody."

Seckinger admitted that food had been served cold in the tuberculosis wards, but said electrically-heated food trucks have been repaired and are now in operation.

Dr. Katz verified this and said food now served in the wards is "perfect."

Seckinger recommended that five additional food trucks, requested in the fiscal 1949 District budget, be obtained immediately from Federal Government surplus. New trucks also should be bought "from other funds" in the current hospital budget, he added.

He also suggested that repair work be done more promptly. He stated that four additional cooks and other personnel are needed. (These were requested by Gallinger Superintendent Sweeney but not included in the 1949 budget by the Commissioners, the report indicated).

Elderly Woman Flees Rescuer And Perishes in Burning House

An elderly woman, confused by fright or seeking valuables in her room, broke away from her rescuer and died in a burning house yesterday.

Miss Lillie Scott, about 70, a retired Government employe, fought off a rescue attempt by a houseman as he led her through the smoke-filled, second-floor hallway at 507 Quincy st. nw., and struggled back down the hall.

His haid and hands singed, Love Ingram, 42, the houseman, "lost her" in the smoke and heat.

Miss Scott's body, partly burned, was found by firemen in a room at the rear of the hall, several doors away from her own.

In House for 20 Years

Miss Scott had lived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Buchanan for about 20 years. She was a former employe of the Maritime Commission.

Mrs. Buchanan, helped through flames at the front door by Ingram after he had failed to find Miss Scott, suffered minor burns.

She was working on the first floor when she smelled smoke and directed Ingram to help Miss Scott, a partial invalid, from her room. Ingram said he found the elderly woman and was leading her toward the stairway when she pulled away.

"She didn't say anything," he said. "Just jerked away. Then I couldn't find her in all that smoke and fire."

The Buchanan home was badly damaged. Buchanan is a Commerce Department employe, and was a block away waiting for a bus when he heard shouts of fire.

Woman Badly Burned

A short time later yesterday, a 45-year-old woman suffered severe burns, apparently while trying to beat out flames which damaged her second-floor apartment at 25 1 st. ne.

She is Mrs. Sarah Relkin, an aunt of Hyman Mallach, who owns a grocery on the first floor.

The nephew told firemen he smelled and saw smoke coming from the second floor, and asked a passerby to help his aunt downstairs while he turned in an alarm.

Mrs. Relkin was brought down in a dazed condition and was taken to Casualty Hospital with second and third degree burns of the face, neck, back and arms.

Boy, 8, Stays in Shed 2 Nights To Avoid Beating; Freezes Feet

A child of 8 was in Gallinger Hospital yesterday with frozen feet —all because he was "afraid to go home." He may lose several toes —or more.

Frederick Pope, of 4727 Jay st. ne., revealed he'd spent Saturday and Sunday night in an empty shed to avoid an anticipated "beating" at home. The temperature was 30 degrees at midnight Saturday; it was 13 degrees at 6:59 a. m. Monday.

Mrs. Sara Pope, his grandmother, who has 11 children of her own, some younger than Frederick, said the boy expected to be puunished for going out with some youngsters "we asked him to stay away from."

She said the child, whose parents are both away from home, disappeared after seeing a movie at noon Saturday. Her husband, she related, "inquired after him all about the neighborhood" but his search was fruitless.

At 3:15 p. m. Monday, she said, "the boy came home." After a bath, Mrs. Pope recalled, the youngster complained of sharp pains in his feet. A doctor advised immediate hospitalization.

Dr. Alvin Sweeney, superintendent of Gallinger, said last night it was "to early" to predict whether amputation of the child's feet or several of his toes will be necessary. "The doctors are doing everything they can to prevent that," he said.

"Freddie," lying in his hospital bed, confided that he was "lonesome"—for his "Mommie" and "Papa" That's how he calls his grandmother and grandmother.

Savage Jailed in Troubled Case Over Rooming House License

The John A. Savage rooming house license case which has been in Municipal and District courts since 1945 took another turn yesterday.

John A. Savage, 71, of 1303 Fairmont st. nw., was in District jail last night after surrendering himself yesterday to Judge John P. McMahon of Municipal Court.

On February 27, 1947, Judge McMahon sentenced Savage to pay a fine of $100 or serve 30 days in jail on each of two counts of operating a rooming house without a license. Savage also was found guilty on the third charge of "no occupancy permit" and sentenced to pay $10 or serve five days.

A writ of habeas corpus was filed in District Court yesterday on Savage's behalf too late in the day for immediate action. In the writ it is contended that the three charges against Savage were consolidated into one case without his knowledge and consent. Further, the writ states, in one case he was placed in double jeopardy when he was refused a jury trial. This case is a matter of principle to him, Savage insists.

The license case originated in March, 1946, when the no occupancy charge was made against him for not having a permit in November, 1945. Since that time, Savage, who has been defending himself and was once commended by a judge for his excellent defense, has tried every legal method available. Last week, Savage filed a motion before Judge John P. McMahon for a stay of sentencing and was over-ruled. Yesterday he appeared voluntarily in the Judge's chambers.

2 Trucks Bring $178 Bid

Two obsolete hook-and-ladder fire trucks (1927 vintage) brought bids of only $178 when put up for sale yesterday by the District.

High bidder for the worn-out fire-fighting equipment was James N. Craig, 356 L st. sw., who offered $109 for one, $69 for the other.

Bids for 20 out-dated trucks and three truck bodies brought offers totaling $1872.62. The Commissioners must approve the bids.

The District will sell 35 more condemned trucks (1934 to 1949 models) to bidders Thursday. Bids will be opened at District Building board room at 2 p. m., officials said.

Area News in Brief

Veterans' Housing Here Among Worst

More than a third of married veterans in Washington are living in doubled-up quarters, in rented rooms, or in trailers or tourist cabins.

A survey, released yesterday by the Housing and Home Finance Agency and conducted by the Bureau of the Census and the Bureau of Labor Statistics in 24 Southern and eight Northern areas, puts Washington among cities with highest rates of doubling up on housing.

Many veterans, HHFA believes, are anxious to obtain better housing, if it were available at prices they could afford to pay. They want houses selling at $7500 or less, and rents of less than $50 a month.

In Washington, 37 per cent of married veterans double up. This is 24 per cent white and 71 per cent Negro. Fourteen per cent of all Washington veterans live in units needing major repairs or lacking stnadard plumbing.

Colonel Fined $125

Col. Samuel L. Cooke, 43, an Army physician attached to Walter Reed Hospital, yesterday was fined $100 in Silver Spring Police Court on a charge of driving while drunk.

Police reported that Colonel Cooke, who was also fined $25 for leaving the scene of an accident, was arrested on a tip from a hacker whose cab was equipped with a radio telephone. They said the cab driver reported he had seen the officer s ideswipe a car in the 8800 block of Second ave., Silver Spring, at 11:15 p. m. last Friday.

Colonel Cooke pleaded not guilty to both charges.

Native, 83, Flies Home

Eighty-three-year-old Edward Goodwin's first airplane trip brought him back to his native Maryland yesterday, for the first time since he migrated to the far West as a mining engineer in 1891.

Goodman

Goodman, who has worked at various times as a machine shop operator, mining engineer and poultry raiser, arrived from Sacramento, Calif., aboard a United Air Lines Mainliner, climaxing a trip which he described as "considerably different" from his week-long train journey to Arizona 57 years ago. He returned yesterday to live with his brother, Paul Goodwin, 71, who lives near Reistertown, Md.

Born in Calvert County, Goodwin attended Columbia University and, after graduating as a mining engineer, went to California where he was engaged for several years in the assaying and milling business. He later operated a machine shop, which he said was "wiped out" in the San Francisco earthquake in 1906; served for five years as a mining engineer with the California engineering department, and finally, entered the poultry business, from which he retired about four years ago.

Eligibility Ruling

City employes of Takoma Park, Md., are eligible to participate in the Maryland State retirement system, the mayor and town council have been informed.

A ruling on eligibility of city employes was received from Attorney General Hall Hammond through John P. Mannion, director of the retirement system, who was asked by Councilman John C. Post to clarify the status of municipal workers. Post said a list of eligible employes would be prepared by city officials so that the plan can be put into effect in the near future.

Legion Raises $43,500

More than $43,500 has been raised toward the cost of the proposed American Legion Memorial Building in Bethesda, sponsors of the drive announced yesterday.

Donal L. Chamberlin, general chairman of the campaign, said his committee had received contributions of more than $3500, supplementing the $40,000 raised by Bethesda-Chevy Chase Post, No. 105, of the American Legion, prior to the formal opening of the drive Monday night.

The committee, composed of members of the American Legion unit and civic leaders in the Bethesda-Chavy Chase area, has appealed for contributions from all groups in the area, inasmuch as the building will be available to civic organizations and other community groups when completed.

Stop Signs Ordered

Installation of stop signs to halt the practice of "shortcutting" the traffic light at Ager and Queens Chapel rds. in Hyattsville has been ordered by the Hyattsville Town Council.

Action was taken by the council after residents of West Hyattsville complained of a hazard created by motorists driving along 31st ave. and Jessel rd., both residential streets, to avoid the light. The stop signs ordered by the council will halt through traffic on both streets.

No 'New Look' Waves

If Congress authorizes the Waves as a permanent part of the regular Navy and the naval reserve, the girls in blue won't be draped in that new look.

Capt. Joy Hancock, director of the Waves said yesterday they would "take the new look in their stride—as is."

Captain Hancock was interviewed by Helen Hall on the weekly Naval Academy broadcast (MBS).

She said legislation pending before Congress to set up a division for the Waves in the service "offers the same security of a career in the Navy to women that has long been available to men."

Cleared of Theft Charge

David Forrester, 21, of 7511 12th st. nw., on Christmas Day, was cleared of the charge yesterday in Silver Spring Police Court.

Four Candidates Up Today for La. Governor

New Orleans, Jan. 20 (AP).—Four candidates for Louisiana Governor—including two who have held the office before—will put their chances up to some 900,000 Democrats tomorrow after a shrill campaign that extended to the halls of Congress and involved a one million dollar damage suit.

Candidates are former Governors Sam Jones and Earl K. Long, the latter a brother of the late Senator Huey P. Long; United States Representative James H. Morrison, and Appeals Judge Robert F. Kennon of Minden.

The balloting is a first Democratic primary. The winner of this—or of a run-off February 17 if no one gets a majority tomorrow—will be guaranteed election in one-party Louisiana.

The law suit was filed by Long after United States Representative James Domengeaux of Lafayette had said on the floor of Congress that Long received $250,000 largely in illegal and unreported income while he was lieutenant governor in 1938 and 1939.

Defendants are Jones, Domengeaux, publishers of two New Orleans newspapers and Jones' city campaign manager.

Dean Ackerman Hits U. S. Curbs on Foreign Newsmen

New York, Jan. 20 (AP).—Dean Carl W. Ackerman of Columbia University's School of Journalism today objected to immigration restrictions prohibiting foreign educators and journalists from accepting invitations to lecture and participate in conferences at American universities.

In a telegram to Attorney General Tom C. Clark, Ackerman warned that such tight restrictions would make "needless enemies" and exclude American educators and journalists from other countries.

Ackerman dealt in particular with the invitation to 13 Venezuelan journalists to come to Columbia University next September to attend a Latin-American press institute.

He said Justice Department regulations regarding political affiliations and speechmaking activities in this country would make it impossible to hold the seminar.

German Lawyers Who Quit Krupp Trial Reinstated

Nuernberg, Germany, Jan. 20 (AP). Six German lawyers who marched out of the courtroom during the Krupp war crimes trial last Friday apologized to the American court today. The attorneys jailed and threatened with contempt of court proceedings, told the United States tribunal they felt their honor had been impugned. Their temporary arrests were lifted, and their freedom was restored pending final judgment.

Several of the lawyers admitted they had acted hastily.

Today's proceedings were taken up with the questioning of two lawyers, and four more still are to be heard.

The defendants sat through the proceedings in amused silence.

Striking Printers' Head in Chicago Denies Slowdown

Chicago, Jan. 20 (AP).—The president of the AFL International Typographical Union local on strike against Chicago's six major daily newspapers denied today that the union was responsible for any composing room slowdowns before the strike started last November 24.

Several witnesses representing the newspaper publishers have testified at a National Labor Relations Board hearing that slowdowns by printers disrupted composing room production in their plants for several weeks before the strike.

John Pilch, president of the striking ITU Local No. 16, told NLRB Trial Examiner Arthur Leff that the accusation by the Chicago Newspaper Publishers Association made me very angry. "I was unable to find any evidence of a slowdown. Some of the men were worried over negotiations then taking place between the union and publishers association, and this may have affected their work. But there was no evidence of any slowdown."

Two Youths Sought for Striking Girl

Police yesterday sought two youths on a complaint they tormented, made improper advances and beat a 17-year-old girl en route home from Central High School.

Victim was Mary Elizabeth Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ellis of 1223 N st. nw. She was treated at George Washington University Hospital for a split lip.

The high school girl told police the attack occurred at 3:30 p. m., Mondayl, after the two had followed her from the corner of 11th and N sts. nw., to near her home, prodding her and making indecent remarks.

Struck in Mouth

Near her home, she said, one of the two changed a heavy ring from his left to right hand, and struck her in the mouth with the ringed fist. She described her tormentors as Negroes, both about 13 years old.

In another assault case, Miss Hazel George, 40, of 1715 P st. nw., told police she was attacked at 11:30 p. m., Monday, in the stairway to her apartment home. She said she was struck by an iron pipe or bar by a Negro who passed her on the stairs.

Her assailant fled when she screamed, she said.

Treated at Hospital

Taken to Emergency Hospital, she was treated for a possible fractured skull, contusions and cuts about the head. Her condition was undetermined last night pending outcome of skull X-ray, but she sufficiently recovered to be returned home.

James Young, 42, of 1310 Q st. nw., was admitted to Casualty Hospital yesterday in undetermined condition from blows to his head. Police said his assailant struck him with an adz.

Unless Inflation Is Curbed

Meat Like Diamonds By Spring, Porter Says

By Genevieve Reynolds

FORMER OPA Administrator, Paul Porter yesterday predicted that meat prices would double by spring unless sufficient inflationary curbs are enacted immediately. Guest speaker at a luncheon meeting of the Washington Wellesley Club at the YWCA, he told the audience:

"Come spring—the American housewife may find meat nestling in blue velvet cases in Cartier's instead of in the usual butcher shops."

Strongly advocating Bernard M. Baruch's plan for price and wage control, Porter declared "Baruch the voice of experience has sounded such a crystal clear program that I wonder who could oppose it."

Porter not only praised the statesman's plan for price and wage control but the entire 11 points program.

Unless Congress acts to stem inflation, the speaker warned, "we are headed for a spiraling deflation at the end of 1948 or early part of 1949 that will make the depression of 1929 seem like a picnic."

Porter expressed a hope that a Nation-wide upsurge of public opinion would induce Congress to sanction the Baruch Plan.

During his talk, Porter said that he would not be a candidate for price administrator, if one is named.

Conditions in Greece

Turning from inflation to conditions in Greece which he saw first hand last year as chief of the President's Economic Mission to that country, he said that Greece is in worse shape now than a year ago.

He pointed out that the United States efforts have neither succeeded nor failed; that while we have prevented Greece from being pushed behind the iron curtain of Soviet imperialism, the economy of the country, due to Communist intervention, has not yet been restored as expected. Nor can the country be rebuilt because of Communist sabotage.

Calls for Firm Policy

Porter stressed the importance of continuing aid to Greece and said that this country must have a firm, consistent policy in that heroic country. "Unless we are firm, more than American prestige will be hurt," he said, and added, "there will be an open outbreak." The United States must make it clear that it will not let Greece fall."

Following Porter's address, Mrs. Harold Burton reported on the club's progress in raising $150,000 for Wellesley College's seventy-fifth anniversary fund drive. She said that 21 per cent of the Washington quota had been raised and urged support of the drive.

Mrs. Hugh Perrin, club president, presided, and Mrs. W. Otis Sturgeon, program chairman, introduced the speaker.

Tells Barrister Women's Place in Politics

Put More Home Governors In Government, Rep. Smith Says

There has been too little of the home in government and too much government in the home. It's time to reverse the trend and put more of the home governors in the government and that means women. So declared Representative Margaret Chase Smith of Maine in a discussion of "Women's Proper Place" at a meeting of the D. C. Women's Bar Association held last night in the Raleigh Hotel.

The comely Congresswoman said that basically the incentive and attraction of more women to higher public office should stem from the fact that women are governors of the home. "Importance of their role as governors of the home is that the home is the most fundamental form of government," she explained. "Our community governments are no more than a federation of individual home governments."

Expressing regret that so few women have been chosen to sit in the United Natoins andl that none sit in the Security Council, she attributed the reason to women themselves, specifically to their lack of interest and aggressiveness in public affairs.

"Women cannot become leaders of the world until they have become leaders in their own nation," asserted Representative Smith. "Influence upon others must come from within ourselves individually."

She pointed out that the same rule applies to a nation—influence upon the rest of the world in creating and maintaining permanent peace can come only when peace flows from within this country.

"If there is any one proper rule for women today it is that of alert and responsible citizens in the fullest sense of the word," concluded Mrs. Smith. "Citizenship is without sex. It makes no distinction between the rights and responsibilities of men and women in America."

Mrs. Vinson Dissents, in Green with Pink Roses

Ostrich Wave at Luncheon for Mrs. Eisenhower

By Marie McNair

AMONG waving ostrich of all colors, Mrs. Fred Vinson's green hat, blossoming with pink roses, was the sole presage of spring.

There were 60 ladies at Mrs. Frederick Mitchell Gould's luncheon yesterday at the Carlton in honor of Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, and they all arrived promptly—something of a feat in itself.

The wife of the Army Chief of Staff and her hostess both wore ostrich trimmed hats. Mrs. Eisenhower's pale beige feathers bobbed on a brown poke bonnet, the whole topping a brown taffeta frock with a gilet finely striped in pink. Mrs. Gould wore shiny gray satin, a hat to match with a cerise feather, and an orchid the same shade pinned to her furs.

Something Red

In the Carlton Room guests found their places at small tables centered with masses of mimosa, jonquils, iris and tulips. At Mrs. Gould's table with the honor guest were Senora de Beit, wife of the Cuban Ambassador, who said she had taken a fashion magazine's advice to heart: "Go out and buy yourself a red hat."

Hers was vastly becoming, with rolling brim covered with heavy veil. Signora Tachiani, wife of the Italian Ambassador; Senora de Ivanissevich, wife of the Argentine Ambassador; Mme. Eriksson, wife of the Swedish Minister, and Mme. Malik, wife of the Lebanese Minister, were also at the hostess' table, along with Dr. Mica Trobojevic. Mrs. Eugene Milliken, Mrs. Chapman Revercomb, Mrs. Leverett Saltonstall, Mrs. Everett Robertson, Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge.

Mrs. John Davis Lodge was in burgundy-colored wool with frothy ostrich edging her wide-brimmed hat; Mrs. Elbert Thomas, who returned in November after four months in Europe, was Paris-dressed and hatted in black, the brim of her hat caught up in the front to show the oyster-white beaver lining.

Then there were Mrs. Thomas J. Watson, here from New York; Mrs. Ligon of Alabama, visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ed Foley; Mrs. Wade Haislip, talking with Mrs. A. Mitchell Palmer about the dinner at the Cuban Embassy the night before; Mrs. Will Clayton, Mrs. Sidney de la Rue, Mrs. Stanley Hornbeck, Mrs. Harry G. Meem, Mrs Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Wade Ellis and Mme. Vladimir Rybar.

Mrs. McCeney Werlich, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. James Souby, Mrs. Emil Hurja, were at one table. Others there were Mrs. William S. Culbertson, Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, and Mrs. Consuelo Seoane.

TOWN TOPICS:

Malcolm Ross, who resigned as chairman of the Fair Employment Practices Commission, has finished his book on the history of the department and will celebrate its publication date in New York on Lincoln's Birthday. The following day he'll come down to Washington, and that night his neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Acheson of Vienna, Va., will entertain some county friends at dinner in his honor. From Washington Mr. Ross went to Miami as assistant to the president of the university. He still keeps his Virginia farm however, just in case he gets homesick for Washington and his friends here.

Cold in Florida, Too

If you think the cold wave is confined to Washington and the surrounding area, youre wrong. Mrs. Samuel Scrivener, who took her children down to Fort Lauderdale, Fla., for six weeks of sunshine, writes home that they're sleeping under three blankets, plus sweaters and coats.

Junior League Gets Ready For April 'Follies' Show, To Aid Children's Hospital

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

CLEVELAND AMORY, author of the deliciously humorous "Proper Bostonians," is about to glamorize the Junior League via a very kind Saturday Evening Post story. So it's nice to know that Washington's Junior League, will stage its first show, its first benefit in nine years, April 8, 9, and 10. Of course the show will be a new edition of the traditional Junior League Follies, and a casting party, where the 800 plus members can strut their theatrical talents, will be given March 7.

The show will not only raise funds for their new clinic in the Children's Hospital but will serve as a get-together for all Junior Leaguers. Their membership has doubled since the war, and there have been few opportunities for les girls to meet each other. Early Junior League shows, while fun for parents and doting friends, were put on somewhat hit-or-miss and were frankly amateur. Now a Junior League production is systematically planned and the results are very professional, indeed.

The man, or rather business firm responsible is Jerome Cargill, Inc. Mr. C., a highly reputable yet extraordinarily persuasive person, makes a country-wide tour of the various Junior Leagues, proves they can pick up more coin by giving a show than by any other method. Once a Junior League is sold on the idea, he shoots them a team of directors, technicians and such, who plunge to work with exhausing vigor. They know all the quirks and without too many crises, turn out a smooth production. Naturally, Jerome Cargill, Inc., makes a tidy sum, but so does the Junior League and the young members simply eat up all the fun.

Annapolis Debutante

ON THE AFTERNOON of February 7 a platoon of Washington's finest, socially speaking, will trek to Annapolis and the tea Mrs. Arthur Owens is giving for her cute-trick debutante granddaughter, Sibyl Godfrey. Sibyl, who is a student at Carnegie Tech, made her official debut, New Year's Eve, at Pittsburgh's Cinderella Cotillion.

So this is to be an old-fashioned affair—if anything given by saltily humorous Mrs. Owens could be called old-fashioned. Mrs. Owens, by the by, hails from San Francisco, came out in the Gay Nineties at the Ned Greenway (he was the Ward McAllister of the Golden Gate), while her daughter, Eleanor, made her bow on the battleship Connecticut on which her father, the late Major Owens, commanded the Marine contingent.

Mrs. Owens, as a Marine Corps wife, has been about everywhere—Guam back in 1911, the first white woman in Mindoro in the Philippines—now she's settled lightly with her daughter and son-in-law, Capt. Vincent Hubbard Godfrey, USN, retired, and is a shot in the arm to festive Annapolis goings on.

Hot Television

CHRISTMAS BILLS are scarcely paid before Washington women get busy raising money for a score of causes. Latest endeavor is the Washington Vassar Club's fashion show at the Statler January 29. They have thought up some smart gags to pull a crowd for the noon and four o'clock showings Garfinckel's is whipping up. There will be door prizes ranging from a black cocker puppy to Wragge dresses and a course at Arthur Murray's.

The four o'clock show will be televised—and everyone can get a peek how the technique is worked. Violet Heming, now Mrs. Champ Clark, will be commentator. Television is an old story to Miss Heming, who starred in the first one-act play to be broadcast for eyes as well as ears. In those days heat generated by television equipment was terrific. They played a winter scene, muffled in appropriately heavy clothing and the bright lights actually singed their wool coats.

Coming down in the elevator after the show, a small man and complete stranger, began to wriggle his nose like a rabbit. "Something's burning!" he gasped, panic stricken. "You're right, mister," snapped Miss Heming, "I'm on fire!"

"But don't worry, on the 29th, television lights are under control, and you won't raise as much as a blister!"

Do You Reminisce?

Here is a note for the parent to think over. Do you entertain the family each night with something that happened in your youth? It may be these continual old stories are the things that make your children put you in the "elderly" class and feel you are not up to the times. Interest yourself in the things that are happening now and don't drag out too many worn-out stories of "I remember when."

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife Has Charge Accounts and Husband Always Hands Over Driblets of Cash When Asked, But Even So She Feels Like Person Living on Dole

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: Is it asking too much of an otherwise generous man to give his wife an allowance of her own? I am fortunate to have a very fine husband, but the money problem is privately distressing.

We have been married 16 years and have two fine children. We started our marriage in the 1930s, during the depression years, and had very little. I worked with my husband for the next 10 years and we pooled our earnings to make ends meet.

However, in that time I always had a little money of my own to spend for modest gifts and extras, without having to ask anything from my husband. But since the birth of our second child I haven't worked and hence have no income of my own.

My husband has made a good income these last years. We live very well, own our own home, and have everything within reason that I want, charge accounts at the stores, etc.; and my husband in his way is very generous. He gives me lovely gifts and we are very much in love.

She Is Reluctant To Solicit Money

HIS ONLY bad fault, which makes me very unhappy at times, is in keeping me on dole, so to speak, about house money. He gives me $10 or $20 at a time, as I need it—but each time I have to ask for it or let him know indirectly that I am out of funds.

What he gives me, I can spend as I like, but because I hate asking for money, I try to make it last as long as possible and therefore spend very little on myself. Even so, at present living costs, $10 or $20 won't stretch far. What is harder, from my viewpoint, I never have extra money to buy gifts for him, and I simply can't chisel money for that purpose.

How much nicer it would be if a man, of his own accord, would give his wife a regular allowance for her own uses, say $5, $10 or $25 a month, as he can afford. Don't you agree? And is there some diplomatic way of inducing my husband to adopt that policy? Please advise. S. P.

Man's 50 Years Behind the Times

DEAR S. P.: Your subtle grievance in money matters was commonplace with housewives prior to 50 years ago, when the custom was for the man of the family, be he papa or husband, to retain a tyrannous hold on the purse strings—in some cases penuriously; in others, with an air of benevolence—as if the ladies, like children, hadn't sense enough to know the worth of a dollar.

But the trend has changed; and nowadays it is standard practice in the average middle-class household for children as well as mama to have a regular allowance of pocket money, the figure fixed on father's ability to provide.

The business of having charge accounts, or receiving earmarked driblets of cash occasionally, or handsome gifts presented with a flourish, can't ever compensate for the fettered stifling "nobody" feelings which weigh heavily on the spirit of those not vested with liberating, self-dignifying title to funds of their own—however small—to spend as they choose.

Wife's Entitled To Talk Turkey

YOU are good enough to say that your husband is very generous about money in his way. But his domestic financing policy isn't generous at all as compared to the more democratic practices of average householders in similar circumstances today.

Nor is it generous in the deeper sense of being magnanimous—or even just—in conceding inherent partnership rights to his wife. Rather he treats you somewhat as a moronic live-in flunkey, especially favored by his sporadic impulsive bounty.

For advice: The diplomatic approach won't work with him. You'll have to talk turkey to fetch him up to date, if indeed it can be done. And in view of the fact that you toiled for pay and pooled your earnings with his in the early lean years, you should have no hesitancy about striking boldly for (1) a weekly or monthly fixed allowance sufficient to cover routine household supplies, plus (2) a regular pin-money allowance for personal uses. M. H.

Not Much Time for Cooking? Try These 30-Minute Meals

GETTING dinner in half an hour is a sleight-of-hand trick that's turned by many a Washington housewife these busy days.

It isn't necessary to be a magician—or even the race-horse type—to whip up an interesting, appetizing meal in this length of time. What it does take is careful planning in advance so that, when the time comes, you can do the job without a lot of rushing, back-tracking, and extra work.

For half-hour dinners, keep a list of menus on hand with an emergency shelf filled with all the foods needed as ingredients. If your usual dinner has to be a rush affair, shop thoughtfully and well on weekends, planning your meals a week in advance.

Make use of canned meats, spaghetti, beans, vegetables, fruits and biscuits. Don't neglect the commercial mixes for puddings, shortcakes, biscuits, pies, cakes and rolls.

If you have a frozen food compartment in your refrigerator—or, better yet, a small freezer for storing foods that you freeze in advance or commercially frozen foods—your problem of quick meals will be a simple one. Simply place the frozen foods in the refrigerator when you leave for work or shopping in the morning and they will be thawed by dinnertime, ready for instant cooking.

Left-overs may be combined in interesting ways for second and even third meals. Extra vegetables may be cooked and used again for salads and for casseroles. The same is true for a roast or stew.

Here are a few suggestions for menus for 30-minute evening meals:

Tomato Juice
Chili Con Carne with Rice
Tossed Green Salad Herb Dressing
Toasted Crackers
Applesauce Molasses Cookies
Coffee

Put on the water for the rice as soon as you reach the kitchen. To make fluffy boiled rice, use 8 cups of water to 1 cup of rice and 3 teaspoons of salt. Add salt to boiling water in deep saucepan. Add rice slowly so that boiling will not stop. Boil gently, without stirring, for about 20 minutes, or until rice is entirely soft when pressed between fingers. Drain into sieve, wash by pouring fresh hot water through it, drain over hot water a minute or two longer, then serve.

While the rice is cooking cut up fresh greens for the salad. The dressing should be already made and in a jar in the refrigerator. Toast crackers under the broiler. Use canned chili. Heat it up, adding extra garlic, onions, or chili if you like it more highly seasoned than the canned product. The canned applesauce may be pepped up, too, if you wish, with cinnamon and extra sugar.

Hamburg Patties Mushroom Sauce
Buttered Carrots
Hot Biscuit
Chocolate Wafers Lemon Sherbet
Coffee

Young carrots take only about 15 minutes to cook and needn't be scraped. Use them or canned or frozen carrots for this half-hour meal. Canned biscuits can be baked in the oven while the hamburg patties are broiling. Meanwhile, make the mushroom sauce on a surface burner by the following recipe:

1 cup sliced mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon flour
½ tablespoon onion juice
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup milk

Cook mushrooms in butter until tender. Add flour and stir until slightly brown. Add seasonings and milk. Cook slowly until it thickens. Serve immediately. This recipe makes about 1½ cups of gravy.

HERE are 5 combination dishes, made with canned products, that can be prepared in double-quick time for a "30-minute" meal. In the center is Chili Con Carne, served in a ring of rice. Ranged in a semi-circle around it are, left to right; oven-baked beans, blanketed with nippy cheese rarebit; cooked spaghetti, sprinkled with India relish; beans canned with pork and tomato sauce and served with tender, juicy frankfurters; canned macaroni, baked in green pepper boats. Besides speeding up meal preparation, dishes like these slow down the drain on your pantry purse

Ask Anne
Your Questions on Homemaking

My niece, 17 years of age, has just written me that she is not returning to college to finish even her first year there and that she is going to be married. We live in a small town in Georgia and she insists that she wants a church wedding. Since we had considerable expense with her high school graduation last June, then getting her off to college in September, I do not feel that we can financially afford a wedding at this time, though we would like to make her as happy as may be possible in our circumstances. Will you suggest the most informal, or inexpensive, church service that you think we might have that would be free from criticism of the small town?
T. E. W.

For the very simplest service, the bride and groom, their immediate relatives and possibly an intimate friend or two would go to the church at an hour arranged for in advance with the minister and be married. Such a service usually takes place in the minister's study or a small chapel, if such is available. For this service the bride would wear a becoming suit or afternoon dress, hat and corsage. There would be no attendants. Such a service would be simple, dignified, and, under the circumstances, I would say, very appropriate. This service could be followed by a wedding breakfast or dinner either at home, hotel or tea room.

Or, if the arrangements are kept simple, a wedding in the church proper, the bride in traditional white with one attendant could be staged without too large a money outlay. The ceremony could be planned for late afternoon, followed by a reception for the guests in the church parlors or at home. Fruit punch, coffee or tea and wedding cake would serve nicely as refreshments. Greens from the countryside could be arranged to form a background for the bridal party with one lovely floral arrangement in the center, flanked on either side by candelabra. Some church altars are so lovely that no green background is necessary, only the bouquet and (or) the candles. If the wedding is beautifully planned in every detail and the young bride comes down the aisle serene and radiant, it will be a lovely wedding even though simple.

Will you tell us what sort of article you wish to antique and how you plan to use it? When we receive this information we can be of more help to you.

Is there any place in the city where I might find out the approximate age of some cherry and walnut furniture I have recently acquired? Would replacing the caning on the chairs with a padded material or needlepoint spoil their antiquity? The cherry wood that circles the chairs is about two to three inches deep. B. L.

If you will go to Room 350, Natural History Building of the Smithsonian Institution, the furniture experts there will be glad to help you determine the age of your furniture.

If the original seats of the chairs were of cane, they should be redone exactly as they were to retain their authenticity as antiques. If you were to replace the caning with needlepoint, for instance, the chairs would appear French in type.

Do you have a recipe for fried apple pies? I have looked everywhere for the recipe but people never seem to have heard of them here. H. B.

Fried pies or turnovers can be made with either pie crust or biscuit dough. Roll out to a thickness of about ⅛-inch. Cut in rounds. (A cup saucer can be used for this purpose.) Place in the center of each round a heaping tablespoon or so of stewed apples or applesauce, seasoned to taste. Moisten edges of the dough and fold it over to form a half-moon. Press edges together with floured fork. Fry in hot deep fat (375°) until a golden brown, turning pie over so that it will brown on both sides.

D. C. Can Lick Tuberculosis, Dr. Feffer Says

Approximately 50 previously unknqwn cases of tuberculosis will be discovered in Washington during the five months of the Chest X-ray Survey. So predicted Dr. James J. Feffer, vice president of the D. C. Tuberculosis Association, at the annual donor banquet given at the Mayflower Hotel last night by the Intermediate Group of the Jewish Consumptives' Relief Society.

Appealing to the some 400 listeners to cooperate with the current X-Ray program, he pointed out if all Washington residents will have their chests X-rayed, tuberculosis can be eradicated from the District.

"Never before in the history of the world has a group of people the size of metropolitan Washington been exposed to the best means yet devised for discovering tuberculosis," he explained. "Washington was chosen because the tuberculosis death rate here in 1946 was almost double that of the national rate. And in 1945, of the 92 cities of 100,000 population in the United States, Washington was second only to San Antonio in tuberculosis death rate."

Dr. Feffer chairman of the medical information committee, Washington chest X-ray survey, reminded his audience that actual incidence of tuberculosis here is almost as high in the white as in the Negro race. "Number of known cases of tuberculosis in the District in 1946 was 4217," he said. "Of these 2189 were white and 2028 nonwhite."

Recalling that 1946 is outstanding in the history of tuberculosis control, he said that it is the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the first State tuberculosis hospital in Rutland, Mass. Then he told of the establishment of the sanitorium of the Jewish Consumptive Relief Society in 1904 in Denver, Colo., and commended the hospital for its outstanding work in tuberculosis treatment and control. The sanitorium, which JCRS helps to maintain and support, is nonsectarian.

Power Line Permit in Fairfax Granted to Vepco After Year

The Virginia Electric & Power Co. yesterday, after a one-year struggle, received a permit to construct a transmission line through Fairfax County.

The Fairfax County Board of Zoning Appeals granted the permit for the 110,000-volt power line because (1) VEPCO has reached agreement with the landowners who previously had protested the project, and (2) the land was properly posted for hearing.

A similar permit was granted the company more than a year ago, only to be voided when it was learned that the land had not been posted in accordance with law.

VEPCO and the landowners, who had fought the power line because it would decrease the value of their property, reached agreement last December after a month-long condemnation trial.

A case is now pending in Fairfax Circuit Court charging Vepco with violating the county zoning ordinance by starting construction without obtaining the permit. It has been continued until the March term.

Commonwealth's Attorney Hugh B. Marsh yesterday said he was not yet sure what effect the board's action may have on this case.

The Zoning Appeals Board also gave permission for construction of two more large apartment developments in the county. On is a 12-acre tract on Route 1, near Hunts lane, just south of Alexandria, and the other is 118 acres on Route 236, just east of the Army Quartermaster Depot at Cameron Run.

2 Members Freed As Judge Assails K. of C. Lottery

Baltimore, Jan. 20.—Lotteries conducted here for the benefit of religious and fraternal organizations were bitterly denounced in Criminal Court today by Judge Herman M. Moser.

Judge Moser announced his policy as he released, without punishment, two members of the Knights of Columbus who had been indicted on 11 charges of operating a lottery. They were Frank A. Shallenberger, a State officer of the order, and John J. Dilli, Baltimore printer, described as the promoter of a lottery which started as the joint project of the Knights of Columbus and the Loyola College Alumni Association.

After ordering the two men to return all funds raised in the lottery, Judge Moser declared it was "just as illegal to conduct a lotttery for purposes of charity as for profit." He added that it "seems highly hypocritical" for religious and fraternal groups to sponsor them.

Floridian Digging For Pirate's Cache Strikes Metal

Green Cove Springs, Fla., Jan. 20 (AP).—G. B. Mobley's gold hunt here produced results early tonight, but opinion was divided on whether the metal found 30 feet deep really is gold.

Contractor J. T. Conway said "it's metal and it was 30 feet down." He thinks it's gold, part of a four-million-dollar pirates' cache. A jeweler believes it is too hard to be gold.

An Indian arrowhead also was found in with the dirt being excavated.

If the metal turns out to be gold and the buried pirate treasure which 80-year-old Mobley said would be found on the spot, many residents will alter their opinions about Mobley and his divining rod.

The elderly Floridian has insisted for 18 years there is gold on the spot and previously tried digging for it but ran out of capital.

Last week, with the backing of a Jacksonville physician, Mobley put his hunt on a major scale. Power equipment, drainage materials to thwart the quicksand and water, and manpower were provided to do the job.

Ban on Grade Crossings in Md. Is Urged

A State law to require railroads to eliminate all grade crossings in Maryland was urged yesterday by President Brooke Johns of the Montgomery County Commission.

The commission approved an up-to-$2500 appropriation for warning lights at a grade crossing north of Rockville which school buses use daily and at which two persons have been killed in recent years.

The appropriation was made as the county's contribution as result of conferences with Baltimore & Ohio Railroad representatives. The crossing is on Frederick ave.

The B. & O., officials said, tentatively agreed to pay the difference between the county's appropriation and the estimated $6500 total cost of the project, which also includes cutting away of 500 feet of an embankment to provide a better view of the tracks.

A request by J. Darby Bowman, secretary-treasurer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, for approval of a three-million-dollar bond issue by the Sanitary Commission for water and sewer extension, was granted.

Opposition to the WSSC's request was expressed by some board members on grounds the issue would lower the county's credit rating. Present bonded indebtedness of the WSSC is $3,522,000, Bowman said, not including the proposed three-million dollar issue.

County Board Backs Flood Control Plan

By Phil Austensen
Post Reporter

Prince Georges County commissioners yesterday approved an eight-million-dollar navigation and flood control program for the Anacostia Rver, which is to eliminate floods in Bladensburg.

The program, announced last month by Army district engineers, was approved contingent upon a $3,396,100 authorization by the Maryland Legislature, which is the amount required from local communties to meet a Federal allocation of about $4,531,200.

Local gcommunities, includin Prince Georges County, Hyattsville, Bladensburg, Edmonston, Riverdale, Brentwood, Cottage City and Colmar Manor, must provide the necessary land along the Anacostia and its tributaries.

Plans Presented

The plans were presented to the Prince Georges County commissioners by Harry B. Shaw, deputy chief engineer of the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission, and V. D. C. Birrell, engineer in charge of flood cotrol in the United States District Engineers office.

The commissioners in other actions, approved issuance by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission of an additional two million dollars in county school bonds and three million dollars in bonds for water and sewer extensions.

The school bonds will provide funds for completion of several schools under construction, and the building of new schools, including purchase of a site for a proposed senior high school in the Hyattsville area.

Bids on the bonds probably will be opened February 17, School Supt. O. Gardner Shugart said.

Linden Briscoe, clerk of the board, was instructed to ask all incorporated towns of the county to submit population figures as of June 1 to be used in estimating apportionment of State racing funds allocated to the county. The law requires that the funds be apportioned to towns on basis of the ratio of their population to the population of the county.

For filling, grading and paving intersections of Sligo Mill rd., 3d, 4th and 5th sts. and Highland ave. with the newly relocated Eastern ave. in Chillum District, two bids were received, one from Charles E. Kern, Inc., of Baltimore, $10,362, and the other from Highway Construction Co. of Washington, $11,510. The county engineer's office will study the bids and the award is expected to be made next week.

The commissioners set 11 a. m., February 10, for public hearin on a request from Special Improvement District 29, Bradbury Heights, for establishment of a trash, ash and garbage collection service.

Arnold Bus Hearings Delayed By ICC as Line Reorganizes

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday announced postponement "indefinitely" of its hearings scheduled for next Tuesday on the efficiency of Arnold Bus lines service.

ICC action was taken after the Arlington County Public Utilities Commission asked for delay to give the line time to reorganize its management.

Early this month, the Arnold Lines announced a pending transfer of a majority of its 35,000 shares of stock from Manuel J. Davis, Washington attorney, to a group of investors headed by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Arnold.

First call for delay i the ICC hearing came from J. G. Campbell, who was sent here by the Buffalo (N. Y.) Marine Trust Co. "to help get the line back on its feet."

The Buffalo bank hold the bus line's promissory note of $999,972, according to ICC records.

On February 2, Col. M. D. Mills, former general manager of the Seattle (Wash.) Transit Co. will assume charge of the Arnold Lines.

Sherbow Report

Montgomery Share of Md. Funds Rises

Maryland State funds granted to Montgomery County this year will jump more than a third over those granted last year, because of the Sherbow report, County Comptroller Alex Hancock said yesterday.

This fiscal year, Hancock pointed out, Montgomery County will receive an estimated $967,000, compared to $665,000 last year.

The $302,000 difference is due to adoption by the 1947 Maryland Geenral Assembly of the Sherbow report which calls for greater distribution of State funds to the counties.

The $302,000 is approximately $50,000 more than the county had originally expected under provisions of the report, Hancock explained.

This unlooked for $50,000, he said, will be used either for the police department salary increase granted last September 1 which will cost approximately $27,000 this year, or the $50,000 interim grant to Suburban Hospital approved last month. Neither item was provided for in the current county budget.

Hancock estimated the additional $302,000 prevented a 16-cent county tax increase.

Canada Cabinet Shifts Shuffle Four Ministers

Ottawa, Jan. 20 (AP).—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King announced tonight a shakeup involving four of his cabinet ministers.

Minister of Veterans' Affairs Ian Mackenzie was appointed to a seat in the senate. Fisheries Minister Milton F. Gregg was named to succeed Mackenzie.

Trade Minister G. A. Mackinnon will take over the fisheries portfolio on a temporary basis, and Reconstruction Minister C. D. Howe will assume the trade post.

The Reconstruction Ministry is being abolished. Mackenzie had asked to be relieved of his cabinet post and Mackinnon had requested a lighter task in the government.

Victory to Speak

John S. Victory, executive secretary of the National Advisory Committee on Aeronautics, will address the January meeting of the West Montgomery County Citizens Association tonight at 8 o'clock in the Potomac Elementary School, Potomac, Md.

Alexandria, Fairfax Assail Regional Jail

A tentative Arlington feeler for a regional Northern Virginia jail yesterday met strong opposition in Fairfax, and equally strong reservations in Alexandria.

The tri-area lockup was suggested during a meeting of the Arlington County Board on Saturday. A five-member committee was set up to explore possibilities.

But Fairfax Sheriff John E. Taylor yesterday said he was "definitely against" the regional jail as far as his county's inclusion is concerned.

Fairfax now has a good jail of its own, he pointed out, and recently appropriated $100,000 to build a police substation in the southeast portion of the county so that suspects might be booked and and locked up without transporting them to headquarters.

Sheriff Taylor also said the distance from Fairfax to the regional jail, which probably would be located in Arlington, would make transportation of prisoners difficult and double the load in his office. He termed the entire proposal "impractical."

Less opposition was expressed by Alexandria City Sergeant Robert H. Cox, who has charge of the city's jail.

He admitted the move would be beneficial to all three areas from an economy standpoint, but joined Fairfax in objecting to the problem of transportation.

Alexandria's Jail, which dates back to Revolutionary War times, currently is being given a $25,000 face-lifting, Cox added.

Arlington's study of the regional jail plan was touched off Saturday by a letter from the Virginia State Board of Corrections.

It warned that unless "certain unsafe and unsatisfactory conditions" in the County's jail are corrected by December 31, 1948, the building will not be approved for further use.

Leonardtown, Md., Jan. 20.—Thomas Bolger has been elected president of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's and St. Charles Churches in Charles County for the current year. Other officers are Douglas Cooksey and A. M. Bryant, jr., vice presidents; William S. Duke, secretary, and F. Desales Owen, treasurer.

The new officers were installed by the Rev. Joseph A. Webster.

Guard Training Period

Baltimore, Jan. 20 (AP).—Most units of the Twenty-ninth Infantry Division, made up of Maryland and Virginia National Guard units, will train in July and August this summer at Camp Ritchie, Md., the Maryland Adjutant General's Office announced today.

Metal Workers' Leadership Breaks With WFTU

Paris, Jan. 20 (AP).—The International Metal Workers' leadership virtually broke with the World Federation of Trade Unions today.

The WFTU claims a membership of 100 million organized workers, most of them in Communist-controlled sections. The American CIO is one of the exceptions. The AFL does not adhere to the federation.

A letter from Secretary Konrad Ilg of the Metal Workers' World Office at Bern, which is known to favor strongly the Marshall Plan for European recovery, brought a struggle for control of the workers out into the open.

Ilg accused the WFTU of having tried to keep the international secretariats from meeting. He called on all sections of the metal workers organization not to attend any future meeting of the secretariats under WFTU auspices and "not to accept" WFTU regulations giving more power to national sections.

He called a meeting in Switzerland in mid-March to discuss the Marshall Plan.

Dr. Holmes Gives View On Japan Visit Ban

New York, Jan. 20 (AP).—Dr. John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church here, said today he was told in India that the State Department was not granting him permission to visit Japan on a recent world trip because of "unfortunate" things he said in India. He did not say who thus informed him in India.

The American Civil Liberties Union, whose board of directors is headed by Dr. Holmes, said last week the minister had been denied permission to visit Japan despite an approval of the trip by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

New York City Rabbi Opposes Segregation

St. Louis, Jan. 20 (AP).—Rabbi Elmer Berger of New York City pleaded with Jewish rabbis and laymen tonight to oppose what he said is the increasing segregation of people of Jewish faith.

"There is nothing to indicate that if the present trend increases, the encouragement of political and social boundaries between Jews and those not of Jewish faith, we will not in some form face the impasse that Jews and Arabs reached in Palestine," he told the American Council for Judaism.

A CALL TO MUSIC-LOVERS!
TOMORROW EVENING, JANUARY 22, AT 8:30 P. M. IN CONSTITUTION HALL
One of the great men in music of our times
Artur Schnabel
in his first Washington recital since 1936 will play the program about which the Baltimore Sun music critic wrote last Friday, "It would not be possible to hear more beautiful playing. During the interpretation of sonatas by Schubert, Mozart and Beethoven and the 'Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue' by Bach, the theatre was silent as a chapel. After each work applause was intense and prolonged. Mr. Schnabel made no compromises but met great music on its own level. He has a giant intellect . . . his interpretations are impregnable to the disturbing elements in the world today . . . he breathes an air untinged by the perfumes of Hollywood.
"This was a program to bring the listener up short and make him take stock of the kind of performance he normally hears. Comparisons are relative. There is so much of the false kind of interpretation—so much that is tricky, superficial, glossy or 'effective'—that one's basis of judgment is in danger of reering, and the oblique gradually assumes the aspect of a straight line.
"Such a program as Mr. Schnabel gave brings the listener into sudden realignment and awakens him once more to the beneficence and restorative qualities of music in its unocciaminated state."
PATRICK HAYES.

Don't Detour Route 5

'Rio's' the Best Traveling Yet

By Richard L. Coe

GOOD NEWS: Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Dorothy Lamour are at the Palace in a honey of a comedy which you can put on your must list, "Road to Rio."

Yes, this is the fifth of the trio's "Road" pictures and, though I missed "Utopia," "Rio's" probably the best of the lot. The thing is packed with humor ranging from slapstick to satire and, believe it or not, this is one of those few pictures Coe's going to laugh through again before it quits F st.

It's not really fair to do any more than sketch what happens to Bing and Bob because half the fun comes from the unexpected. The best recommendation is that when a handful of us watched the picture yesterday there was a furtive looking at watches and worrying about keeping luncheon dates on time.

To give you a rough idea, Bing and Bob get involved with a New Orleans carnival and, during a bicycle ride on the high wire, Bob manages to burn the carny down. They stow away on a ship bound for Rio and meet up with Dottie.

Dottie's being mesmerized by her aunt, Gale Sondergaard, a super rich type who wants her brother, George Meeker, to marry Dottie's millions. There's something to do with hidden papers and the need to overcome a couple of tough guys, Frank Faylen and Joe Vitale.

All this gives the boys a chance to share a song with the Andrews Sisters, to spoof the screen's vogue for psychological yarns, to drag in Jerry Colonna leading a charge of flag-bedecked horsemen across the pampas and to make a neat crack about Warner Brothers' pictures that you shouldn't miss.

"ROAD TO RIO." Paramount release produced by Daniel Dare. Story and screen play by Edmund Beloin and Jack Rose. New songs by Johnny Burke and James Van Heusen. Directed by Norman Z. McLeod. At the Palace.

THE CAST:

Scat Sweeney	Bing Crosby
Hot Lips Barton	Bob Hope
Lucia Maria de Andrade	Dorothy Lamour
Catherine Vail	Gale Sondergaard
Trigger	Frank Faylen
Tony	Joseph Vitale
Rodigues	Frank Puglia

The Stone-Barton Puppeteers	Themselves
The Carioca Boys	Themselves
The Wiere Brothers	Themselves
The Andrews Sisters	Themselves

Bob on the High Wire

But—it will spoil things for you to go any further into this one. Bing's at his easy-going best with three songs, "But Beautiful," "Apalachicola, Fla.," which he sings a la old-time vaudeville with Bob, and "You Don't Have to Know the Language," wherein the Andrews Sisters make it a quartet. Bob's gags are livelier and funnier than ever, from his high-wire didoes to his crack about movie bang-bang. Dottie, who does this sort of thing with infectious enthusiasm, also has a good number in "Experience."

Gale Sondergaard is wickedly funny as the most fatale femme of the breed, and you also come across the Carioca Boys and the Wiere Brothers as themselves.

For their fresh, well-filled screen play, Edmund Beloin and Jack Rose should rate a bow along with Director Norman Z. McLeod and Producer Danny Dare.

Every scene has its neat touches, but no more will we take from your own pleasure of discovery. "Road to Rio" is a swell comedy.

THOSE "CRACKERJACKS" of Arthur "Guitar Boogie" Smith at the Capitol were also on the air Monday night with Paul Whiteman . . . This is the trio's first F st. appearance, for they're hard to drag from the Carolinas . . . After their "Guitar Boogie" hit the big-time recording ratings, they decided they preferred North Carolina's Charlotte to far-off Broadway . . . The brothers have had a good week at the Capitol, of which this is the last day.

A "GOING NATIVE" alumnus joins Arthur Godfrey tonight in a special show he's putting on for the Board of Trade . . . This youngster is 21-year-old Richard Greenfield of 1360 Emerson st. ne., an Eastern High graduate . . . Dick's specialties as a mimic range from Betty Hutton to Leonard Warren's "Barber of Seville" Figaro . . . Dick walked off with first prize in television's "Stars of Tomorrow" airing and will be back on the show for the finals in a couple of weeks.

"FIFTH WEEK" is what they're readying for the town's two foreign picture houses, the Little and the Hippodrome . . . "The Great Mr. Handel" begins it today, and the Little insists that will be all . . . "I Know Where I'm Going," at the Hippodrome, is going great guns—so much so, in fact, that the Hippodrome has arranged to provide free hot coffee to those waiting in the frost-bitten lines outside the theater.

SPEAKING of television, the King-Smith production is preening itself on an airing tonight at 9 on the NBC chain of "Only the Heart" . . . This was written by Horton Foote, director of Productions, Inc., and codirector of the King-Smith school.

IN BRIEF The Apex gets the first uptown showing of Noel Coward's "Brief Encounter" today and tomorrow . . . Evelyn Davis has scheduled her first dance program of the year for Friday night, February 13, at Lisner Auditorium . . . Today's a Keith opening for "Out of the Past," a private detective yarn with Robert Mitchum and Jane Greer.

RIO TRIO: Bob Hope, Dorothy Lamour and Bing Crosby are together again in "Road to Rio," opening this morning at the Palace. So far the three have been to Singapore, Zanzibar, Morocco and Utopia, but they have the brightest time of all in the Brazeal tempo of Rio. The Andrews Sisters, Jerry Colonna and Gale Sondergaard are others on tap

Congress Votes $2000 For Postoffice Deficit

By The Associated Press

The House passed yesterday a Senate bill to wipe out a $2000 shortage in the war savings account of the Beckley (W. Va.) Postoffice. The measure now goes to the President.

A committee report said John T. Hollandsworth, jr., as postmaster, was charged with the shortage, although it was not reported to him until about three months after a short shipment of war bonds and stamps was received in 1942.

A Postoffice Department representative testified before the committee that no invoice accompanied the package and clerks could not tell the amount the package should have contained.

Two Outlander Detectives 'Held' In Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 20 (AP).—The Newark, N. J., detective force is rapidly being deployed here, but not to sto pa crime wave.

The Newark detectives who came here last Friday to interview four Newark men and adancer who were picked up by Cumberland police after the attempted holdup of a super market here are now in some kind of "offiical custody."

So Newark's chief of police sent two more detetcives to Cumberland to retrieve his missing officers.

Cumberland's States's attorney said no charges had been filed against the two visiting detectives, and that no charges have been asked for them. A "conference" on the situation is expected tomorrow among officials involved, none of whom would comment today on the situation.

Pedestrians Lead In Maryland's 1947 405 Traffic Deaths

Baltimore, Jan. 21 (AP).—Four hundred and five persons, or more than one a day, were killed in Maryland traffic accidents last year, the Traffic Safety Commission reported today.

The toll was 13 fewer than were killed in 1946.

A total of 17,732 collisions were investigated, an increase of 505 over 1946, and 8799 persons were injured last year.

Forty-two per cent of those killed in 1947 were pedestrians, 24 per cent were drivers or passengers in cars that collided with other cars, and 29 per cent were drivers or passengers of cars that overturned or collided with fixed objects.

Forty-four persons were killed in traffic accidents last month.

Mill Pollution Killed His Bull, Farmer Believes

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 20 (AP).—Pollution from paper mills on Little Elk River is apparently strong enough to kill a bull.

That's what a Childs, Md., farmer who just lost a bull thinks. Some of the things that have been going into the river from nearby mills lately have been calcium carbonate, clay, binder, de-inking waste, oil and refuse, fibre and paste.

The offending mills have been asked by the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission to clean up their industrial processes. The farmer who lost the bull wants the mills to "stop using the river for a dump."

Death of Man, 63, On Railroad Track Held Accidental

A certificate of accidental death was issued yesterday in the death of James G. Russell, 63, of Shreve rd., Falls Church, who was struck Saturday by a Washington and Old Dominion Railroad train.

The certificate was issued by Fairfax County Coroner Nelson Podolnick. Russell's body was found at 7:10 p. m. Saturday at the railroad tracks and W. Broad st.

Train Engineer F. R. Ormsbee, 1402 Lee hgwy., Arlington, told police he felt a slight impact, stopped his train to investigate, but found nothing.

Shenandoah Hospital Plans Near Completion

Woodstock, Va., Jan. 20.—Plans for the proposed Shenandoah County Memorial Hospital, to be built at a cost of $300,000, will be completed by the end of this month, according to announcement by directors of the group.

According to W. O. Riley, chairman of the funds campaign, about $225,000 has been raised already by subscription, and a drive for the remainder will be staged this spring.

Derailment Blocks Traffic

Petersburg, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—Traffic along the single track of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad here was delayed nearly four hours last night after the pilot truck of a locomotive was derailed on a trestle near the station. No one was injured.

Girl, 12, Has Baby; Stepfather Is Held

Norton, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—A Tacoma, Va., farm worker was held today on a charge of rape after his 12-year-old step-daughter gave birth to a four-pound daughter.

Authorities at Norton clinic, where the baby was born January 16, said both mother and daughter were "doing fine."

Police said Fritz McAmis, 43, had been arrested on the rape charge after Mrs. McAmis swore out a warrant charging him with being the "parent of her (Mrs. McAmis') daughter's baby."

Two Outlander Detectives 'Held' In Cumberland

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 20 (AP).—The Newark, N. J., detective force is rapidly being deployed here, but not to sto pa crime wave.

The Newark detectives who came here last Friday to interview four Newark men and adancer who were picked up by Cumberland police after the attempted holdup of a super market here are now in some kind of "offiical custody."

So Newark's chief of police sent two more deteteives to Cumberland to retrieve his missing officers.

Cumberland's States's attorney said no charges had been filed against the two visiting detectives, and that no charges have been asked for them. A "conference" on the situation is expected tomorrow among officials involved, none of whom would comment today on the situation.

Pedestrians Lead In Maryland's 1947 405 Traffic Deaths

Baltimore, Jan. 21 (AP).—Four hundred and five persons, or more than one a day, were killed in Maryland traffic accidents last year, the Traffic Safety Commission reported today.

The toll was 13 fewer than were killed in 1946.

A total of 17,732 collisions were investigated, an increase of 505 over 1946, and 8799 persons were injured last year.

Forty-two per cent of those killed in 1947 were pedestrians, 24 per cent were drivers or passengers in cars that collided with other cars, and 29 per cent were drivers or passengers of cars that overturned or collided with fixed objects.

Forty-four persons were killed in traffic accidents last month.

Mill Pollution Killed His Bull, Farmer Believes

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 20 (AP).—Pollution from paper mills on Little Elk River is apparently strong enough to kill a bull.

That's what a Childs, Md., farmer who just lost a bull thinks. Some of the things that have been going into the river from nearby mills lately have been calcium carbonate, clay, binder, de-inking waste, oil and refuse, fibre and paste.

The offending mills have been asked by the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission to clean up their industrial processes. The farmer who lost the bull wants the mills to "stop using the river for a dump."

Death of Man, 63, On Railroad Track Held Accidental

A certificate of accidental death was issued yesterday in the death of James G. Russell, 63, of Shreve rd., Falls Church, who was struck Saturday by a Washington and Old Dominion Railroad train.

The certificate was issued by Fairfax County Coroner Nelson Podolnick. Russell's body was found at 7:10 p. m. Saturday at the railroad tracks and W. Broad st.

Train Engineer F. R. Ormsbee, 1402 Lee hgwy., Arlington, told police he felt a slight impact, stopped his train to investigate, but found nothing.

Shenandoah Hospital Plans Near Completion

Woodstock, Va., Jan. 20.—Plans for the proposed Shenandoah County Memorial Hospital, to be built at a cost of $300,000, will be completed by the end of this month, according to announcement by directors of the group.

According to W. O. Riley, chairman of the funds campaign, about $225,000 has been raised already by subscription, and a drive for the remainder will be staged this spring.

Derailment Blocks Traffic

Petersburg, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—Traffic along the single track of the Seaboard Air Line Railroad here was delayed nearly four hours last night after the pilot truck of a locomotive was derailed on a trestle near the station. No one was injured.

Girl, 12, Has Baby; Stepfather Is Held

Norton, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—A Tacoma, Va., farm worker was held today on a charge of rape after his 12-year-old step-daughter gave birth to a four-pound daughter.

Authorities at Norton clinic, where the baby was born January 16, said both mother and daughter were "doing fine."

Police said Fritz McAmis, 43, had been arrested on the rape charge after Mrs. McAmis swore out a warrant charging him with being the "parent of her (Mrs. McAmis') daughter's baby."

Tuck's Budget Goes Into Assembly Mill

Members Await Reorganization Plan of Governor

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—The Virginia General Assembly started Gov. William M. Tuck's half-billion dollar budget through the mill today and adjourned to hear his recommendations on reorganization tomorrow at 1 p. m.

Today's session brought forth:

1. A House bill to set minimum standards for motor vehicle safety inspections, under the supervision of the superintendent of State police.

2. A Senate bill to impose a "forest products tax" on lumber, funds from which would be used by the Virginia conservation commission to protect and increase State forest resources.

3. Senate bills making the Virginia fire hazards law applicable to all public buildings and all buildings housing 10 or more persons; creating an advisory board to the State corporation commission for the writing of minimum standards of fire safety.

4. Seven Senate bills amending the State code on execution liens and garnishment proceedings.

Introduces Budget

Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, C. C. Louderback, of Stanley, introduced Mr. Tuck's $504,995,051 budget. This is an increase of $161,000,000 over that of the preceeding biennium, a large part of which goes to special and separate funds.

It is to meet this increase that Tuck has recommended increases in tax rates to raise 14 million dollars for the general fund increase and $7,700,000,000 for capital improvements.

Motor vehicle testing station operators would have to pass examinations prepared by the State Police under the bill introduced by Delegate W. H. C. Murray of Richmond. Stricter supervision also would be required. An inspection fee of 25 cents would be required, contrasting with a dollar fee recommended by the Virginia advisory legislative council.

The "forest products tax" bill was introduced by Senator Garland Gray of Waverly. The levy would be 10 cents per 1000 board feet on hardwood and 5 cents per 1000 on other species.

The seven bills on garnishee proceedings were introduced by Senator M. M. Long of Wise, and Senator Lloyd C. Bird of Chesterfield and also were the result of studies by the VALC.

Steps up Exemptions

The garnishee bills, exemptions of a head of a family would be stepped up to a flat $100 month instead of from $50 to $75, depending on the number of dependents.

The "fire hazards board" sought in the bill introduced by Senators Long and Bird would be in the Bureau of Insurance, under the State Corporation Commission. The SCC would have the power to enforce its maximum fire safety rules before the State courts and trial justices. Right of injunctions to bring about corrections would be accorded the SCC, operating through a chief fire marshal of the State.

In the House, other bills introduced today would:

Absolve radio stations from damages resulting from defamatory statements unless it is proved that due care to prevent the offending broadcast was not taken; absolve stations entirely from defamation damages caused by a political campaign broadcast and limit defamation damage to only such . . . as is alleged and proved." By Delegate G. E. Massie of Richmond.

Interpret money received from Veterans' Administration for an estate as income, not principal, up to $200 a month. By Delegate W. J. Gibson of Spotsylvania.

Tax Bills for Berryville

Permit the town of Berryville to levy a dog tax and real estate tax not more than $2 per $100 assessed valuation. By Delegate E. Blackburn Moore of Berryville.

Permit high schools to set age limits in athletic contests. By Delegate E. T. De Jarnette of Ashland and E. C. McCue of Charlottesville, similar to a Senate bill yesterday.

In the Senate, other bills introduced would:

Permit the board of supervisors of Fairfax County to hold as many regular sessions as necessary in a month, instead of one. By Senator Andrew W. Clarke of Fairfax.

Permit the Governor to appoint an adjutant general with the rank of brigadier or major general. By Senators Harry F. Byrd, jr., of Winchester; R. R. Guest of Bayard and Curry Carter of Staunton.

Pay voluntary firemen permanently or totally disabled $25 a week for 520 weeks. By Senator Clark.

At the end of the session today, it was announced that a public hearing will be held Wednesday, January 28, at 3 p. m. on bills carrying out the Governor's recommendation for $21,700,000 in tax increases.

At Fredericksburg

Town's Coal Supply Down To 300 Tons

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 20 (Spl.).—An increasingly serious shortage of fuel left one of the city's two suppliers "completely out" of all types of coal today.

With snow falling and the temperature dropping steadily, C. M. Towan, manager of one company, said the firm's last available supply had been delivered today. He expressed hope that a 50-ton carload, en route to Fredericksburg, would arrive by tomorrow but added that, even if it arrives it will be inadequate to meet all needs.

R. B. Payne, owner of the other local coal company, said he had about 300 tons on hand and, for the time being, was able to fill most orders. Customers, however, are being given no choice as to the type or size of coal ordered, Payne added.

Both companies reported fuel oil supplies adequate to meet present needs.

U. S. Ice Cream Intake Doubled Since War's End

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—Americans, known throughout the world as an ice cream eating people, are consuming twice as much ice cream now as they did during World War II.

The consumption of ice cream in the United States tripled during the period between World War I and II, ad has doubled since the end of the last war, Dr. A. C. Dahlberg, professor of dairy industry at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., told members of the VVirginia Dairy Products Association at Hotel Roanoke.

Reasons: for advances in flavor and quality of the product.

Md. Oyster Planting Will Go Mechanical

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 20 (AP).—Oyster planting in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries will be modernized this spring, when new machines send the wheelbarrow and shovel into the scrap heap.

Ralph Hammer, State shellfish culturist, said today the Department of Tidewater Fisheries is purchasing a tractor loader and a conveyor to pile shells on boats. The job formerly was done by day laborers, who toted the shells by wheelbarrow.

The shells are fundamental to Maryland's convercation and oyster propagation program.

National Forest Yields $16,802 to Va. Counties

Twelve Virginia counties, in which the George Washington National Forest is located, will receive $16,802.54 as their share of National Forest receipts for 1947.

Representative Burr P. Harrison of the Seventh Congressional District, who announced the allocation, said the funds represent the counties' share of money from special use permits and from the sale of timber and other products. The amount represents 25 per cent of the gross receipts from the Virginia portion of the forest.

Bank's Acts News to Him, Rakes Says

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20 (AP).—Hugh N. Rakes told a Federal District Court jury today he had no knowledge that the Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Fredericksburg had used its funds unlawfully in meeting any checks he drew to finance his dairying operations in the early 1940s.

The jury and Judge Johnson J. Hayes heard final defense testimony in the case in which Rakes and his wife, Mrs. Lillian C. Rakes, are charged with aiding William Reeves Gardner to misapply more than $435,000 from the Fredericksburg bank.

Rakes, who is charged on 13 counts, denied under defense questioning that he knew how his checks were covered except by deposits he had made, or authorized other to make.

The dairyman said it probably was true that he had once met two checks drawn on insufficient funds with a third check also drawn on inadequate balance.

"There were so many transactions, I can't remember them all," Rakes said.

In his testimony Rakes denied any intention to defraud any one. He said his gross income during the period amounted to $50,000 at times, and that it was impossible for him to remember all the details of the transactions.

Rakes' appearance came as a surprise on a motion from Defense Counsel R. H. McNeill, who yesterday had rested his case.

Trying to Nap? Then It's Sure to Be Wrong Number

The telephone awakened Mrs. B. from a nap the other day. She was greeted by a solemn voice which said:

"Good afternoon. This is the Soandso Mausoleum calling. Have you bought your burial plot yet?"

Somewhat shaken, Mrs. B. returned to bed. True enough, she was just getting over a siege of the flu, but she wasn't THAT sick.

"Goodness, me," she mused. "What next?"

As if in answer, the phone rang again. This time the voice at the other end began with:

"This is the Thusandsuch Funeral Service. Have you sent our hearse over yet?"

It was a wrong number, but Mrs. B. isn't taking any more chances. She's not getting out of bed to answer any more phone calls until she's completely well again.

FUEL OIL NOTE

When WINX waker-upper Jerry Strong posed for the picture below, he asked:

"Is there anything worse than crawling out of bed in the middle of a cold winter night to go to work in an unheated broadcasting studio?"

I think so. What's even worse is to shut the window, put on the coffee, turn on the radio—and get a morning man who is brimming over with good cheer.

When I'm miserable and my teeth are chattering I don't want anybody else to be in good humor, either.

Observes Mrs. Ross slyly: "They must have heard a lot of weighty testimony."

MISCELLANY

Members of the Capital City Cocker Club are going to the dogs tonight (specialty show, 8:30 p. m., Sheraton Hotel) . . . David Zwibel of 4405 1st pl. ne. tells me that Slippery Rock (Pa.) is named after a slippery rock in the local creek . . . and Jack M. MacDonald adds that an early settler slipped on the rock while retreating before a tomahawk-tossing Injun. The tomahawk whizzed harmlessly over the fallen paleface's head and resulted in a name for a thriving community which now has some 50 residents in the District . . . Mrs. Elna H. Wharton, of 3707 Woodley rd. nw. tells me that the American Women's Voluntary Services is sending seven-pound food packages to Europe and Japan for $3.50, which seems less than we pay at the corner grocery store for our own chow. I think I'll call Dupont 1478 and find out how they do it . . . Streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital have been received from Mrs. E. C. Gramm, jr., of 5620 Colorado ave. nw., Mrs. J. Stern of 512 Quintana pl. nw., C. S. R. of 1817 P st. se. and Marshall L. Faber of 3320 16th st. ne., who writes: "These are from my mother, Ida V. Faber, a spry young lady of 84, who is more active than my 30 years and probably your 22." Marshall isn't a very good guesser. I'm so old that I can remember when the New Look of our day was worth looking at.

Truman Urged to Be Dramatic

By Drew Pearson

James Patton, rugged boss of the National Farmers Union, urged President Truman to walk up to Congress some day just like any other American citizen and lay his views before a congressional committee.

Senator Cain

"What you ought to do some time," snorted the Colorado farm leader, "is take your hat in hand, walk up Pennsylvania ave., go before a congressional committee and say, 'Gentlemen, I am here to testify in the people's interest.'"

The President smiled and shook his head.

"My most effective weapon," he disagreed, "is to stand before a mike and talk to the people."

"If you want to win the next election," persisted Patton, "you have to do more than talk. You have to dramatize your views. Instead of strolling on the White House lawn, stroll up Pennsylvania ave. with a purpose. It would be the first time since Jefferson that a President appeared personally before a congressional committee."

"Well," admitted Truman, "that would be rather dramatic."

Note—Patton also invited the President to address the national farmers' convention in Denver March 8, where the chief subject discussed will be reclamation. "I hope," said Patton, "that you do not turn all the Colorado Valley development projects over to the Army engineers."

More Rent Control

Washington's best friend of the real estate interests, gruff-talking Senator Harry Cain, has been given the paradoxical chore of drafting a new rent-control law. An outspoken foe of rent control, a Senate subcommittee gave him the assignment of drafting the new bill. Immediately he hustled over to see Senate Boss Robert Taft.

"Let me get this clear," rasped Cain, "do you want legislation continuing rent controls?"

"Yes," said Taft.

"What kind of bill do you want?" Cain asked, bewildered.

"I can't say, Harry," replied Taft. "That is up to you."

So the Senator who doesn't believe in rent control has been given the job to draft a bill continuing rent control. He will have to work fast. The present weakened rent-control bill expires February 29. Meanwhile Senators Sparkman and Myers, Democrats, have introduced rent-control bills with teeth.

Where Our Money Went

Comptroller General Warren finally has been able to probe certain operations by Reconstruction Finance Corporation subsidiaries. Simultaneously, indefatigable Congressman George Bender of Cleveland, Ohio, is planning to air certain deals that the General Accounting Office has unearthed. Here is the first:

The Andrews steel plant of Newport, Ky., is located along the Ohio River where it needs costly repairs every time the river is flooded. In 1942 it was owned by Lehman Bros., the New York banking firm, which sold it in 1943 to Paul Angell and Charles Stamm of Chicago, who had scarcely moved in before they threatened to close down unless the Government took the plant over.

The Defense Plant Corporation sent its assistant vice president, T. W. Atkins, to inspect the plant. He reported that it was run down, needed repairs and that no more than $472,890.68 of the total inventory was worth purchasing.

"It seems rather like economic suicide to carry on operations at Andrews steel," Atkins reported.

Who Was in Woodpile?

However, Atkins was overruled. Someone up above took over the plant at terms virtually dictated by the company—namely $395,976 in management fees, $320,087 for repairs and the $97,500 for office rental.

Atkins protested that the management fee was excessive and most of the repairs superfluous. But again he was overruled.

Later the Ohio River flooded the plant for nine days, just as Atkins predicted, costing the Government $230,601 in damages. On top of this, Defense Plant Corporation purchased the inventory of the plant for $808,028.

As a result of all this, the plant did not reach capacity production until after VE-Day, and shortly thereafter the owners, Stamm and Angell, wanted the plant and inventory back again. In fact they became so insistent that they threatened to assess storage charges if the Government did not turn things back.

Finally, without letting anyone else bid, the inventory was sold back to Stamm and Angell at the ridiculously low price of $313,559. It had cost the Government $808,028.

All in all, the taxpayers lost two million dollars and got nothing in return for putting the plant into running order.

So alert Congressman Bender wants to see who at the top was responsible.

We belong to God

It matters not where we were born . . . Or whither we may plod . . . We are the children of the world . . . And we belong to God . . . We may be proud or humble and . . . We may be rich or poor . . . And life may seem delightful or . . . A sorrow to endure . . . But in the last analysis . . . Our every song and breath . . . Depends on our Creator Who . . . Decides on life and death . . . We may design the laws and rules . . . By which we live today . . . And we may ask Him for His help . . . Or we may never pray . . . But always and forever God . . . Is King of every class . . . And though the world may disappear . . . His word will never pass.
